PEARY TO GET ROYAL RECEPTION IN LONDON

Expected That Prince of Wales Will Be Present at Great Albert Hall Meeting.

SPECIAL MEDAL IS LIKELY

Royal Geographical Society Will Give Dinner in His Honor—Hasn't Invited Cook to Lecture.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—That Commander Peary will have a royal reception when he reaches London was vouched for to-day by a prominent official of the Royal Geographical Society. In all probability the function will be held in Albert Hall, which seats 8,000 persons, and the Prince of Wales is expected to be present. The date is open awaiting Peary's convenience. Already the north pole discoverer has cabled his acceptance of the invitation. Many other receptions are being arranged here by societies and city companies.

"We should have liked him to open the November session," said the Geographical Society official to-day, "but I expect that American engagements will prevent this. However, we expect a letter from him any day fixing the date for the reception. It will probably take the form of that accorded to Lieut. Shackleton at Albert Hall, at which the Prince of Wales was present. Before the reception Mr. Peary will be the guest of the Geographical Society at dinner.

"What we are anxious to hear is an account of his expedition. We want to know about his tidal observations in the arctic sea. This is far more important to us than the discovery of the pole. We understand that he took soundings a few miles from the pole and did not reach bottom. These are of particular interest to us."

Commander Peary's decision to place his data before recognized American experts is warmly applauded here. The result will be universally accepted, this official said. He added that if Dr. Cook's claim had not preceded Peary's the world would have accepted the latter's mere statement.

The Royal Geographical Society has not invited Dr. Cook to lecture before it, and there seems to be no likelihood that it will. All questions relating to that explorer's claim were met with the answer: "I cannot discuss the matter. You know what a critical position we are in. I have no doubt that Cook honestly believes that he reached the pole."

Commander Peary has been an honorary member of the Royal Geographical Society for many years. In 1898 he received the patrons' royal medal. When asked whether the society was likely to strike a special Peary medal, the official answered:

"The matter is under consideration. Shackleton and Scott received special antarctic medals, but neither received the royal medal."

PEARY WILL SUBMIT DATA.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Prof. Willis L. Moore, President of the National Geographic Society, received the following telegram to-day from Commander Robert E. Peary:

> Copy of society's resolution just received. I am not only willing, but desire to submit my records and data to a commission of American scientists that is impartially selected.

The resolution referred to was adopted by the society's Board of Governors last Friday. It declared that before the claims of either Commander Peary or Dr. Cook were accepted it would be necessary that the scientific records and data of each explorer be carefully examined by its Committee on Research or by some body or commission acceptable to the board. It further urged both explorers to submit all their observations, notes, and data to a competent scientific commission in the United States.

Dr. Cook has not yet replied to the society's suggestions. Should Dr. Cook definitely refuse to submit his data, Prof. Moore, President of the society, thinks Peary's data will be considered alone.

Steps will probably be taken at the meeting of the society next Friday looking to the creation of a commission to examine the data.

TO ENTERTAIN PEARY'S CREW.

Huntington and Osborn Will Show Them Around the City.

The crew of Commander Peary's ship, the Roosevelt, will be the guests to-day of Archer M. Huntington, President Henry Fairfield Osborn of the American Museum of Natural History, and others on a sight-seeing trip through the city. Since the Roosevelt has been at her pier the crew have remained on board most of the time, and Prof. Osborn and Mr. Huntington determined that before they started to-morrow for their homes in Newfoundland some attention should be shown them.

Big touring cars furnished by Mr. Huntington will pick up the sailors at the Roosevelt's dock this morning, taking them first to the Metropolitan Life Insurance Building, and then to Times Square. From there they will go to the Natural History Museum, where President Osborn has arranged for them to be conducted through the department devoted to arctic collections, and wherever else they wish to go. They will next visit the rooms of the American Geographical Society, going from there to the Botanical Gardens in Bronx Park, where a luncheon will be served. From there the autos will take them to the Aquarium, where Director Townsend will take them in charge.

KING EDWARD INTERVENES.

Hopes to Avert Constitutional Crisis Over the Budget.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—With the consideration of the budget practically concluded for the present in the House of Commons the King, assisted by unofficial advisers, is actively intervening to prevent the Constitutional crisis which the Government's financial proposals threaten to precipitate if they are rejected by the House of Lords.

What the outcome of the King's intervention will be few are willing to phophesy. The leaders of both parties remain silent, but the rank and file still demand "no surrender," and refuse to believe that the leaders will give up what they have been fighting for for months. A member of the Cabinet is quoted as saying that there will be no compromise, and that the Lords will pass the bill as it leaves the Commons.

It is quite likely, however, that the bill will be much modified before it leaves the lower house, thus enabling the Lords, without loss of prestige, to agree to the bill, with the understanding that the election will be held in January.

The general public, which has the greatest confidence in the King's diplomacy, is waiting for the return of Premier Asquith from Balmoral Castle. The Premier spent the day at his Majesty's Scotch seat, where there have been long and earnest consultations directly between the King and the Prime Minister and between the latter and Lord James Hereford, who, having always taken a somewhat detached view of party strife, is better able to press his Majesty's wishes on the leaders than any other public man in England.

It is rather a delicate matter for the King to intervene in domestic affairs, and, as a matter of fact, this is the first time he has openly done so. He has precedents for this, however, Queen Victoria having intervened twice—on the Irish Church bill in 1869 and on the Reform bill in 1885, when she successfully acted as conciliator. The present issue is more serious, but the public is confident that the King's statesmanship will be no less successful than that of his mother.

The last clause of the Budget passed in committee in the House of Commons after a late session to-night, and the fight, so far as Parliament is concerned, is adjourned until Nov. 19, when the bill comes up for report.

The adjournment of the House, which Chancellor Lloyd-George announced to-night, will enable the leaders to consider the King's suggestions without discussion, which would be certain to occur if the House were in session.

INNOCENT, IS HELD IN JAIL.

Man Kept Five Months as Suspected Counterfeiter Is Freed.

BRISTOL, Tenn., Oct. 6.—John M. Preston was released from jail to-day, five months after he was arrested on a charge now said to be unfounded. Coins believed to be counterfeits were in Preston's possession when he was arrested last Spring, suspected of being counterfeiter. The Grand Jury in the United States Court at Abingdon refused to return a true bill against Preston this week because it was shown by the testimony of experts that the coins alleged to be spurious were genuine.

Preston walked into a store in Bristol last Spring, and, throwing a handful of change on the counter, inquired whether it was genuine money. The proprietor of the store refused it, finding that the coins were warm and dripping with quicksilver. They had every appearance of having just been made.

Preston undertook to pass some of the money at another place. He was arrested. Secret Service men from Washington came here and took charge of Preston, lodging him in jail at Abingdon, where he has since been a prisoner, unable to give bond, but protesting his innocence.

The case attracted much attention. The money appeared to be galvanized, and looked unlike real coins. It was all fractional currency, consisting of dimes and quarters, and was perfect as to mold. When presented before the Grand Jury at Abingdon it had an entirely different appearance, and looked like the genuine money, which authorities had pronounced it to be.

SODA CLERK GONE WITH $500.

There was a rush at the soda counter in Riker's Drug Store, in 125th Street, between Seventh and Eighth Avenues, yesterday at noon. As it subsided, the manager noticed that Paul Polachek, the soda clerk, was missing.

"He's gone to the bank for you, hasn't he?" asked Miss Nellie Blatchley, the cashier.

The manager said he hadn't sent the clerk to the bank, and then Miss Blatchley in agitation told how Polachek had come to her and said that the manager had instructed him to take $500 and deposit it in the bank. Miss Blatchley had made out a bank slip and had given him the money, she said.

The manager called up J. A. Crane, general manager of the Riker stores, at his headquarters in the Twenty-third Street Store. Mr. Crane recalled that in the photographic department were some films on which exposures had been made of Polachek, his wife, and baby. The clerk had left them to be developed. The films were developed immediately and pictures printed. Then Police Headquarters was notified and a supply of Polachek's pictures sent there.

As the drug company has no record of Polachek's address, the only hope of finding him lies in the photographs which he and his wife took themselves.

ALBERT PULITZER BURIED.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Oct. 6.—The funeral of Albert Pulitzer, the former New York publisher, which took place to-day, was of the most modest character and but few persons were present.

The estate is valued at $200,000. Thirty thousand dollars is left to the son, Walter Pulitzer, who also gets a similar amount left by his mother. A lawyer, Mr. Neuda, who delivered the funeral oration at the cemetery, receives $10,000. Two natural children each get annuities of $2,500, and their mother, Fräulein Reisch, an annuity of $1,250.

BALLOON PILOT ILL 15,000 FEET IN AIR

Companion Rubs Freezing Man All Night and Is Hurt in Difficult Landing.

VON PHUL LEADS RACERS

Reaches Wahkon, Minn., 580 Miles from St. Louis—All Down but Centennial, Heading for Gulf.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 6.—The balloon Indiana landed near Albany, Stearns County, Minn., at 11 o'clock this morning. Albany is a little town about twenty-five miles west of St. Cloud, and is more than 500 miles from St. Louis in an air line. The balloon descended in a field about three miles south of Albany.

McGill, the pilot, was taken violently ill early in the day. He was loath to give up the flight, but his aid, J. H. Schauer, insisted that they descend for medical help. In falling the ballon dashed into some tree tops and tore out a section of wire fence. Both men were thrown out, but they had then approached so near the ground that their injuries were not serious. Schauer's shoulder was dislocated. McGill was jolted and bruised. The balloon was damaged and was taken to St. Cloud for shipment to the East.

McGill and Schauer are from Dayton, Ohio. They left St. Louis at 5:15 P. M. Monday. The Indiana carried 80,000 cubic feet of gas.

Mr. Schauer arrived in St. Cloud this evening and told of his experience in the air. He said:

"Tuesday evening we ascended to a height of 15,000 feet. It was so cold up there that we were almost frozen stiff. My pilot, Mr. McGill, was sick when we left St. Louis, and I did not intend that he should go, but he insisted. Last night he was very sick, and I had to rub him all night to keep him from freezing. I feared he would die up in the clouds, so I lowered the balloon as we were nearing Albany.

"I am not very handy at that sort of work, so the balloon struck a tree, tore down a wire fence, and we were both thrown out. We landed in a meadow, and I consider myself very fortunate in escaping with the bruises I received. This accident was a great disappointment to me, as I am sure we would have won the $5,000 prize if it had not happened."

Von Phul Leads Race.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 6.—Unless the balloon Centennial, P. E. Honeywell pilot, which was last reported at Livingston, Ala., 400 miles from St. Louis, at 11 o'clock this morning, has exceeded 580 miles, the balloon St. Louis No. 3, St. Louis, Von Phul pilot, which landed this morning at Wahkon, Minn., 580 miles from St. Louis, has won the race which began here Monday afternoon. Von Phul, if he registered for the Lahm Cup, may also have that coveted prize. Von Puhl was in the air 41 hours and 35 minutes.

The New York, Harmon and Post pilot and aid, telegraphed to-night that they landed at Edina, Mo., 148 miles from here after a trip fraught with disappointments. The aeronauts in the most expensive and best equipped gas bag traveled over Illinois, Arkansas, Oklahoma, and Missouri, and then had to alight north of the starting point. The New York was in the air 48 hours and 45 minutes.

The Indiana, which sailed under protest, because H. H. McGill had no license, dropped to the ground near Albany, Minn., 520 miles air line after an exciting trip. McGill left here in a hammock in the basket because of an injury he received at the aero grounds.

The other balloons in the race landed as follows: Hoosier, Crume and Custer, near Russellville, Mo., at 11:20 A. M. Tuesday. In the air 17 hours 24 minutes; distance, 123 miles.

University City, Berry and Fox, near Mooresville, Mo., at 3:15 P. M. Tuesday. In the air 21 hours 55 minutes; distance, 204 miles.

Pommern, Old, and Taylor, near Knobel, Ark., at 5:30 P. M., Tuesday. In the air 24 hours 30 minutes. Attained height of 14,500 feet. Distance, 162 miles.

Cleveland, Wade and Morgan, near Alexander City, Ala., at 8:30 A. M. Wednesday. In the air 39 hours 45 minutes. Distance, 444 miles.

A telegram received from Honeywell dated Epes, Ala., said he intended to make the Gulf of Mexico, a distance of 120 miles, by 6 o'clock.

LAREDO, Mo., Oct. 6.—The balloon South St. Louis, 80,000 cubic feet capacity, in which Jack Bennett and A. A. Heinmann made an independent ascension at St. Louis Monday, at the same time that the racing balloons started, came to earth here 206 miles from St. Louis. The gas bag was riddled with shot. It had been the target for many rural sportsmen—not less than twelve men firing at it, it was reported.

The ballast bags, which stopped such shot as hit the basket, probably saved the two passengers from injury.

BEATS GLIDDEN'S RECORD.

Clayton's Balloon Lands Within Six Miles of Boston Common.

WINCHESTER, Mass., Oct. 6.—Two balloon trophies which have been keenly contested for during the last two years, that offered by The Boston Herald for the balloon landing nearest Boston Common and that of the Fitchburg Board of Trade for the pilot starting from Fitchburg and taking The Herald trophy, were probably won to-night when H. Helm Clayton landed in this town after a forty-mile trip from Fitchburg.

The passengers with Mr. Clayton were J. B. Benton of Winchester and J. Walter Flagg of Worcester. The landing was made within a mile of Benton's home, a distance of six miles from Boston Common, exceeding the best previous record, made by Charles J. Glidden, by about four miles.

The balloon ascended from Fitchburg at 2:40, and the landing was effected at 4:45 P. M.

The aeronauts, upon landing, were compelled to combat with souvenir hunters, who threatened utterly to destroy the airship in their endeavors to tear away pieces of the gas bag as mementos.

METZ INVADES "HORRORS" EXHIBIT

CITED AS EXAMPLE HIMSELF

Stimson, Whom He Interrupts, Says He's a Good Man Who Is Helpless—Some Verbal Exhibits.

Controller Metz wandered last night into the "Chamber of Tammany Horrors," maintained at Sixteenth Street and Union Square by the Committee of One Hundred, which the Mayor had denounced earlier in the day, and interrupted a meeting devoted to telling how outrageous the Tammany government of the city has been for years. Ex-United States Attorney Stimson was speaking, and he and Controller Metz engaged in a fierce debate. The fight was over schools and subways.

"I am not a Tammany man," shouted the Controller, advancing to the platform on which Mr. Stimson was speaking. "I am an honest man. The trouble with the exhibits on these walls is that they ain't true. They are only partly true. Get the facts and I am with you. This old town ain't going to the dogs. This is a grand old city. You fellows want to get your facts right."

Mr. Stimson asked Mr. Metz to take the platform and say in detail what he had to say. Frank Moss asked that he do so. The audience of some two hundred, stood up and indicated that they wished the same. A motion to that effect was put. But Mr. Metz, hat in hand, walking backward toward the door, still talking heatedly, but begging pardon for "butting in," made his exit.

After he had gone Mr. Stimson and all the other speakers pointed to him as but another horrible example of a good man, surrounded by Tammany men, who had tried, and tried vainly in many cases, to do things that he knew were right.

In the beginning Dr. Henry Moskowitz said that 22,000 persons had visited the Chamber of Horrors in the last three days; that the facts had been gathered by careful investigators, who had been at work for five months, and that the facts had evidently cut deep, since already both the Mayor and Controller had attempted to reply to them.

Michael Fitzgerald, a labor leader, who said that he was a Democrat, although a Democrat who could not endure the practices of Tammany system, made an appeal to his listeners to help out that system so that the children of the workingman could have more and better schools and so that workingmen could have more and better transit facilities to where there was more light and air than they have in the tenements in which they are now compelled to live.

Stimson Tells of Water Thefts.

Then came Mr. Stimson. He complimented the Committee of One Hundred on the exhibits it had gathered. The people, he said, had been hearing for years about round sums of money that had been lost to them through the Tammany municipal government, but he was afraid that talks about large sums of money did not make a deep and lasting impression on the minds of the voters.

Then he gave some exhibits of his own. While he was prosecuting the Sugar Trust, he declared, he happened to find that the water pipes supplying the territory on which their plants in Brooklyn were situated were so connected that the Sugar Trust was getting about $100,000 worth of water annually for nothing. This had been discovered in the Low Administration, and a suit was begun against the Sugar Trust for $500,000. Then Low was defeated. Tammany came back. So far as he (Mr. Stimson) knew, the trust had never paid that $500,000 yet.

He told of that instance to show the waste of the people's money, he declared, for if so much money hadn't been wasted by Tammany, all that the city needed in the way of more schools and street railway transit facilities could easily be paid for.

"If ever there was a question before a city which deserved to be called a burning question it is this one of transit facilities now confronting New York City;" went on Mr. Stimson. "In the last six years bonds for $396,000,000 have been issued by the city, but less than $5,000,000 of that has been appropriated for transit facilities.

Metz Rises to Answer.

"Here is a more concrete example. The Public Service Commission has found that if the Subway trains are increased from eight to ten cars in length and if the platforms of the stations are made to suit these trains, the carrying capacity of the Subway will be increased 25 per cent. I happen to know that the Interborough people have appropriated the money for the additional cars needed, but Tammany has not voted the $1,500,000 needed to lengthen the platform. Who is holding up that money? I—"

"I am Controller Metz," here interrupted Mr. Metz, rising in the audience. "I have had that matter referred to me, and I am holding it up."

"Do you know why it has been held up?" asked Mr. Stimson, the Controller meanwhile advancing toward the platform, and some of the more timid persons moving back somewhat as he came on.

"Yes," shouted Mr. Metz, "because Mr. Shonts told me that he wouldn't be ready to go ahead with the work of constructing the platforms until the Fall. Do you think I was going to put a million dollars of the city's money out for a year, waiting for them to get ready?"

"They have done their duty," said Mr. Stimson. "And you? How long have you been in office, Mr. Metz?"

"Three years and nine months, thank God."

"How long has the subway been in the

J. M. BARRIE SEEKS DIVORCE FROM WIFE

He Married an Actress in 1894, and They Were Supposed to be Happy.

SHE RETIRED FROM STAGE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The name of James M. Barrie, the playwright, figures as a petitioner in the list of divorce cases set down for trial at the next session of the law courts here.

Mr. Barrie married in 1894 Miss Mary Ansell, the actress, who appeared in his first play, "Walker, London," which was produced seventeen year ago.

The news of J. M. Barrie's divorce suit contained in the special cable dispatch to THE NEW YORK TIMES came as a great shock last night to persons in New York who had personal acquaintance with the Scotch author. The idea of divorce in connection with the author of "When a Man's Single" seemed as incongruous and painful.

Mrs. Barrie has appeared little in public life. She was, when still Miss Mary Ansell, on the stage, and appeared in Mr. Barrie's first play, "Walker, London," which achieved an instantaneous success when played by John L. Toole in London seventeen years ago. She married Mr. Barrie in 1894 and retired from the stage. Since then they have always appeared to be a most devoted couple. They had no children, but they adopted Miss Pauline Chase in place of a daughter of their own.

The wonderful grasp of feminine character which Mr. Barrie had shown in his books and plays has always been supposed to have been inspired in some degree by his perfect agreement with his wife. In illustration of their good-fellowship a story told last Winter by Charles Frohman may be quoted. It dealt with an incident at one of the rehearsals of "What Every Woman Knows" in London in September last year.

"What every woman knows," said Mr. Frohman, "is that when she trusts to her instincts and shuns reason and logic she is apt to be right. Barrie knows this, too, for at the Duke of York's Theatre one day, when the comedy was in the first stages of its rehearsal and the auditorium empty save for the presence of himself and myself, suddenly the outer door opened and in flew Mrs. Barrie, with characteristic rapidity of speech and action. There were a few moments' conversation between husband and wife, during which I moved away so as not to overhear. The talk over, Mrs. Barrie gathered her trappings together and vanished as suddenly as she had appeared. Then Barrie rejoined me, saying 'You know the humiliating thing about women is that they are generally right.'"

Mr. Barrie has paid only one visit to America. He was over here for a few weeks to superintend the rehearsal of "The Little Minister," in which Miss Maude Adams scored such a success as Lady Babbie. He is, however, well known to New York playgoers by means of his curiously delicate and subtle plays, of which the most successful here, besides "The Little Minister," have been "Peter Pan" and "What Every Woman Knows."

HER GEMS JUST VANISHED.

Mrs. Adler Unable to Tell How Thieves Took Them from Bureau.

Mrs. Jerome Adler of 29 East Seventy-ninth Street has appealed to the police to recover for her a long list of jewels which she says were stolen from the dresser in her room on Sept. 28 or 29. The gems were taken from the third floor in what Mrs. Adler says was a most mysterious way. She was unable to give the police any clue as to the burglars or their manner of working.

The list of gems she has supplied includes a woman's gold watch, a neck chain set with pearls, a two-and-a-half-carat diamond ring, an emerald ring, a ring set with a ruby, with diamonds upon both sides of it, a ring set with a pearl and ten diamonds, a ruby and diamond ring, a horseshoe bar pin set with eighteen diamonds, and a bar pin set with emeralds.

Mrs. Adler said that she could not tell offhand how much the jewels were worth, but they were valuable.

JEROME OUT BY SATURDAY?

That's the Latest Date Set for His Retirement as a Candidate.

District Attorney Jerome has not yet withdrawn as a candidate for District Attorney. His headquarters was open as usual yesterday. It was said, however, that it would be closed at the end of this week, and that by Saturday Mr. Jerome would get out of the race.

This information came from a person who has talked with Mr. Jerome recently. At his headquarters in the Bryant Arcade, John Henneberry, Mr. Jerome's campaign manager, said that if the District Attorney intended to quit as a candidate he had not taken him into his confidence.

PLASTER PURITY'S UNVEILING.

To-night's the Night, but There'll Be No Ceremony to Gladden Times Square

The statue of "Purity" in Times Square, about which so much has been written and rumored, will be unveiled to-night, according to its designer, Leo Lentelli.

No ceremonies will mark the unveiling. The trestle work supporting the figure will simply be removed, and the base and pedestal put in place. The statue is being erected by the Association for New York ready for the election. Being erected in the city, it has the approval of the Municipal Art Commission.

It was intended to unveil the statue last night, but at the last minute it was found that the base was not quite completed.

24-HOUR TRAIN TO ST. LOUIS.

Pennsylvania's New Service Will Save 3½ Hours—Begins Nov. 7.

A twenty-four hour train to St. Louis is to be run by the Pennsylvania Railroad on and after Nov. 7. It will leave New York daily at 6:25 P. M. and will arrive in St. Louis at 5:25 P. M. the next day. Allowing for one hour's difference in time between the two cities, the run of 1,054 miles will be made in exactly twenty-four hours. The Twenty-four-hour St. Louis will be the train's title on the time cards.

The return train, to be styled the Twenty-four-hour New Yorker, will leave St. Louis at 6 P. M. daily and will be due in New York at 7 P. M. next day. Evening connections will be made at the Union Station in St. Louis with all the lines running into it, and a saving will be made between St. Louis, New York, and all Southwestern points of three and a half hours. An extra fare is to be charged.

A 12-YEAR-OLD LIFE SAVER.

For Rescue of Six-Year-Old Boy Is Made Lieutenant in the Corps.

In Jersey City yesterday, twelve-year-old James Daud, an inmate of the Children's Home, at 163 Grand Street, received a letter from the United States Inland Life Saving Corps, with headquarters at Norton Heights, Conn., signed by Admiral E. D. Ayers. The letter praises him for his courage in rescuing a six-year-old boy from drowning on the night of Aug. 14.

Inclosed was a certificate making him a Lieutenant in the Life Saving Corps. His rescue was that of six-year-old Peter Silo of 372 Johnson Avenue, who had fallen into the Morris Canal from the Pacific Avenue bridge.

AVIATOR IN AUTO SMASH.

Tissandier Hurt Slightly—His Companion Mortally Injured.

AUXERRE, France, Oct. 6.—The aviator Paul Tissandier and a companion, Ernest Zens, were injured to-day when an automobile in which they were riding was thrown into a field by the breaking of an axle.

Tissandier was only slightly hurt, but Zens received mortal injuries.

WARSHIP SETS SPEED MARK.

Torpedo Boat Destroyer Makes 34.548 Knots on First Trial.

ROCKLAND, Me., Oct. 6.—A maximum speed of 34.548 knots was reported by the builders to-day after the first of the official acceptance trials of the new torpedo boat destroyer Reid.

FREIGHT TRAIN IS WRECKED.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Oct. 6.—A locomotive and fourteen loaded freight cars are piled near the new lift bridge spanning the Niantic River, west of this city. The tracks were blocked for several hours, and passenger trains between Boston and New York made long detours by way of Plainfield.

The wreck was due to the derailing of a freight train bound for Harlem River. The lift bridge was undergoing its weekly test, and it is believed the freight engineer failed to notice the yellow or cautionary signals set against him, and was unable to save his train from being deflected by the derailing mechanism after reaching the red or danger semaphore.

MOORS SURPRISE CAMP.

Two Spaniards Wounded in Sudden Attack, Which Is Repulsed.

MELILLA, Oct. 6.—A Spanish camp, under the command of Gen. Sotomayer, was the object of a surprise attack by the Moors this morning. The enemy was repulsed and shelled until 9 o'clock. Two Spaniards were wounded.

MADRID, Oct. 6.—The Correo Espanol publishes to-day an account of a secret meeting of the chiefs of the military party, at which, it is alleged, it was decided to advise King Alfonso to increase the army in Africa to 150,000 men with a reserve force of 50,000, to insure a rapid and complete victory over the Moors.

CERBERE, France, Oct. 6.—According to Spanish news received here, 1,200 prisoners are still awaiting trial at Barcelona.

FIVE IN RACE FOR LIFE.

Bitten by Horse Said to Have Hydrophobia—To Chicago for Treatment.

SABINA, Ohio, Oct. 6.—Five men from Lee's Creek, seven miles from Sabina, left here to-night for the Pasteur Institute at Chicago in fear of death by hydrophobia. They are Amos Taylor, Lou McClure, Russell Duke, Harry Duke, and Boon Snow.

Last night the men endeavored to treat a sick horse belonging to one of the Dukes when the animal became violent and bit at everything in sight. A veterinary declared the animal had hydrophobia and it was shot. It is believed that the horse was bitten by a mad dog last week.

YACHTSMAN FOR MAYOR.

New Rochelle Democrats Nominate a Commodore Amid Waving Pennants.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Oct. 6.—The Democrats of New Rochelle nominated ex-Commodore Frederick H. Waldorf, a well-known local yachtsman, for Mayor to-night. Commodore Waldorf is the owner of the yawl Katrina. He is in the wholesale commission business in New York City.

In honor of the candidate the convention hall was decorated with the pennants and signal codes of the New Rochelle and Huguenot Yacht Clubs. John F. Healy was Chairman of the convention and Mayor George G. Raymond made the nominating speech.

The Republicans will meet to-morrow night and probably nominate for Mayor H. E. Colwell, a real estate broker and President of the local Board of Trade.

HEARST MUST RUN, CRY 3,000 LEAGUERS

IVINS ONE OF THE SPEAKERS

He Stirs a Loud Chorus of Approval by Making an Attack on Gaynor.

In a lively meeting in Cooper Union last night some 3,000 members of the Independence League called on William R. Hearst to run for Mayor, and even went through the form of "nominating" him. Mr. Hearst's name was cheered for eighteen minutes.

Mr. Hearst was asked through his secretary last night if the action of this meeting would make any difference in his announced determination not to run.

"Mr. Hearst does not care to discuss the matter until he learns exactly what happened at the meeting," was the answer brought back.

The meeting was squally from the start, and several times it looked as if it would break up in a riot. The police had to eject forcibly a score of men who persistently interrupted the speakers with questions about how Mr. Hearst stood on certain municipal problems.

Before the meeting was over, however, a resolution was put through authorizing the appointment of a committee of five men with full power to take such action as is necessary to nominate legally a full city and county ticket.

An unexpected development of the meeting was the appearance of William M. Ivins, who made a speech bitterly attacking Justice Gaynor.

The meeting did not have the sanction of Chairman Gehring of the Independence League, but it was undertaken by leaders of the organization—what Tammany has left of it—to sound Hearst sentiment among the league followers and to impress upon Mr. Hearst, if possible, the necessity of his leading it through another Mayoralty fight.

Assemblyman James A. Allen, an ardent Independence League member, acted as chairman. The hall was completely filled when the meeting was called to order, several hundred persons having to stand up in the rear. Every one present had a small American flag, and apparently every one was there to shout for Hearst.

"We have met to save the City of New York," announced Chairman Allen at the start. "Through the thievery and corrupt and dishonorable methods of a piratical band of robbers, we come without a party, but with a serious purpose to perform.

"If we have no party we have at least a principle. Much may yet be done in a little time. The same band which deprived Mr. Hearst of the fruits of his victory in 1905 has started its campaign of 1909 by declaring that you won't even be permitted to nominate the candidates of your choice. Are you going to let them get away with it?"

There were cries of "No" all over the hall. The speaker referred to Herbert Parsons's assertion that Republicans, headed by Speaker Cannon, were in league with Tammany Hall.

"Parsons is a liar," shouted some one, and the first fight of the evening was on. The interrupter was hustled out of the hall, and Mr. Allen proceeded to pay his respects to Justice Gaynor.

"Tammany has placed at the head of its campaign a respectable figurehead," declared Mr. Allen. "He cannot be trusted with the affairs of a great city, and his nomination was only a shrewd device of Tammany's to capture the city offices and hold them. How in self-respect can Mr. Gaynor march under the banner of a band of brigands?"

Judge Palmieri, the next speaker, also made an attack on Justice Gaynor. He declared that the Tammany candidate was merely a cloak of respectability to hide the real rottenness of Tammany Hall.

"The people will demand of Mr. Hearst that he repeat his feat of four years ago and lead us to victory," declared Mr. Palmieri. "He must do it, whether he wants to or not.

"Who's to be our next Mayor?" he asked suddenly.

Col. John T. Martin, a stout man with a red face and black whiskers, who took the platform next, threw a bomb into the camp by declaring in stentorian tone that he was going to vote for Gaynor.

"I am for Hearst first, last, and all the time!" shouted Col. Martin through the hisses which sounded like escaping steam, "but he convinced me this morning when I read his editorial that I ought to vote for Gaynor." He was hustled off the platform before he got any further, and the crowd broke out into renewed cheers for Hearst.

Mr. Loeffler put a resolution to the audience declaring for the municipal ownership of traction lines, and it was carried.

"I came here to-night as a Republican," confided Mr. Ivins when it came his turn. "When Justice Gaynor has finally got off the bench, which he seems to treat as a perch, and has dissolved his partnership with the Deity and tells what he proposes to do in regard to the problems of the city, then I shall pay him my compliments. Mr. Gaynor has declared that he has the right to take any man's vote, but there are some votes not worth taking.

"The man was so anxious for office that he was willing to allow his name to be used as a cloak for Tammany Hall's syndicate of crime. He is a professional agitator from the bench. We don't know yet where Mr. Gaynor stands on any of the big problems of the city. All we know is that he is carrying the banner for the gang. It is a good thing for the city to have a third party, and I hope you will nominate a ticket here to-night."

Mr. Hearst was put in nomination by Sylvester L. Malone, a lawyer. Then the crowd started its cheer contest for the Independence League leader. When it finally gave up, from sheer exhaustion apparently, the Rev. Dr. J. R. Bush seconded the nomination.

William A. Coakley tried to get in a few words, but interruptions came from every part of the hall. Every one had a question which he wanted answered. As fast as the questioners stood up policemen ran them out of the hall, and in a few minutes wild disorder prevailed.

During a lull Dr. Sirovich introduced the resolution declaring for the appointment of a committee with full power to select candidates, and when it was carried the meeting came to a sudden end.

The league's Executive Committee met at the Hermitage about midnight. Chairman Gehring of the New York County Committee, who lives at the hotel, took part. After some talk the members dispersed, some leaving the hotel, but Allen and Gehring remained there. It was said that Mr. Hearst was not to be notified of the action of the Cooper Union meeting until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Charles E. Gehring, Chairman of the County Committee of the Independence League, did not seem discouraged yesterday over Mr. Hearst's statement of Tuesday night that he will not enter the Mayoralty race this year. Mr. Gehring declared that the completion of the plans for putting a third ticket in the field will be continued, and that he has not by any means given up hope that Mr. Hearst will eventually consent to run at the head of it. He stated that the League was not directly responsible for the calling of the mass meeting held last night in Cooper Union, but it was in sympathy with it.

LABOR WON'T BOLT, SAY FUSION LEADERS

BANNARD ANSWERS HEARST

What He'll Do, if Elected, Will Be the Subject of His Speeches—City Needs a Corporation Man.

It was explained yesterday at the headquarters of the Committee of One Hundred that the twenty-two votes cast against the indorsement of Mr. Bannard for Mayor at Tuesday's midnight meeting did not really represent opposition to him as a candidate. At most, a small group of disgruntled labor men, it was said, assumed that extreme attitude. They undoubtedly have bolted the committee. But a majority by far of the opponents were inspired by a desire to withhold approval of the tickets nominated at the Republican City and County Conventions until all the nominees for positions on the Board of Estimate—which the committee believes will hold the key to the success or failure of the next administration—shall have been definitely chosen. There still remain to be nominated Borough Presidents in the Bronx, Brooklyn, Queens, and Richmond.

The effect of the speech in which Chairman Outerbridge condemned the petty strife and personal jealousies which he admitted had characterized the movement in its early stages, showed yesterday when some of the labor men returned to the headquarters of the Hundred for the purpose of going on record as in sympathy with the purpose and actions of the committee. These callers told Mr. Outerbridge that even though some of their confrerres might not again take part in the committee's deliberations, they were too utterly opposed to Tammany Hall to be lured into supporting its ticket.

Open Convention Demonstrated.

Mr. Outerbridge said of the situation resulting from Tuesday night's meeting:

"The action of the Committee of One Hundred after a full, free, and frank discussion indorsing the Fusion ticket by an overwhelming vote, has placed the committee in a strong position to start the vigorous anti-Tammany campaign for which we have been preparing during the last four months. The committee's action was taken after a debate in which every point of view was urged as strongly as its advocates were able to present it. There was no jamming through of a set programme, and I am sure every member of the committee present will agree with me that the meeting was an object lesson to all party conventions, showing the wisdom of a full discussion before action is taken. A number of those in the division voting in the minority, did so merely against the ratification of the ticket until the nominations for Queens and the Bronx were passed upon by the Fusion conference and not because of opposition to the ticket so far as presented by the Committee on Candidates."

Daniel S. Jacobs, one of the labor men on the committee, who visited the headquarters yesterday, said he would support Mr. Bannard. Mr. Jacobs is a former delegate of the Central Federated Union, and was formerly Chairman of the Coal Miners' Defense Committee.

"Friends of labor should, in my opinion, support the candidacy of Otto T. Bannard, who has worked himself up from grocer's clerk to a position of trust and confidence," said Mr. Jacobs. "I know personally that Mr. Bannard is very friendly to the working man and to organized labor, and has been a strong advocate of the progressive policies in National, State, and local affairs with which labor men are in sympathy."

Later he gave out a statement declaring that it was impossible that laboring men should be otherwise than utterly disgusted with the Tammany administration and the Tammany officials in control of the City Government for its failure to pay the prevailing rate of wages on the eight-hour day basis.

Work on Borough Tickets.

The leaders of the Fusion are now at work on the borough slates. State Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff, County Chairman Herbert Parsons, and Congressman William S. Bennet, Mr. Bannard's campaign manager, had a conference yesterday, at which it was decided to name for the head of the borough ticket in Queens some independent Democrat who could enlist the support of the opponents of Joseph Cassidy, the Democratic nominee for that office. By uniting with the Lawrence Gresser faction, which is fighting Cassidy within party lines, the Republicans and independents of Queens expect to be able to elect their candidate.

In the Bronx it is most likely that Douglas Mathewson may be the nominee.

Mr. Bannard seemed serene yesterday despite the attack made on him by William R. Hearst. Asked what he had to say in reference to Mr. Hearst's statements, he replied:

"I am glad that Mr. Hearst admits I am amiable, for I remember the saying that 'he who holdeth his temper is greater than he who conquers a city,' and I intend to do both. I don't know that this is the correct Biblical quotation, but it goes."

"Will you answer Mr. Hearst's question as to what you will do if elected?"

"That will be the subject of the few campaign speeches I shall make," was the reply.

A "Corporation Man" Needed.

Asked if he had any comment to make on Mr. Hearst's assertion that he was a corporation man, Mr. Bannard said:

"The greatest corporation I know of is the City of New York, and I think the people in the long run will come to see that a little corporation experience in the man selected to head its Government would not be amiss. I think the burning question in this campaign will be: Whom do the people want to spend the money the taxpayers supply for the city budget?"

"What do you think about the split on the motion of supporting you at the meeting of the Hundred?"

"I didn't expect unanimous action," said Mr. Bannard. "At the same time I do not understand that the opposition based its action on personal objection to me. I have had a very pleasant talk with Mr. Coakley. He knows exactly where I stand on the labor question, and he seemed to be satisfied with my attitude."

The Bannard Campaign Club, an organization said to have a membership of 1,600, to be extended to every borough, opened headquarters adjoining that of the candidate in the Fifth Avenue Building yesterday. Yesterday afternoon a delegation from the German-American League called on Mr. Bannard and assured him of their support.

WHITMAN ACCEPTS.

Political Judges Bad, Political Prosecutors Worse, He Tells Committee.

Charles S. Whitman, fusion nominee for District Attorney, and the other candidates on the New York County and Borough of Manhattan ticket, who have been indorsed by the Fusion Conference, accepted the nominations tendered them yesterday. The notification ceremony was held at noon in the campaign headquarters of Mr. Whitman at The Breslin.

Ex-Attorney General Julius M. Mayer made a blanket notification speech, to which a majority of the candidates responded.

Mr. Whitman in reply said that the District Attorney's office was essentially a law office, and that in case he was elected he would see that it remained such during his term.

"I can conceive of nothing wore," said Mr. Whitman, "than a District Attorney influenced, guided, or controlled by Tammany Hall; equally bad is the incumbent of the same office who is under the domination and control of any other political machine, even that of the party of which I am a member. Political Judges are bad; political prosecutors are inconceivably worse."

MURPHY TICKET STIRS METZ.

Controller Says It's a Disgrace and Threatens to Make a Fight.

Controller Metz announced last night that under suitable circumstances he would be willing to run for re-election this year on an independent citizens' ticket.

"It is time somebody did something for the City of New York," said he. "The ticket Murphy nominated is a disgrace to the city. It made me sick, and almost determined me to go out and fight for re-election. I wish the real independents, the men outside of both parties, would get together and nominate a pure citizens' ticket.

"I would like to see a ticket in the field this Fall composed of Hearst, myself, and Jerome. We would make these fellows sit up and take notice. The only platform we would need would be 'New York for New York and not for the bosses.' Murphy has grown to consider this city his personal asset. It's high time something was done.

"As a matter of fact I have made all my arrangements to get out of politics on Jan. 1 and attend to my business. I am tired of New York politics. But if a real movement was started to do something for the people in the way of a city government I would be right there. The only square outfit in the lot is over in Brooklyn. I'm for McCarren every time.

"I have a nominating petition all signed, but I don't know whether I will file it or not. I rather think I won't. What's the use? The people don't know what they want themselves. Look at the present ticket, which looks like a walkover—Joe Cassidy in Queens and Joe Haag over here! What kind of a Board of Estimate will the city have next year?"

Speaking further of Haag, the Controller said:

"He's a good fellow, and I've nothing against him. He's the sort of a man who would hold down a clerkship with success for thirty-five years or so. I don't see where his broad experience comes in. He's been a subordinate for so long that one can't expect much change in his personal attitude just because he's elected Borough President. If you were to take off his collar I don't believe you'd find the initials 'J. H.' inside.

"Both tickets are alike in this; they are both personal assets—Parson's and Murphy's."

Republicans Renominate Cromwell.

Borough President Cromwell of Richmond was unanimously renominated at the Republican Borough Convention held at St. George, S. I., last night. Judges Stake and Brown of the Staten Island Municipal Court were renominated by the Democrats. There was no opposition to Judge Brown, but the German-Americans nominated Arnold B. Wedemayer for Judge Stake's place. He was defeated by 42 to 14. There was a rumor that Mr. Wedemayer will run independently.

Low Registration Totals Stand.

The revised registration totals for the whole city and for the second day's boroughs for the first two days of registration were sent out yesterday. They are identical with the figures printed in THE TIMES yesterday morning, which showed that the registration for the two first days had fallen 74,472 below last year's figures and 10,229 below the figures of four years ago.

TAMMANY SCENTS A REPUBLICAN PLOT

GOT ITS EYE ON PARSONS

Suspects Colonizing from Philadelphia—Hall Jubilant Over County Ticket and Predicts Victory.

Tammany took a hand yesterday in the merry war aroused by the allegations of Congressman Parsons, Chairman of the Republican County Committee, of collusion between the organization leaders and the Republican State machine to defeat honest elections in this city by declaring that it has reason to believe that a plot had been arranged by the Republicans to trap Tammany by the offer of the services of the floaters for the coming election.

An official statement was issued by the organization late yesterday afternoon declaring that several of its district leaders had been approached recently with offers to furnish floaters and colonizers from Philadelphia. They reported immediately to the Executive Committee of the Hall, which decided to make the matter public.

"Tammany scents a plot," says the statement, "and it is the opinion of the leaders that it was the intention of the Republicans to trap some district leader or Captain into hiring repeaters, have the latter vote against the Tammany ticket, and then use the repeaters as evidence for a contest."

The statement declares that the offer was to send "reliable" men into every district in the city. "Before this news was taken to the wigwam," it continues, "Tammany had prepared to keep close watch upon the district of Chairman Parsons of the Republican forces. It had been determined to strike back at Parsons because of his recent charges against Republicans and Democrats regarding Mr. Cannon's re-election as Speaker. The statement continues:

> Mr. Parsons's charge is not to be permitted to go unchallenged. Tammany Hall, it was said yesterday, never felt so confident of victory. If Mr. Parsons or any other person intimates that there is anything illegal going on, Tammany is determined to make him produce the facts.
> Judge Gaynor personally will not neglect this phase of the campaign. Reports has it that the Republicans will have a large campaign fund, while Tammany Hall, as will be seen when the campaign accounts are filed, has not a cent of corporation funds.
>
> The upper Tenderloin, where there is a large colored vote, and which is part of the Parsons's district, is being carefully investigated. In former years the Democrats have allowed charges of this character to pass unnoticed, but Parsons's utterances of late have caused a departure from this attitude.
>
> The night raid by Capt. Galvin on east side lodging houses is said to be the result of information that Philadelphia repeaters were registering in this city. Tammany's Executive Committee has made elaborate arrangements to follow every name as it is placed upon the register.
>
> The prevention of repeating and the getting out of every Democratic vote are the two chief points now engaging the attention of the Executive Committee.

No more definite information on this subject was forthcoming at the Hall, and it was impossible to learn who had made the alleged offer which made the Tammany district leaders run to the shelter of the wigwam.

Little business occupied the attention of Leader Murphy yesterday except the completion of the Municipal Court slate. Nothing has yet been done about the selection of headquarters. The committee in charge of the Speakers' Bureau, of which John J. Delany has been the head, will meet on Monday to formulate a list of meetings. It was said yesterday at the Hall that an unusually large number of speakers have already offered their services.

The official notification of the three candidates on the city ticket—Justice Gaynor, Robert R. Moore, and John F. Galvin—will take place this afternoon at the home of Justice Gaynor, in Brooklyn. The date for the ratification meeting in the Wigwam has not yet been set.

The first campaign gun by Tammany will be fired at a mass meeting to be held at the Academy of Music in Brooklyn on Monday night, at which Justice Gaynor, Mr. Moore, and Mr. Galvin will speak. The gathering will be under the auspices of the Allied Trades and other Brooklyn civic organizations.

Mr. Murphy and every one about the hall seemed to be highly pleased with the nominations for county and borough offices made on Tuesday night. All the leaders seemed to think the election will be more or less a matter of form.

"There's nothing to it," said one. "Everybody seems to be lying down and they might just as well."

"It's a good ticket, and will win," declared Murphy.

VOTING TRUST AGAINST HUGHES

Origin of Cannon-Raines-Tammany Deal, a New Story Has It.

A man closely in touch with the doings of the inner circle of the Republican State organization, shortly after the election last Fall had made it certain that the leaders would have to put up with Gov. Hughes for two years more, furnished a supplementary chapter last night to the Parsons-Cannon-Raines controversy in reference to the deal between the up-State Republican leaders and Tammany Hall.

His story was that the deal was part of a programme to defeat direct primaries and all the reforms recommended by Gov. Hughes, and to ring down the curtain on the Governor's political career. The organizers of the deal tried to take Herbert Parsons in, this story has it, before they began to fight him in the Legislature.

The story has it that late in November several up-State leaders opposed to Gov. Hughes met at the Republican Club and decided to form a voting trust by which the legislators they controlled were to be guided. This extended to all legislation recommended by Gov. Hughes. No member of the voting trust was to vote for any such measure for any reason unless he had been released by his partners to the agreement.

The combination was formed in the first place because of the fear among the leaders that Gov. Hughes might succeed in passing his Direct Nominations bill, but it extended to his entire legislative programme. The plan was to discredit Gov. Hughes and to convey a lesson to future independent would-be Governors that nobody could get on in the executive chair unless he had the aid of the bosses.

William Barnes, Jr., the story has it, was the leader in the movement. Among the other leaders there were said to be Francis Hendricks of Syracuse, George W. Aldridge of Rochester, Lou Payn, and John F. O'Brien of Plattsburg.

Herbert Parsons was out of favor with all these leaders because of the stand he had taken at the Saratoga Convention for the renomination of Gov. Hughes. But they wanted him and Postmaster Fred Greiner of Buffalo because of their strength in conventions, and that of their representation in the Legislature.

So they sent for Mr. Parsons. He stayed in the conference for two hours. Mr. Parsons said he wanted things done in a proper business fashion, and asked the up-State leaders to reduce the agreement to writing. He was almost thrown out of the window for suggesting this.

The conferences were continued at Albany after the Legislature met, but Parsons and Greiner stayed out of the voting trust. Somehow Republican State Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff was not taken in at that time either, because of a general impression among the conferrees that he could not deliver any votes.

TWO MORE LEADERS DESERT M'CARREN

Bridges and Naumer Join Insurgents Over Selection of McCooey for Borough President.

SLATE ADOPTED, HOWEVER

Bolt of Six Districts Threatened To-night if Convention Ratifies Slate—P. H. Quinn Choice for Sheriff.

At a conference held last night at the headquarters of the Kings County Democratic Committee in Brooklyn, between the Provisional Committee and the Executive Committee of the organization, two leaders whom Senator McCarren had heretofore reckoned in his column broke away and joined the four Murphy leaders.

The split came over the selection of the nominees for county and borough offices, the principal opposition being to the placing of Deputy Controller McCooey at the head of the ticket as the candidate for Borough President. So strong was the feeling that after the meeting adjourned, Thomas F. Byrnes, leader of the Eleventh District, one of the old anti-McCarren men, intimated strongly that there might be a bolt at the County and Borough Conventions to-night. He promised trouble, anyway.

"We cannot accept the ticket as drawn up to-night," said he. "We would stand for almost any man who didn't have the McCarren stamp on him. McCooey is out of the question. He won't be on our banner."

Asked if the six insurgents would bolt the conventions, he replied:

"Draw your own conclusions. We will put up a big fight to prevent this ticket from going through, and if it does go through look for trouble."

If the six districts represented by the insurgents should "knife" the McCarren ticket in favor of the Fusion nominee, former Magistrate Steers, who is an independent Democrat, it would seriously cut down the Democratic vote in Brooklyn. The six districts cast 20,000 votes at the recent primaries.

The two leaders who broke away from McCarren last night were John J. Bridges of the Second District, whose allegiance to McCarren has been suspected for some time, and Magistrate Naumer of the Seventeenth, who wanted the nomination for Sheriff. The conference was in session for three hours and was stormy throughout.

The ticket as drawn up on Tuesday by McCarren and his lieutenants read:

Borough President—DEPUTY CONTROLLER McCOOEY.
Sheriff—PATRICK H. QUINN.
Register—ALBERT E. KLEINERT.
County Clerk—HENRY B. MALLOY.
Coroners—DR. ALEXANDER J. ROONEY, EDWARD J. GLINNER.

Despite the objection of the insurgents the slate was ratified by the conference and turned over to the Provisional Committee. They went into executive session, and reported it back with one change, the substitution of Frederick Lundy of Coney Island for Mr. Kleinert. The six anti-McCarren men were then again voted down.

The insurgents wanted the nomination for Borough President to go either to John Heffernan, Borough President Coler's secretary, or Rudolph Reimer, Jr., a coal merchant. They declared that the ticket would have no show of winning with McCooey at its head. Besides being disgruntled over the selection of Quinn for the nomination for Sheriff, Magistrate Naumer was also angry over the placing of Molloy on the ticket, as Molloy contested with him the leadership of the district at the primaries.

It is possible that the trouble may be smoothed over before the conventions to-night, but it seemed doubtful last night.

DE BRAGGA NAMED IN QUEENS.

Nomination for Borough President Forced Through Despite Woodruff's Plea.

In spite of a strong opposition and the fact that some of his political friends have become convinced that he will be defeated at the polls, Joseph De Bragga, the Republican boss of Queens, was nominated for President of the Borough of Queens last night at the Republican Borough Convention, held in Dauerb's Hall, Richmond Hill. De Bragga practically forced his nomination, it was said, after State Chairman Timothy Woodruff had personally pleaded with him to stand aside for the good of the party.

De Bragga received 136 votes to 34 for Robert W. Higbie of Jamaica. When De Bragga's name was presented to the convention there was some cheering, but the delegates exhibited little enthusiasm.

Mr. Higbie was nominated by Col. William Griffith, President of the Queens County Trust Company and former secretary of ex-Gov. Black. H. Stewart McKnight, in seconding the nomination of Higbie, pointed out that the issue this year was whether or not Cassidyism or Bermelism was to rule in the borough. "There is no Republican," he said, "but will know, if De Bragga is nominated, that De Bragga was Commissioner of Sewers under Bermel's administration. De Bragga will mean defeat."

Congressman Bennet was present before the convention and it was rumored that his mission was to bring about a fusion movement with Borough President Gresser as the nominee. This plan was not even mentioned, however, in the convention.

It is said that when De Bragga was asked to step aside by Woodruff, he replied that he was willing, but that he did not believe that he could hold his delegates.

TRYING TO APPEASE HAFFEN.

Tammany Delays Bronx Convention, Hoping to Whip Him Into Line.

The Bronx Borough Convention, which was to have been held last night at Muller's Casino, Third Avenue and 154th Street, was adjourned to to-morrow night to give the Tammany leaders of the borough more time in which to look over the ground and endeavor if possible to "whip Mr. Haffen into line."

Although they declare that they do not take Mr. Haffen's statement that he will run independently against the regular nominee seriously, the leaders are clearly worried and are trying hard to find out just what would happen should Haffen go into the field in earnest after their nomination is made. They are all hoping on what they declare is Haffen's "lack of fighting blood." His nominating petition continues to be circulated, and names are rapidly being affixed.

The Republicans are jubilant over the situation and declare that if Haffen runs their candidate will surely be elected. Alderman Murphy appears to be the most likely choice for Borough President on the regular Democratic ticket.

FOSS TELLS WHY HE BOLTED.

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—A large audience attended the opening rally of the Democratic State campaign, held in a tent here to-night. James M. Vahey, Democratic candidate for Governor, discussed the income tax. He declared that the Democratic Party in Massachusetts was unreservedly in favor of the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution of the United States permitting a tax upon incomes, and that the Republicans, although opposing it, feared it as an issue.

Eugene N. Foss, candidate for Lieutenant Governor, who left the Republican Party to join forces with the Democrats at the State Convention recently, explained at length his reasons for the change. He said he had not left the Republican Party so much as the party had left him and others who, like him, were seeking for the fulfillment of Republican Party pledges. Predicting that many Republicans would be won to the Democratic banner this Fall, Mr. Foss said:

"Four years ago on the platform of Tremont Temple, at a Republican Convention, Senator Lodge told me there was no room in his party for me, and that I better go over to the Democratic Party. I am on its ticket, and I think Brother Lodge will know it before this campaign is over."

Fusion Meetings.

To-night Harlem Republican Club, 23 West 124th Street. Reception for Messrs. Bannard, Prendergast, Mitchel, and other candidates.

To-morrow afternoon, Columbia University Campaign Club. Mass meeting for Mr. Bannard. To-morrow night, Republican County Committee ratification meeting in Cooper Union. Speakers: Mr. Bannard, Mr. Prendergast, Mr. Mitchel, Mr. McAneny, Judge Whitman, W. M. Ivins, L. Stimson, and W. M. Chandler. Congressman William S. Bennet will preside.

Tuesday night: Opening of Camp Bannard, 252 West 125th Street, formerly Camp Hughes. Opening of Camp Bannard at 149th Street and Third Avenue, in the Chandler Building.

condition it now is?" asked Mr. Stimson.

"That is not the question," answered the Controller, pounding on the platform with his fist. "The matter did not come to us until the Spring."

"And you did not feel it necessary to do anything until the request came to you?"

"There has not been a request for a dollar received by the Board of Estimate from the Public Service Commission or any other commission until the Spring. Get the facts right. I know what they are, and you fellows don't. That's all."

"Do you think your answer meets the question?" asked Mr. Stimson.

"Yes," shouted Controller Metz. "I have asked for six millions for schools, and I haven't got it. Why should I vote to put a million out without interest?"

"Have you got the school sites?" asked Mr. Stimson, suavely, seeking to lay a trap for Mr. Metz.

The Controller said he had. Asked how many, he said about eighty, picked out during the Low administration, but not more than a dozen were acquired last year, and no schoolhouses were built. Why, did not come out, for Mr. Metz refused to take the platform.

"No, no," answered he, shaking his head. "I just dropped in here. I heard you fellows talking. You ought to get the facts."

W. Cleveland Runyon, one of the investigators employed by the Hundred to prepare the exhibits, here advanced and gave battle to the Controller, while the audience around them moved back quickly. Mr. Runyon said that although the Board of Estimate had failed to appropriate the $6,000,000 asked for schoolhouses in the Summer, which was recommended by Mr. Metz, it had gone on authorizing the continued purchase of sites, notwithstanding the fact that the city already had bought and not used almost eighty.

"I know about the Flannery real estate syndicate!" shouted Mr. Runyon.

"I know all about it, too!" shouted the Controller, beating his breast and emphasizing the "I."

Then Mr. Metz made his exit, the audience standing up and vainly shouting to him to come back. It was then that Mr. Stimson deliberately added him to the purported horrible examples.

"We don't doubt that Mr. Metz is trying to do his duty," he said. "But he can't do much with a lot of yellow dogs voting against him. Nor could Gaynor do anything, if he wanted to, with a lot of Tammany yellow dogs working and voting against him. You have just had on this floor a more eloquent exhibition than we have anywhere on these walls. They are trying to convince you that if they elect a Gaynor Mayor they'll have a Gaynor Administration. They won't. Now, you know why."

MAYOR HITS RESEARCH BUREAU.

Accuses It of Circulating "Campaign Lies" in Exhibit in Union Square.

Mayor McClellan hit out yesterday at the budget hearings against the Bureau of Municipal Research, which he accused of having circulated a "campaign lie" in the anti-Tammany exhibition in Union Square. He was led to this statement by the declaration of Sanitary Superintendent Bensel that the tuberculosis situation in the city is distinctly improved.

Directors Bruere and Allen of the bureau sent a letter to the Mayor later in which they denied that the bureau had any connection with the exhibition referred to. They said:

"Neither the Bureau of Municipal Research nor its officers nor its employes have in any way co-operated with the Committee of One Hundred in planning, arranging for, or holding its exhibit. We are in no wise responsible for any of the statements there made except in so far as they are based on published reports of this bureau."

Moreover, they said that they had planned a budget exhibition on the same lines as that held last year in conjunction with the Allied Real Estate Interests, but as soon as they found that that method of exposition of facts was to be adopted this Winter by a political party for political purposes they gave up their idea.

Dr. Bensel was the first official to appear at the budget hearing in the morning. He asked for $[illegible], an increase of $1,188,[illegible] over last year. More than half this, he explained, was necessary to extend the warfare against tuberculosis and impure milk.

He said that the number of deaths from certain malignant diseases since the reorganization of the department had been reduced by from 75 to 95 per cent., but that in the case of tuberculosis the decrease was only 40 per cent.

"Is there any city better off in this respect than ours?" asked the Mayor.

"None," said Dr. Bensel.

"Is there not," went on the Mayor, "an exhibit now being shown by the Bureau of Municipal Research disguised under another name for partisan purposes, in which it is represented that women and children are dying of tuberculosis like flies?"

"That statement of conditions is untrue," answered the physician.

"It is in fact, then," said the Mayor, "a campaign lie."

The question of New York's milk supply then came up, and Dr. Bensel maintained that New York must manage its own inspection. Very little of the milk is examined up-State, and of that received from other States only a small quantity is examined under the Hepburn Pure Food law. He said he wanted the city to realize that it must look to itself for its own protection.

This brought back to the Mayor's mind the Bureau of Municipal Research.

"The difficulty with our worthy critics," he remarked, "is that they tell us we ought to improve the condition of the poor, and decrease the death rate, and at the same time spend less money. So they would have us eat our pie, and yet continue to have it."

Commissioner Butler of the Tenement House Department asked for an increase of $35,000 on last year's appropriation of $812,720. Mayor McClellan again came back to the Bureau of Municipal Research.

"Did not Dr. Allen of the bureau," he asked, "help you in getting ready last year's estimates, and did he not approve them?"

"Yes," replied the Commissioner.

"Yet he makes the statement now that, owing to inefficient tenement house supervision, women and children are dying like flies. Another campaign lie."

When Police Commissioner Baker's turn came it was apparent that he had decreed another departure from the régime of Commissioner Bingham.

He sought a $2,364,788 increase, but explained that $1,800,000 of this was accounted for by charging against the Police Department the cost of the men detailed to various offices of the Administration. Commissioner Bingham maintained that the pay of these men should be properly considered an expense of the departments for which they were really at work.

For increasing the pay of Sergeants, Lieutenants, and Captains, the Commissioner asked $250,000. This elicited from the Controller the opinion that these ranks of the force were not paid enough. Mr. Metz then wanted to know about the value of the police dogs.

"We find them useful in outlying districts," said the Commissioner. "They are very popular in Flatbush."

"Well, don't put them in my neighborhood," said Mr. Metz. "I get home too early."

President Lawson Purdy of the Tax Bureau asked for an increase of $22,740, and Commissioner Dooley of the Board of Election for an extra $212,650.

The hearings will be resumed this morning. The departments and the increases asked for are:

NAMED FOR ALDERMEN.

Republican Leader Brown and Percy Nagle Not to Run Again.

The Republican Aldermanic conventions and a number of the adjourned Democratic conventions were held last night and developed some interesting changes. Most notable was the retirement from the board of Percy Nagle, one of the most powerful of the Tammany district leaders, and B. W. B. Brown, the Republican floor leader.

James Henry Kehoe, a dry goods merchant at 72 Grand Street, was nominated for Nagle's seat. Cortlandt Nicoll, a lawyer, who lives at 18 East Fiftieth Street, was named in Brown's place.

Alderman Stormont, in the Twenty-first District, was replaced by Bryant Willard, a Deputy Attorney General. An interesting nomination by the Republicans was that of Thomas Rock, the ex-Hearst labor leader, in the Sixteenth District.

Alderman Schloss, in the Seventeenth District, was renominated despite the fact that he was the only Republican in the board who voted with the Tammany men on the Building Code.

August Bauer, who was nominated in the Twenty-ninth District by the Republicans, is a floorwalker in a department store.

The results of the Republican Conventions were:

Aldermen Walsh and Kavanagh were renominated by the Democrats. The conventions in the Thirty-first and Tenth Districts were adjourned to to-night.

JUDGE FALLON TURNED DOWN

Tammany Refuses to Renominate Him—To Run Independently.

Judge Fallon, President of the Board of Judges of the Municipal Court, was turned down last night at the Democratic Municipal Court Convention of the Eighth District, and John J. Dwyer, a lawyer of 46 East 126th Street, nominated in his place. Judge Fallon had been in the bad graces of the organization for some time. He declares he will run independently.

Leonard A. Snitkin, a lawyer of 46 St. Mark's Place, was nominated in the Second District, to succeed Judge Roesch, who was nominated for the City Court at the County Convention on Tuesday night.

The only other change was the nomination of Thomas F. Noonan, a lawyer of 816 West Twenty-ninth Street, to succeed Judge McLaughlin in the Third District.

These nominations were made:

Dist. Candidate.
1. *Wauhope Lynn.
*William F. Moore.
*John Hover.
2. *Benjamin Hoffman.
Leonard A. Snitkin.
3. Thomas F. Noman.
*Thomas E. Murray.
6. *Herman Joseph.
8. John J. Dwyer.
*Renominated.

The Republican Municipal Court Conventions will be held to-night.

Judge Fallon announced his independent candidacy last night in a letter sent to the voters of his district. In it he said:

> I have incurred the enmity of the group of men which dictate the policies of the organization, because I have always considered that the virtue of my office lay in serving the people rather than my political patrons.

The Citizens' Union and the seven Republican Municipal Court Judges have indorsed Judge Fallon.

Nominated for the Assembly.

In the adjourned Republican and Democratic District Conventions last night the nominees included men of every conceivable occupation. Prince A. Martin, candidate in the Ninth District, is a druggist. There is also a bricklayer, a jeweler, a cigarmaker, a lawyer, and a contractor. The Republicans named:

Dist.
1—James Sentleman.

The Democrats renominated Assemblyman Levy, and in the Twenty-ninth District neamed Milton J. Bach, a lawyer, of 9 East Ninety-second Street.

CITY BREVITIES.

The People's Line steamers C. W. Morse and Adirondack have discontinued their Sunday night trips between New York and Albany. For the rest of the season until the close of navigation on the Hudson they will run on weekdays only. On Sunday nights the steamers Trojan and Rensselaer will replace them.

A meeting of men interested in State canal transportation held yesterday at Kingston Hall, in South Street, adopted resolutions protesting against the proposed closing of the Erie, Oswego, Champlain, Cayuga, and Seneca and Black River canals on Nov. 15, demanding that the closing be delayed to Dec. 1.

TAFT AT GATEWAY OF THE YOSEMITE

Three Days' Trip of Sightseeing for the Executive to be Begun To-day.

WILL VISIT THE BIG TREES

President Misinformed Regarding Alaska, Says Delegate to Congress, Who Plans Campaign for Self-Government.

EL PORTAL, Cal., Oct. 6.—President Taft is to-night in this remote settlement at the foot of the Sierras and near the gateway of the Yosemite Valley. Clad in khaki riding breeches, soft shirt, khaki coat, boots, and cap, he will start to-morrow on a three days' trip of sightseeing. By stage and on foot he will visit the Mariposa big tree grove, will follow the roads and trails leading into the valley, and will walk about the floor of that park.

The visit to the big trees comes first in Mr. Taft's itinerary. Leaving by coach early to-morrow morning, he and his party will be taken to Wawona, at the edge of the grove. Mr. Taft will be driven through a tunnel cut through the base of one of the old trees, which is said to have been standing from 3,000 to 5,000 years. The forenoon of Friday will be given over to the big trees, the President spending Thursday night at the hotel in Wawona.

On Friday afternoon the President will enter the Park from one of the highest points. After a trip to all the show places of the upper levels, he will begin a descent to the floor, which is inclosed by almost perpendicular cliffs of stone more than 3,000 feet in height. It will be the President's first trip into the Yosemite.

Declines Cavalry Escort.

When the Park officials heard that the President was coming, they arranged to have a troop of United States Cavalry act as his escort for the day among the big trees and the two days in the valley. Mr. Taft was informed of the plans at San Francisco, and he asked at once that the escort be dispensed with. He is anxious that the trip through the Park shall be devoid of spectacular features and that his visit shall be relieved as much as possible of an official aspect.

John Muir, the naturalist and geologist, who is the recognized authority on all matters of the Yosemite, joined the President's party at San Francisco this morning, and will explain the wonders of the park and valley to Mr. Taft. Mr. Taft will be accompanied into the big tree grove and into the park by only members of his own party and a California delegation consisting of Gov. Gillett, Senator Flint, and Representatives Needham, McKinley, and Englebright.

The President left San Francisco early this morning. The ride into El Portal this afternoon furnished a foretaste of the scenery that the next three days have in store for him. Leaving Merced at 3:30 P. M. after an uneventful run down the San Joaquin Valley, the President's train began an eighty-mile run to the terminus of the Yosemite Valley Railroad at this place.

The President made several car-end speeches between San Francisco and Merced, and at the latter place was escorted to the Court House, where he made a brief address to a big throng.

One of the largest crowds of the day to greet Mr. Taft assembled at Modesto. The President made a brief speech there.

"We had a pretty strenuous day in San Francisco yesterday," he said, "and to-day I feel like a boy out of school after an examination. I don't want to do anything but smile and think that it is over.

"I am glad to see you and to look into your faces, and to know that you are all looking forward to accomplishing something and becoming even more well-to-do than you are now, for that is the American spirit that I find all over the country. And I am glad to know that it is true in California, as well as in Washington, and in Idaho, Montana, Colorado, and even in Utah, among the Mormons. It makes a man proud to belong to such a race, for we are a distinctive race."

Makes a Golf Speech.

At Merced another golf-stick was presented to the President. It was made of eucalyptus wood, gold mounted. The presentation called out a golf speech in which the President suggested that the unirrigated land of the West be turned into open golf links for the public.

"I am hopeful that out here you may have land not irrigated that you can devote to this game," he said. "There is this about it: When you first see the game, you will appreciate the tone of ridicule that generally attaches to a good-sized man chasing a quinine pill with a stick around a fied; but after you have driven two or three blows at that ball and found that, although it is considerably larger than a quinine pill, it is not large enough to hit, you realize the training of character that there is in it.

"I don't know any game that is so provocative of profanity as golf. I don't know any game that makes one so ashamed of his profanity. It is a game full of moments of self-abasement, with only the few moments of self-exaltation, and we Americans who are not celebrated for our modesty may find such a game excellent training."

While winding slowly up the canyon of the Merced River this evening the President's train bumped into a handcar which a section hand was trying to get off the track. The car was little damaged and no one was hurt.

Says Taft Was Misinformed.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Oct. 6.—"Mr. Taft has been misinformed regarding conditions in Alaska, deliberately, I believe."

James Wickersham, Delegate to Congress, thus expressed himself to-day regarding the President's address at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition last week, in which he said Alaska was not yet ready for a territorial form of government.

Mr. Wickersham declared he would work in Congress for Alaskan legislation just as though the President had not announced himself as opposed to self-government. He advised Alaskans to enter upon a "campaign of education."

CLEVELAND, Oct. 6.—That President Taft, in his opinion, is too honest to be President, was the declaration to-day of Charles H. Morgan, familiarly known as "Chet" Morgan, who assumed his duties as Deputy United States Marshal for the Northern Ohio District to-day. Morgan was appointed by the new Marshal, Henry Davis, at the personal request of President Taft, whose friend in Yale Morgan was. The job, in reality a stenographer's, pays only $75 a month.

"The President is the best man in the world," said Morgan. "He was the most popular man at Yale—the biggest, too, while I was there. He tipped the scales at 220 pounds. He never was much on larks, though he did go out with the boys. He refused to drink, however, never taking even a friendly glass. He was the most determined man on the subject of temperance I ever knew. I don't know much about politics. I know nothing, either, of Aldrich or Ballinger, but from what I know of Taft, I know he is working out the problems he finds, honestly, as he sees them. I sometimes think Taft is entirely too straightforward and too honest to be President of the United States."

ASKED SAINT TO SOLVE THEFT.

And He Did, Annie Redman Says, Having Recovered Stolen Goods.

Annie Redman, a telephone girl in the "Main" Brooklyn Exchange, came over to Manhattan a week ago last Tuesday to see the Hudson-Fulton parade, accompanied by her mother and aunt. Their apartment at 663 President Street, Brooklyn, was left entirely deserted.

While the three women were watching the historical pageant thieves got into the Redman flat and stole all Annie's trinkets as well as a brown alpaca suit, a gray walking suit, and a pink evening gown, of all of which she was particularly proud. The police could not find the burglars, and Annie brooded over her loss considerably.

Then, according to the story she told last night to the police of the Adams Street (Brooklyn) Police Station, she determined to go to her church, St. Boniface's, in Duffield Street, and ask St. Anthony of Padua to help her recover her clothes and jewelry. For the last week, according to her story, she has gone regularly to the church in the evening to pray. To honor the Saint she also burned forty-five candles.

As she came down the steps of the church last night she felt that her devotion had been rewarded when she saw her brown alpaca suit moving rapidly past her on the back of a pretty young woman of about her own height and build. Annie promptly chased her alpaca suit and its occupant into the arms of Policeman Meredith of the Adams Street Police Station, who arrested the wearer of the suit.

At the Adams Street Police Station the young woman who wore the brown alpaca suit said she was Catharine Tobin, 22 years old, of 122 Lawrence Street. Detectives went to that address and came back with the information that Annie Redman's walking suit, pink evening gown, and the ornaments and trinkets taken from her apartment were also there.

The Tobin woman said she had bought all the clothes and trinkets. Nevertheless she was locked up on a charge of larceny, and will be arraigned in court this morning.

"I'm sure St. Anthony made the woman pass the church just as I came out," Annie told the police.

DINE THE FRENCH ADMIRAL.

200 French Residents Entertain Him—He Asks Some to Luncheon.

Frenchmen resident in Greater New York gave a dinner at the Café Martin last night in honor of M. Jean Gaston Darboux, Permanent Secretary of the Academy of Science in Paris, who is the representative of the French Government to the Hudson-Fulton Celebration; Rear Admiral Jules Le Pord, and the officers of his squadron.

Two hundred and twenty-five guests sat down to the dinner, and M. Dietlin, President of the French Benevolent Society, acted as toastmaster. The toasts to the Presidents of the French Republic and the United States were given with musical honors, all the guests rising and singing the "Marseillaise" and "Star Spangled Banner" in French and English, respectively.

M. Darboux, Prof. George of the Wadleigh High School, M. Masson, attorney for the French Government; Prof. Cohn of Columbia University, and Admiral Le Pord were the speakers. The Admiral invited a number of the guests present to take luncheon with him to-day on the flagship.

Among those at the dinner were M. Lefevre Portalis, Chargé d'Affaires in Washington; M. Etienne Lanel, Consul General in New York; M. Goiron, Vice Consul; Paul Faguet, Lassere d'Aurencon, Mrs. Hertler's Return Causes Husband's Arrest for Another Marriage.

Mrs. Mary Hertler having appeared and confessed that she had only pretended to have drowned herself in September, 1908, and her husband, Frank Hertler, having married Justina Sandhoff in the meanwhile, he was arrested last night at his home, 227 East 149th Street, on the charge of bigamy, the complainant being Justina Sandhoff.

The Hertlers were married thirteen years ago, and have three children. A year ago, said Mrs. Hertler last night, having grown unhappy because she thought her husband was paying too much attention to Justina Sandhoff, a widow, she went to Rockaway Beach with two suits of clothes. She left one in the bathing pavilion and then disappeared. Her husband then married Justina Sandhoff.

She found employment in New Jersey, but finally became hungry to see her three children and wrote to neighbors in 149th Street to arrange to get the children to their house and then came over to see them. The Sandhoff woman heard about the plan, and on the reappearence of Mrs. Hertler she had Hertler arrested.

PEACE MESSAGE FROM JAPAN.

Chicago University's Professor Brings It from Premier Katsura.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Prof. E. D. Burton of the University of Chicago, recently returned from an extended visit in Japan, brought with him a personal message to the people of the United States from the Marquis Katsura, Prime Minister of Japan.

The message intrusted to Prof. Burton he made public to-day in an address to the Ways and Means Committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce. Marquis Katsura said to him:

"I want the American people to know that Japan is feeling very happy these days. The danger which so long threatened her in Russia is past. Japan desires peace with all the world, and especially has a most cordial feeling toward America, her nearest neighbor on the east, only two weeks from her across the Pacific."

LOWELL INSTALLED AS HARVARD'S CHIEF

HIS VIEW OF COLLEGE WORK

Deplores Lack of Esteem for Scholarship and Outlines His Idea of the Wisest Educational Policy.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 6.—Abbott Lawrence Lowell was inaugurated President of Harvard University to-day. In the presence of a great assemblage of educational, civil, military, and naval dignitaries, Prof. Lowell accepted the insignia of office, borne for forty years by Charles William Eliot, his immediate predecessor, and was proclaimed officially as Harvard's twenty-fourth President.

In his inaugural address President Lowell said that the most painful defect in the American college was the lack of esteem for excellence in scholarship. Pointing out the danger to the very life of the college because there is a lack of any accepted view of the ultimate object of a college education, he said the wise policy would be to devote a considerable portion of the time of the undergraduate course to some one subject, taking in addition a number of courses in wholly unrelated fields.

Differs From Eliot's Policies.

In outlining his policies President Lowell declared himself in favor of men learning one thing well and something of everything. He placed himself on the side of intercollegiate sports as the only striking occasion for the display of college solidarity. He stated his belief in the segregation of the freshmen and of the drawing together of the ties among upper classmen. And finally he differed radically from some of the policies of his immediate predecessor.

Yet the two great leaders—the old and the new—marched side by side in the afternoon to Memorial Hall, and Dr. Eliot commended President Lowell's policy of learning one thing well and something of everything as the key to the individualistic doctrine of the university. He indorsed many of his successor's statements as a great augury of the future and of the oneness of the cause of higher education.

> San Francisco, Oct. 6, 1909.
>
> To President A. Lawrence Lowell:
>
> I greatly regret my inability to convey personally my congratulations to you as President of Harvard University. I sincerely hope that you will enjoy a long and successful administration in the leadership of the movement of extending and widening the popular influence of the American universities. WILLIAM H. TAFT.

The exercises took place under the elms in the Harvard yard. On a temporary stage built against the ivy-covered walls of University Hall were seated nearly a thousand persons. In front, on white, eagle-topped staffs, were raised the seals of the eight next oldest American colleges—William and Mary, Yale, University of Pennsylvania, Princeton, Washington and Lee, Columbia, Brown, and Dartmouth.

Exercises of the Day.

Prayer—The Rev. W. W. Fenn, Dean of the Faculty of Divinity.
Oration in Latin—Lester Burton Struthers, senior.
Induction of the President by John D. Long, President of the Board of Overseers.
Response—The President.
Choral—Domine Salvum fac Praesidem Nostrum, (Gounod,) the alumni chorus.
Inaugural Address—The President.
Choral—"Great Is Jehova," (Schubert,) the alumni chorus.
Conferring of Honorary Degrees—The President.

The procession was of great length. Thomas N. Perkins of the Board of Overseers, Chief Marshal of the day, marched alone after the band. Following in line by twos came the President of the Alumni Association and the President of the university, the Fellows of the corporation, the Governor and Lieutenant Governor of the State, the Governor's military staff, and the dignitaries, civil, educational, military, and naval.

When Mr. Long approached the front of the stage, Prof. Lowell with head bared arose and faced him. Mr. Long in a brief address declared President Lowell to be the new President of the university and delivered to him the charter of the institution, the university seal, and the key symbolic of his stewardship.

President Lowell's Address.

"The college of the old type," said President Lowell, "possessed a solidarity which enabled it to fulfill its purpose well enough in its time. In course of time these simple methods were outgrown. New methods brought a divergence in the courses of study pursued by individual students, an intellectual isolation, which broke down the old solidarity, with the result that college life has shown a marked tendency to disintegrate both intellectually and socially.

"Progress means change, and every time of growth is a transitional era. But in a peculiar degree the present state of the American college bears the marks of a period of transition. This is seen, among other things, in the lack of any accepted view of the ultimate object of a college education. One theory, often broached under different forms, and more or less logically held, is that the main object of the college should be to prepare for a definite occupation; and that the subjects pursued should for the most part be such as will furnish the knowledge immediately useful for that end. But, if so, would it not be better to transfer all instruction of this kind to the professional schools, leaving a college course of diminished length, or perhaps abolishing it altogether? Such a plan is not wholly suited to our Republic, which cannot afford to lose the substantial, if intangible, benefits the Nation has derived from its colleges. Even persons who do not share this view of a professional aim for the college have often urged that in order to save college education in the conditions that confront us, it is necessary to reduce its length. May we not feel that the most vital measure for saving the college is not to shorten its duration, but to insure that it shall be worth saving?

Ideal College Training.

"A discussion of the ideal college training would appear to lead to the conclusion that the best type of liberal education in our complex modern world aims at producing men who know a little of everything and something well. Nor, if this be taken in a rational rather than an extreme sense, is it impossible to achieve within the limits of college life. That a student of ability can learn one subject well is shown by the experience of the honor schools of Oxford and Cambridge; but for us this alone would not be enough, because our preparatory schools do not give the same training as the English, and because the whole structure of the English society is very different from ours. For American students the wise policy would appear to be that of devoting a considerable portion of their time to some one subject, and taking in addition a number of general courses in wholly unrelated fields.

"The most painful defect in the American college at the present time is the lack of esteem for excellence in scholarship. We do not make our students feel the romance of scholarly exploration, nor do we encourage productive scholarship enough among those members of our Faculties who are capable thereof.

"A greater solidarity in college, more earnestness of purpose and intellectual enthusiasm would mean much for our Nation. When the young men shall see visions the dreams of old men will come true."

Honorary degrees were conferred on thirty-one persons, including Ambassador Bryce, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University; Prof. Frank Johnson Goodnow of Columbia, Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, President of Cornell University; Dr. William Berryman Scott, a delegate from Princeton University, and Dr. Francis Brown, President of the Union Theological Seminary.

Nearly all the delegates were entertained by the university at the luncheon. President Lowell gave a luncheon to a few personal friends.

The alumni meeting was held in Memorial Hall. President (emeritus) Eliot presided.

A telegram was received to-day by Hugo Reisinger of New York, who attended the inauguration exercises, announcing that Adolphus Busch of St. Louis had increased his fund of $100,000 for the Germanic Museum at Harvard to $150,000.

HARVARD HOUSE IS OPENED.

Ambassador Reid Accepts the Key in Behalf of University.

STRATFORD-ON-AVON, Oct. 6.—While guests on Sir Thomas Lipton's yacht some months ago, Marie Corelli, the novelist, proposed to Edward Morris of Chicago that the house built in Stratford in the sixteenth century by Alderman Thomas Rogers, father-in-law of John Harvard, in which Harvard lived, and which was then for sale and likely to be demolished, should be rescued and preserved as a shrine for American tourists.

Mr. Morris offered to purchase the place for Harvard University, which he has since done. He named Miss Corelli and Sir Thomas Lipton, with others, as Trustees. Miss Corelli supervised the restoration of the quaint building to its original state and organized the dedication ceremonies, which were held to-day, about the time that Abbott Lawrence Lowell was installed as President of Harvard University.

Whitelaw Reid, American Ambassador to Great Britain, accepted the house on behalf of Harvard in the presence of a large assembly of Americans and English. Later Miss Corelli entertained more than a hundred guests at luncheon in her residence near by. American flags and Harvard crimson decorated both places.

Miss Corelli presented Ambassador Reid with the key of the house in a metallic casket. The Ambassador in his speech declared the house "henceforth open as a free resort for all visiting sons of Harvard and a general rendezvous for all visiting Americans."

SAYS COOK WAS AFTER POLE.

Whaling Skipper Talked with Him About It Before He Left.

NEW BEDFORD, Oct. 6.—The whaling schooner A. T. Gifford of New London arrived here to-night from Hudson Bay, where, under command of Capt. George F. Comer, she has spent two years hunting for whales and valuable furs for her owner, F. N. Monjo of New York. Although as far north as 66:30, Capt. Comer did not hear that the north pole had been discovered until he arrived here to-night.

"While in Brooklyn, just before Dr. Cook started for the north," said Capt. Comer to-night, "I met him at the Arctic Club, and we had quite a long discussion about the possibility of reaching the pole. Dr. Cook was about to start for Gloucester, to purchase a schooner in which to go north. He did not actually tell me he was going to make a search for the pole, but as things have turned out, that was, no doubt, his intention.

"I remember distinctly Dr. Cook's telling me that as long as Peary was in the arctic field he would not search for the pole, and at that time, if you remember, there was some doubt about Peary's getting the money to finance an expedition. I imagine that was why Dr. Cook started at that time, thinking he would have the field to himself.

"I have great faith in anything Dr. Cook might say as to his achievement, and if he says he went to the pole I have no reason to doubt him."

After spending two years in Hudson Bay Capt. Comer is convinced that the whale field there is exhausted.

Auto Journal in New Hands.

The Horseless Age, the oldest journal devoted to automobile interests, published in English, changed hands yesterday, the property having been bought by Fred Wagner, the automobile race starter, and Charles B. Ames, the advertising manager of Motor. The policy of the magazine and its editorial staff, it was said last night, will remain practically the same, but the entire business management will be in the hands of Mr. Wagner and Mr. Ames. The magazine was started fourteen years ago.

PEARY TO GET ROYAL RECEPTION IN LONDON

framed at the dinner given last night at the Union League Club in honor of the officers and scientific staff of the arctic steamer Roosevelt, has been sent to Commander Peary:

> A few men interested in science, dining with the officers and scientific staff of the Roosevelt, regret your absence, but send you greetings and congratulations. As the scientific spirit is merely the desire to know something new, we welcome your companions as men of science and would gladly receive you if you were here.

The telegram was signed, among others, by C. F. Cox, President of the New York Academy of Sciences; Henry Fairfield Osborn, President of the American Museum of Natural History and of the New York Zoological Society; H. C. Bumpus, Director of the American Museum of Natural History, and E. O. Hovey, Secretary of the New York Academy of Sciences.

TO SHOW PEARY COLLECTION.

Natural History Museum to Place It on View in a Few Days.

Within the next few days New Yorkers will have an opportunity to see the collections that Commander Robert E. Peary made while he was in the polar region, the pelts of the animals the party killed and skinned, the skulls of men and beasts which the expedition found and brought back, and many of the implements, weapons, and instruments the party used.

Ever since the Roosevelt tied up to the Recreation Pier at the foot of East Twenty-fourth Street, several days ago, the work has proceeded of loading into trucks and taking to the American Museum of Natural History the collections made by Commander Peary and his associates, with such of the instruments as will not be needed for submission to scientific bodies with the records of his trip.

To these new collections have been added all the collections Peary made on previous expeditions, which were turned over to the Peary Arctic Club. By the courtesy of the club the old collections and the ones made during the last expedition have been loaned to the Museum of Natural History.

Director Bumpus of the museum is now busy arranging the collections in the new hall on the Ninth Avenue side of the museum. This is the largest hall in the building, and Mr. Bumpus says the Peary collections are so elaborate and many-sided that they fill the entire hall.

Among the most interesting exhibits in the collection will be the materials which Peary and his fellow-explorers dragged up from the ocean floor in their soundings. This material consists of sand, earth, and small pieces of rock. The lines with which the soundings were made will be shown, with the interesting apparatus at the end with which the bottom was dredged. The end of the now famous "lost sounding"—the piece of wire which was let down in close vicinity to the north pole, and which, failing to touch bottom, snapped off near the top—will probably also be exhibited. There will be animal skins and skulls and sledges aplenty.

Among the exhibits will be the icebound driftwood found in the pole's vicinity. Director Bumpus and his specialists are now at work studying these pieces of driftwood with a view of determining from what continent they drifted. Data along these lines might be interesting in revealing something about the ocean currents near the north pole, and would, at any rate, tell interesting tales of years and centuries of ocean drifting, Director Bumpus thinks. This analysis of the driftwood, as well as the drying out of the skins and pelts, which have been kept for months in casks, is what makes Director Bumpus not quite sure of the exact day on which New Hall, with its complete Peary expeditions collections to date, can be thrown open to the New York public. He said last night, however, that it would be within a week.

ST. LOUIS ACCLAIMS COOK.

Enthusiastic Crowd So Great That He Narrowly Escapes Injury.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6.—The appearance of Dr. Frederick A. Cook and Mrs. Cook in the midway of the Union Station here to-day turned a crowd of 10,000 orderly Centennial Week visitors into a mob, each member of which tried to pat the explorer on the back. The result was a crush in which the explorer, his wife, and the Reception Committee narrowly escaped personal injury.

The welcome to Dr. Cook began fifteen miles from the city. He stood on the rear platform of the train and bowed his acknowledgments. To-night he delivered his illustrated lecture at the Coliseum.

Dr. Cook made a further statement to-day in regard to the submission of his records to scientific bodies. He said:

"My original records will go first to the University of Copenhagen. I intend, however, to have duplicates made. These will be submitted to the American Geographical Society. I shall request the Copenhagen authorities to withhold their announcement until the American Society has had an opportunity to come to a conclusion. Then, when the scientists on both sides of the water are ready, the announcement will be made simultaneously in both places."

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 6.—Dr. Cook passed through this city to-day on his way to St. Louis, and in an interview on the train he said he had found no reason to withdraw the charge that Peary had sold his supplies, which he made in a letter to Capt. Bernier of the Canadian Government steamer Arctic, published to-day.

"I stand by that letter in its essential charge," said Dr. Cook, "but if I had it to write in my present frame of mind I would not word it as it was worded."

Aldermen to Honor Cook on Oct. 15.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook is to receive from the Aldermen the freedom of this city at 2:30 o'clock on the afternoon of Friday, Oct. 15. He notified them that either Oct. 15 or 16 would satisfy him for the reception, and the former date was selected.

The Piano Still IN FIRST PLACE in the estimation of the public as a means for recreation and enjoyment.

There is hardly a household to-day which does not contain a pianist, or at least a prospective one, to take up the study of the instrument; it's not a fad, as the history of the piano will show, and the fact that there are over twelve million pianos in use in this country to-day.

If your piano is unsatisfactory, let us take it in trade for one of the new style

PEASE PIANOS

We will allow you its full value and give you three years to pay the balance if desired.

The Pease Pianos are among the ten oldest makes, having been established in 1844, during which time over 80,000 have been made and sold; their durability is beyond question.

Our prices are moderate and we have many fine bargains in used pianos at $125.00 and up. Write for catalog.

FULTON SHOW COST MORE THAN $1,000,000

Commission Spent $934,000 Exclusive of $50,000 on Aldermen and State Officers.

HOTEL MEN PAID $100,000

Detailed Statement of Expenses Not Yet Ready, but Secretary Sackett Gives Out Chief Items.

Officers of the Hudson-Fulton Commission indignantly denied yesterday that any ground existed for the suspicion voiced in letters to the newspapers that the commission had been wasteful or extravagant in the use of the money intrusted to it, or that grafters had been permitted to obtain large shares of the commission's funds through careless or unbusiness-like methods.

For more than an hour Col. Henry W. Sackett, Secretary of the commission, went over the situation with reporters, explaining in detail how the commission audited the bills of each committee and general employe to ascertain how every dollar was expended and if its value was received.

Col. Sackett admitted, however, that neither he nor Mr. Ridder, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, nor any other officer could tell at this time just where the money had gone.

"We are not yet prepared to give a detailed statement of the expenditures," said Col. Sackett, "but you may rest assured that in a few weeks, at most, if the public will be patient, we shall show how every dollar went, and, furthermore, that not a dollar was wasted or lost in graft.

"Of course we realize that this question was raised by Dr. Oberholtzer of Philadelphia, who wanted the float contract which was awarded to Capt. Stoddard. We went over Capt. Stoddard's bills carefully and also the roll of his employes in the shop where the floats were made, and knew the salary of every man on the list."

Col. Sackett explained that the resources of the commission consisted of $475,000, appropriated by the State, of which $25,000 was reserved by law for the entertainment of the Legislature and the Governor during the celebration; $250,000 given by the city, $142,447 donated by popular subscription, and $92,500 given by the railroads. In addition the Hotel Men's Association gave $100,000, which it used for the entertainment of the guests of the commission, but which was not under the control of the commission.

Thus, the commission had a total of $934,447, exclusive of the $25,000 reserved for the use of the Legislature, out of which to pay the expenses of the celebration. These are some of the more important appropriations by the commission:

Office staff, $40,000; miscellaneous expenses, $35,000; Aeronautics Committee, $25,000; Art and Historical Exhibits Committee, $23,350; carnival and historical parades, $235,000; children's festivals, $50,000; illuminations, $83,000; lower Hudson celebration, $25,000; naval parades, $69,000; for public safety, $20,000, and for the use of the Reception Committee, $12,500.

Chairman Ridder of the Committee on Historical and Carnival Parades had already pointed out that the fifty-four historical floats had cost $350 each, a total of $18,900, and the fifty carnival floats $300 each, or $30,000. To this should be added $4,800, the 10 per cent. commission paid to Mr. Stoddard, who superintended the construction of the floats, having come here from New Orleans for that purpose, and his expenses of $3,750, making a grand total of $57,450 as the actual cost of the construction of the floats, against the charge credited to Dr. Oberholtzer that they cost $300,000.

It is frankly admitted that the two parades will cost nearly the whole of the $235,000 appropriated for them, but it is explained that more than $30,000 was spent in band hire and $20,000 for costumes, besides a large sum for the construction of the trucks for the floats. Moreover, the carnival parade is yet to be given on Saturday night in Brooklyn, with the additional cost for bands, trucks, and horses.

Col. Sackett was asked about the rapid increase in the salary of Edward Hagaman Hall, who, he said, was the only paid officer of the commission, from $250 a month three years ago to $1,000 a month last August. He said that about a year after the inception, in 1905, of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration idea, when Robert B. Roosevelt called together a number of members of historical societies at his house, Mr. Hall was engaged by the commission. About the first of the present year his salary was increased to $300 a month, and last Spring to $650 a month, the work of his office having then become heavy.

The third increase, this time to $1,000 a month came on Aug. 1, when the pressure of work of the Assistant Secretary became so heavy that he had to remain at the office nightly until after midnight and all day on Sundays to the serious detriment of his health. The increase was made in lieu of the employment of an assistant, because the board felt that it would be impossible to get an assistant who could take up Mr. Hall's work at that stage.

Col. Sackett was reminded that the stands erected by the Aldermanic Committee had cost considerably more than those built by the commission. The Secretary replied that he knew nothing about that. He said the Aldermanic Committee, of which "Little Tim" Sullivan was Chairman, had asked for and received a certain sum for its use, and that the commission did not have a statement as to how it was expended. That information would have to come from the Aldermanic Committee itself.

Col. Sackett declared in conclusion that the officers of the commission and a few others, just before the celebration, had bound themselves individually to pay $2,500 each, or $75,000 in all, if necessary, to meet the expenses of the celebration and make it a credit to the city.

Chairman Samuel Parsons of the Children's Festival Committee declared that all of the committee's appropriation of $50,000 had been expended, but he was unable as yet to give a detailed account of the expenses.

Queens Borough's turn in the Hudson-Fulton Celebration came last night. The celebration was by wards. In each there was music, speechmaking, and fireworks.

In the Hunter's Point section John Anderson Leach was chairman of the celebration, and the address was delivered by Henry C. Johnston.

Clarence Edwards was chairman of the Second Ward celebration, held in a vacant plot between Elmhurst and Corona. Addresses were made by the Rev. Father John J. O'Toole and the Rev. Jay Peck.

Magistrate Joseph Fitch was chairman of the Third Ward celebration, held in the Flushing Town Hall and on the plaze between the hall and the Flushing Park. L. Bradford Prince, ex-Governor of New Mexico, was the speaker.

LONG-RANGE FULTON SHOW.

The President Grant Illuminated in Midocean—Peace Advocate Aboard.

The Hamburg-American liner President Grant, on the voyage from Hamburg, which ended here yesterday, had her own Hudson-Fulton Celebration. The vessel was outlined, masts, funnels, and deck, with more than a thousand electric lights which, in honor of the events being celebrated ashore, were lighted every evening. At night the President Grant sailed the seas in lonesome grandeur.

There was another echo of the celebration when the vessel got in. Edwin D. Mead of the Peace Society, Boston, deplored that the army and navy had a share in the festivities. He declared that this was an era of peace, and the celebration should have been without "reminders of war." It was a shame, he said, that the Government's arms of war should have had a place in a programme which was honoring discoveries having to do only with commercial life.

Mr. Mead also said he met Dr. Cook in Denmark before the later sailed for America, and had faith in the explorer's statement that he had discovered the north pole.

DEFENDS BURGESS BALL.

Uniforms Got in Free, Major Woodward Says—Fire Water Not Too High.

Major James Otis Woodward of the Albany Burgess Corps gave an interview to reporters at the Democratic Club yesterday for the purpose of answering the widespread criticisms of the Burgesses' ball in the Metropolitan Opera House last Friday.

As to the fact that invited guests, including Capt. J. B. Murdock, commandant of the Brooklyn Navy Yard, and a commander of one of the German warships, had been charged $3 each for a hat check, Major Woodward said that there was a request on all the guests' tickets that they should come in uniform and enter the ballroom on the Thirty-ninth Street side. Capt. Murdock had come, unfortunately, in civilian dress and entered on the Broadway side, and was led to the check room, where he was mulcted. The other guests went in free, the commandant said.

In all, said Major Woodward, 407 hat checks were sold, and there were 5,000 guests at the ball. There was no charge made for women's hats, and one man could bring three or four ladies if he wished.

Concerning the statements made by some of the officers at the ball that the charges for drinks and flowers reminded them of the old dollar line to Boston, Major Woodward said that twelve girls dressed in Dutch costume sold boutonniers to those who wished them, and they were under the management of a restaurant which also supplied the refreshments. He denied that firewater was $1 a spoonful. According to the Major it cost actually a quarter straight, while the cooling highball was 30 cents. The total receipts were barely $2,000, he said, and he expected that the Burgess Corps would be about $3,000 out of pocket when the American Audit Company furnished the balance sheet to-day.

The Major is tall and sad-faced, who gives one the impression that he was born to be a professional chief mourner. One Lieutenant, J. G. Wilson, was present at the interview, and corroborated the Major's statements. The occupation of the Lieutenant in private life was not made known. Both the commandant and his Lieutenant stated that there were 300 members in the corps, and that Andrew Carnegie had been a member for nine years, and August Belmont, who paid $200 for a box at the ball, had been a member for seven years. There were no honorary members. Active members pay $12 in dues annually, it was said.

In spite of the denials of Major Woodward, there are people in this city who speak of him in unkind terms, and claim that as a past grand master of the Ancient Order of Promisers he has no equal. The Major, these say, is the Albany Burgess Corps. The chief part of his work, it is said, it in organizing excursions and trying to send the ancient body to all parts of the world. Four years ago Major Woodward went to a tourist agent in New York and spoke in such glowing terms of the desire of the Burgess Corps to go abroad in state, like the Boston Artillery Company, that the tourist man got an option on the White Star liner Arabic and laid out a programme under the Major's direction, which included receptions by the crowned heads of Europe to the corps. The general description of the tour made a patent medicine pamphlet look like conservative literature. The tour was to have commenced, the prospectus said, with a review of the corps at Windsor Castle by King Edward.

The commandant promised the tourist man that 300 or more of the Burgesses and their friends would accept, but for some reason they did not respond. The tourist agent, in speaking of the event yesterday, turned over the stubs of his check book and exclaimed: "Abbedan," meaning in Arabic "never again."

MURDER INDICTMENT KILLED.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 6.—The indictment for murder found against William Ely Westervelt of Teaneck, who shot and killed his wife on June 16, was quashed to-day at a special session of the Supreme Court of the State, on the ground that the Grand Jury which indicted Westervelt had been reassembled illegally. Westervelt is in jail at Hackensack, where it is said he is trying to starve himself to death before his trial. He will be reindicted by the October Grand Jury.

Westervelt was arrested several days after the shooting of his wife. She was killed with a charge of buckshot, which almost severed her neck, and Westervelt, running out into the highway in his night clothes, aroused all his neighbors, declaring that the shooting was accidental, a shotgun having exploded while he was showing it to his wife.

The April Grand Jury had been dismissed, but Supreme Court Justice Parker reassembled it for the purpose of indicting Westervelt. Ex-Prosecutor P. W. Stagg, acting for Westervelt, obtained a writ, which was argued here to-day, with the result that the indictment was quashed.

ELLIOTT IN ANOTHER WRECK.

Autoist Comes to Grief as He Is Speeding from Policeman.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., Oct. 6.—Stewart H. Elliott of Norwalk, who a few years ago achieved a reputation as an amateur driver of racing automobiles, smashed one of his big touring cars at Mianus yesterday while speeding away from a Greenwich policeman who was following him in an automobile. Elliott met a wagon when rounding a sharp curve at high speed. When he turned to avoid the wagon his car skidded and crashed into a ledge of rock. Mr. Elliott and four men who were with him were thrown out, and all were severely bruised. They were arrested, and Mr. Elliott was held under bond for speeding.

Mr. Elliott has figured in several automobile accidents, one of which was tragic. He was racing one day with a friend on Long Island. His friend's wife was in the car with Elliott. His car was wrecked and the woman was hurt so badly that she died.

SNOW REMOVAL BIDS IN.

Seven Firms Compete for Contracts with the City.

Bids for the contracts for snow removal were opened yesterday at the Department of Street Cleaning. Those bidding for the Manhattan contract were Thomas Crimmins, W. J. Fitzgerald, William Bradley, and the Canavan Brothers. In Brooklyn Newman & Holmes, C. De Marco, and the Donlon Contracting Company competed for the work.

Bids were made both on the principle of removal by area and by cubic yard measurement of the loads shifted. It was impossible yesterday to tell which of the firms put in the lowest bid, as a good deal of computation is necessary to make the meaning of the bids clear, but it is understood that Thomas Crimmins and Newman & Holmes offered to do the work at the most reasonable sum in the two boroughs.

Bingham Appeals in Gaynor Suit.

Ex-Police Commissioner Bingham filed notice with the County Clerk yesterday that he would take an appeal from Supreme Court Justice Brady's decision of last week granting leave to counsel for Justice William J. Gaynor, Democratic candidate for Mayor, to strike out certain parts of the complaint in Gen. Bingham's suit against the Justice for $100,000 for libel. The matter referred to the military record of Gen. Bingham and to the high standing of Justice Gaynor.

Mayor McClellan in a New City Home.

Mayor McClellan has moved his town house from Washington Square North to an apartment at 37 Madison Avenue, in the Madison Square Apartments. It is understood that he has done so on the grounds that it was impossible to stay after Oct. 1 in the Washington Square house he has rented for so long without signing a long lease.

FRENCH WARSHIPS STOCK UP WITH HOGS

Eighteen Squealers to a Vessel, So the Sailors May Have Fresh Pork on the Voyage Home.

GEESE AND CHICKENS, TOO

Fastidious French Sailors Must Have Their Home Comforts—Inflexible Off for a Record?

A barge load of baled hay and fifty-four fat, squealing Kentucky hogs—eighteen of the latter to a battleship—were received aboard the French Squadron yesterday afternoon. The hay was for the live stock already on the ship. The hogs, it was explained, were bought to preclude the possibility of the three big battleships, Justice, Verite, and Liberte, under Rear Admiral Le Pord, running short of fresh pork on the voyage across the Atlantic, which starts to-morrow morning.

French sailors must have their fresh meat, so whenever a warship flying the tricolor starts on a long voyage the livestock necessary to the contentment of the men behind the guns is provided. When the Frenchmen now in New York sailed from France about three weeks ago the coops aboard the battleships were full of chickens and fat geese, and the animal pens were liberally stocked with live pork and mutton.

Several days ago the supply of live stock was consumed, and the commissary officers went ashore to make arrangements for restocking. Yesterday the orders were filled, and about 4 P. M. a barge laden with the choice specimens of famed American hog came alongside the warships and restocked them.

It has been reported that the French men-of-war also carry cows. While it was admitted yesterday, however, that fresh milk is a luxury much appreciated by the French bluejacket, it was said that the ships now here are not equipped for dairy purposes, so there were no cows aboard when the squadron sailed for New York. The proper supply of chickens and geese for consumption on the ocean will be taken aboard the French ships to-day.

On the ships yesterday all was bustle preparatory to sailing. It was said that the ships will sail either late to-morrow afternoon or early Saturday morning. Both officers and men said they had had a glorious time in New York, and that everybody had treated them splendidly. Out of 2,500 sailors in the squadron only three were unaccounted for yesterday afternoon, and this erring trio is expected to show up before sailing time.

The British squadron was coaling yesterday, also preparatory to bidding farewell to New York. The vessels will finish the job to-day, and to-morrow the bluejackets will clean ship. Saturday the Britishers sail for home. It is believed that on the voyage home the flagship Inflexible will try to make a record across the Atlantic. Going at full speed the Inflexible should be able to make the passage to England in less than five days. No visitors were admitted on the British ships yesterday.

Capt. Pritchard of the Cunard liner Mauretania was asked yesterday just before his vessel sailed if he thought the Inflexible would break the Mauretania's record eastward on her trip home.

"She won't be able to do it," he said. "We are about two knots faster than the Inflexible, and are cutting down records every voyage. On our next trip westward I expect to clip more time off our own record."

The Inflexible, like the other British warships, has her bunkers filled with British coal. It came here on a collier a few days ago.

The German and Italian ships are also preparing to sail. To-day the work of filling their coal bunkers will begin. Visitors with acquaintances on board were allowed to visit the Italian cruisers yesterday, and a big crowd of the city's Italian residents took advantage of the privilege.

Grand Admiral Von Koester of the German squadron left New York yesterday on a trip to Niagara Falls. Previous to his departure the Grand Admiral entertained twenty-four guests at luncheon in the new Laurel Room of the Hotel Astor. The decorations consisted of laurel wreaths and chrysanthemums. Toats were drunk to the German Emperor and the President of the United States, and informal remarks were made by some of the guests.

Among those present were Major Gen. and Mrs. Leonard Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Ridder, Gen. and Mrs. Stewart L. Woodford, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Seaton Schroeder, Gen. and Mrs. Howard Carroll, Capt. and Mrs. J. B. Murdock, Mr. and Mrs. W. Knauth, Consul General Franksen, and Aid. Lieut. Poteet, and Capts. Mauve, Englehardt, and Hopmann of the German warships.

There was no news of consequence on board the American ships, of which only three, the Connecticut, Kansas, and Vermont, remain in the Hudson. These three sail on Saturday.

Special Clinic for Fleet Surgeons.

The hundred surgeons on the foreign warships which are still in port for the Hudson-Fulton Celebration have been invited to attend a specimen "surgical clinic" at Roosevelt Hospital this afternoon at 3 o'clock. The foreign naval surgeons will see about a dozen emergency operations performed under the direction of Dr. George E. Brewer, the hospital's head surgeon, by members of the hospital's staff. All the operations will take place in the Syms Operating Theatre. Many prominent physicians of the city have also been invited.

Reception to Foreign Officers To-day.

Although there are a number of committee reports to be considered at to-day's meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, an effort will be made to have as much business as possible adjourned to the special meeting which is to be held Oct. 14, in order to allow as much time as possible for the exchange of courtesies with the commanding officers of the visiting fleets who are to be the guests of the Chamber. At next week's meeting the Chamber will entertain the visiting Commissioners representing the principal Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade of Japan. The annual dinner of the Chamber will be held on Nov. 18.

INDICTED FOR CHILD MURDER.

Rizzo Formally Arraigned for Killing Theresa Procopio and F. Infusino.

UTICA, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Theodore Rizzo, the man whom the police of Utica accuse of murdering Theresa Procopio and Freddy Infusino and attempting to kill Fannie Infusino, after kidnapping the three little children on the night of Sept. 12, was arraigned before Justice Rogers in the Supreme Court this afternoon to answer to three indictments handed up by the Grand Jury to-day, two for murder, first degree, and one for murderous assault.

Rizzo was closely guarded by a squad of police officers, and was unshackled only while the arraignment was taking place. He displayed but little interest in the proceedings and gave no indication of a desire to get away.

The prisoner pleaded not guilty to the indictments, and said he had no money to secure counsel. Three different attorneys, who were asked by the court if they would consent to be assigned to his defense, refused point blank. A fourth wanted time to consider it. Rizzo was remanded to jail to await his trial, which will undoubtedly take place this month.

CABMAN WHO SUES LOSES.

Wanted $2,000 for False Arrest Because Diamond Pin Vanished.

The jury in the suit of Moses Feigenbaum, a cab driver, to recover $2,000 for wrongful arrest from Brutus Turner of Richmond, Va., reported yesterday to Judge Lynch, in the City Court, that it was unable to agree upon a verdict.

The plaintiff sued Turner, charging that he had had him arrested on a charge of stealing a diamond pin valued at $400. Feigenbaum was arraigned on this charge last June, and was discharged.

The testimony showed that on June 19, 1908, Turner, with two young women, one of whom was his son's fiancée, went from the Café Liberty to 135th Street and Lenox Avenue in Feigenbaum's cab. Turner says that he discovered that his $400 diamond scarfpin was missing when he left the cab. He denied that he had caused Feigenbaum's arrest, and said he had merely notified the police that the pin was missing.

FINAL GOULD DECREE SIGNED.

Under It the Former Katherine Clemmons Gets $36,000 a Year.

Supreme Court Justice Dowling signed yesterday the final decree in the suit for separation brought by Mrs. Katherine Clemmons Gould against Howard Gould in June last. Under the decree Mrs. Gould will receive alimony of $36,000 a year. A balance of $3,686 costs in prosecuting the action is directed to be paid by Mr. Gould.

The decree provides that $3,000 a month be paid Mrs. Gould during her lifetime, either upon her order or that of her attorney of record, Clarence J. Shearn, but that these amounts shall not be in lieu of her dower right in her husband's real estate.

Pretended to be a Deserter to Get Food

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 6.—Samuel Upp, who surrendered to the police last Saturday as a sailor who had deserted from the navy, was declared a fraud by naval officers to-day. He was released from the jail after a reprimand from the Judge. The policeman who locked up the supposed sailor fed him on chicken, believing that he would get a large reward from the Government. To-day Upp had prison fare. The naval men said Upp had played the same trick before.

NO GENERAL HOLIDAY ON COLUMBUS DAY

STATUS OF MATURING PAPER

Generally Agreed That Payments Due on Columbus Day Need Not Be Met Until Wednesday.

There is going to be an odd situation in town next Tuesday, which is the newly made legal holiday known as Columbus Day. The Legislature last year created the holiday after an agitation that came principally from the Italian societies. Now Columbus Day is at hand without the business community having made up its mind whether it really wants to celebrate or not. As a result it is probable that the banks and trust companies and the Stock Exchange will all close, whereas business houses, wholesale and retail, will keep open during a good part of the day.

Inquiry downtown yesterday developed the fact that most financial and business men do not seem to care whether Columbus was born on Oct. 12 or not. Wall Street is never averse to a holiday, and it didn't take much consideration for the banks and trust companies and the authorities of the Stock Exchange to decide that Tuesday would be a good time to close. There is, moreover, the question to be considered in the matter of keeping open, as to the standing of financial transactions. No bank or trust company would undertake to make loans under the circumstances, even if its doors remained open as usual.

The question of maturing paper has been raised by some bankers. Inasmuch as the holiday dates only from last Winter loans made nine months or twelve months ago were outstanding before the law was passed creating Columbus Day. The suggestion was made yesterday that payment might be enforced on the holiday on any paper dated Oct. 12, 1908. In support of this contention it was argued that the Legislature had no power to pass a law impairing existing contracts, and that a loan contract providing for payment on a certain day was impaired unless the payment was made as scheduled.

Among National banks, which handle the bulk of such paper, the opinion was expressed uniformly, however, that payment could not be insisted upon on the new holiday, and the banks apparently do not intend to pay any attention to this question.

Inquiry among business houses yesterday indicated that while a definite decision had not been reached by the bulk of the trade in either the wholesale or the retail world, the houses would keep open during a good part of the day. No concern was expressed as to maturing paper, and the view was taken in several quarters that paper maturing on Oct. 12 would stand over until the 13th without difficulty.

THREE BIGLOW WILLS FILED.

Documents Much Alike, Dividing the Estate Among Relatives.

Three wills of Lucius H. Biglow of 340 West End Avenue, President of the Metropolitan Realty Company and Director in a dozen other concerns, who died a short time ago, were filed with the Surrogate yesterday by a representative of the Federal Safe Deposit Company. They bear the dates of Jan. 17 and 20 and May 8, 1906. In a general way they are similar.

Under the document made in May his wife, Anna Graham Biglow, gets $25,000, and his sister, Adsa Bradbury Sargent, wife of Charles Sargent, receives $15,000. He directs the executors to retain $50,000 to meet any debts against his estate. The residue goes to his wife and their children, William, Elsie, Ray, and Herbert, Elizabeth and Lucuis H. Biglow, Jr., and May Thomas.

Pictures in The Times Next Sunday

ONE of the most impressive of the many features of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration was the wonderful nightly illumination. The Picture Section of The Times next Sunday will contain two full pages of night photographs of these illuminations, remarkable work by the camera and splendidly reproduced. There will also be a full page depicting the great military parade, while another page will show the flights of Wilbur Wright. There will be many other attractive pages in the Picture Section next Sunday. One of these will be what might be called an American Beauty page. It will contain reproductions of photographs of charming types from several cities. Other pages will carry photographs of city nominees, of English girls playing at war, of men, and of current events—in all, pictures of widest range of interest.

TREASURER ENDS LIFE IN HIS OFFICE

Nathaniel Ross, Assistant Treasurer of the New Mexico Development Company, hurried back late yesterday afternoon to the company's headquarters, on the thirteenth floor of the office building at 68 William Street. He wanted to discuss with his father, Capt. Francis H. Ross, U. S. A., (retired,) Treasurer of the company, the result of a conference he had just had with several mechanical engineers.

As he stepped out of the elevator he found the corridor leading to the company's offices crowded with policemen and startled tenants of the building. The door leading into the offices was locked and guarded so carefully from the inside that young Ross had difficulty in gaining admission. When he finally succeeded in pushing his way in, before the police or stenographers could explain what had happened, he saw his father's body, with a bullet wound in the right temple, lying on the floor.

Capt. Ross, the son then learned, had spent the afternoon at his desk, dictating correspondence to two stenographers, Daisy Buckland and Lottie Holmans. After taking the correspondence, both girls went to the outer office to transcribe it, leaving Capt. Ross alone.

At about 4 o'clock the stenographers heard a pistol shot in the Captain's private office. They paused at his door long enough to see him, a revolver in his hand, lying dead in front of the safe. Then they ran screaming down the corridor. Their cries attracted the attention of the tenants in other offices.

Murray Smith, a clerk in an insurance office, telephoned to the Fulton Street Police Station. When Coroners' Physician Lehane arrived the elevator operator was so excited that he started to drop his car down the shaft while the Coroners' physician was half in and half out of it. Dr. Lehane was thrown back into the car and nearly had his leg caught between the edge of the landing and the car. He said subsequently he would prefer charges of criminal negligence against the operator.

According to the dead man's son, Capt. Ross was 65 years old. He was a graduate of West Point, served through the Civil war, and came to this city from San Francisco when the New Mexico Development Company was organized, thirteen years ago. Until about two years ago, Capt. Ross, his wife, and four children lived together at 194 Riverside Drive. Then Mrs. Ross died, and Capt. Ross lived alone with one daughter at the Riverside address. He became despondent after his wife's death, according to his son. Although he had never threatened suicide and left no letters explaining his act, it was believed that grief over the loss of his wife led to the self shooting.

The New Mexico Development Company is a West Virginia corporation. Its other officers are C. D. Simpson and C. B. Eddy.

Immediately after Capt. Ross's suicide, a hasty examination was made of his books, and the company subsequently issued a statement that his accounts were in good condition.

The body was removed to the Riverside Drive address.

SAY BOY KILLED PLAYMATE.

He Is Arraigned in Court, but Denies Striking a Blow.

Accused of having caused the death of one of his playmates, fifteen-year-old Max Mayer of 108 Amboy Street, Brooklyn, was arraigned yesterday in the Children's Court, that borough. The dead boy was Joseph Goodman, 15 years old, of 117 Ames Street.

Young Goodman was playing with Max and other boys at Pitkin Avenue and Ames Street on Sunday, when he received a blow in the stomach. He died from shock in a short time.

The Mayer boy says the lads were playing tag, when young Goodman ran [illegible] him and fell. He did not strike him he asserts. Justice Ryan after hearing the boy's story adjourned the case.

CREW OF HALF MOON IN CATSKILL HAUNT

CELEBRATION UP THE RIVER

Nyack Committee, Determined Not to be Left Out, Hires Tug and Carries Off Floats.

Special to The New York Times.

CATSKILL, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Lieut. Lam of the Royal Dutch Navy, impersonating Henry Hudson, and his crew of the Half Moon, which to-night swings at anchor in the river, were taken to the top of North Mountain, fifteen miles from here to-day. At an elevation of 2,400 feet, with the broad valley of the Hudson stretched out before them, they unfurled the flag of The Netherlands, gave three cheers, and with bared heads sang the Holland National anthem.

The trip was planned by the Holland Society of New York in honor of the officers and men of the Half Moon as a feature of the day's Hudson-Fulton Celebration. The party that made its way to the mountain top included the Rev. Charles S. Bullock, who is impersonating Robert Fulton; Capt. Davis of the Clermont, several members of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission, and a number of visiting naval officers. An incline railway carried the party to the crest of the mountain, the view of the valley below gradually unfolding as the car climbed higher and higher, until the river could be seen in the distance bearing the flotilla that has escorted the Half Moon and Clermont to Catskill.

The members of the Half Moon's crew were the first to reach the ledge. Several carved their initials on the rocks with their sheath knives, and all listened as the Rev. Henry Sluyter, pastor of the First Dutch Reformed Church of Coxsackie, related in their native tongue the legend of Rip Van Winkle; how he had slumbered for twenty years in the mountains and had been awakened by the noise of bowling made by Henry Hudson's crew that ascended the river 300 years ago. The tale was new to the sailors, and when Mr. Sluyter had finished one of them inquired incredulously:

"And do you really expect us to believe that?"

In vari-colored "kiels," as their suits patterned after those worn by the original Half Moon crew are called, the sailors attracted much attention ashore. They are picked from the Dutch Navy especially for their short stature. All of Hudson's crew were men but little more than four feet in height, according to tradition, and as the bunks in the Half Moon are very short, the present crew have to curl up in them to get a night's rest.

The trip of the Half Moon and the Clermont up the river from Kingston to-day, with the flotilla of torpedo boats and revenue cutters accompanying them, was an eventful one. The Half Moon was towed by the old steamer Norwich, but the Clermont paddled along under her own steam, with a square sail set forward.

At Cruger's Island, where Henry Hudson stopped on his journey to the north to trade with the Indians, a party of red men in canoes put out from shore to-day bearing gifts. To Lieut. Lam they presented a peace pipe, and to Mr. Bullock on the Clermont they gave a dozen ears of corn grown on the island. This corn is to be distributed later in various sections of the country and planted, the proceeds of the crops when sold to go to one of the sailors' homes in New York City. One of the Indians gave Mr. Bullock a shell necklace.

Further along the Clermont left the line of parade and stopped at Clermont Dock, in front of the Livingston Manor, where John Henry Livingston, the great-grandson of Chancellor Livingston, greeted the party. The Livingstons contributed a considerable sum toward building the original Clermont, and it was there that the engagement of Robert Fulton and Miss Livingston was announced.

While exercises in connection with the Hudson-Fulton Celebration were being held here to-day the residents of Nyack had a jubilee of their own, some of which was not on the programme. The Nyack committee understood that the twenty-three floats which were used at Tarrytown yesterday were to be taken to Nyack to-day. Great preparations were made, and yesterday the committee went to Tarrytown to see about getting the floats. Some misunderstanding arose, and the committeemen say they were told that Nyack was to have no floats. After a spirited discussion they hired a tug and barges, worked all night, and succeeded in loading six of the floats on the barges. They got the floats to Nyack in time for the Rockland County Day celebration to-day.

On account of a fog the Hudson-Fulton flotilla did not arrive at Catskill until 12 o'clock, one hour later than scheduled time. The fleet came to anchor off the Catskill docks. Gov. Hughes came ashore in a launch and was driven to the Court House, where he delivered a short address. Then there was a luncheon for the guests.

At 2 o'clock the parade was formed. It consisted of three companies of the Tenth Regiment, the Morris Guards of Atlantic City, N. J.; fourteen fire companies, the Red Men, members of the Grand Army of the Republic, floats, and decorated automobiles and carriages.

In the afternoon a reception was held at the armory for Gov. Hughes. In the evening there was a display of fireworks on the shores of the river. The programme of the day was ended with a military ball at the armory.

The floats, which were brought from New York to Catskill, were so large they could not be handled in the streets. They were not unloaded, but were open for inspection on the barges.

The annual review of the Police, Fire, and other city departments at Yonkers took place to-day in connection with the Hudson-Fulton and Old Home Week Celebration. About 2,500 men were in line. The parade was led by Col. Matt H. Ellis, Grand Marshal.

The banquet of the committee in charge of the celebration was held this evening. Mayor N. A. Warren was toastmaster and the speakers included Herman Ridder, Vice President of the Hudson-Fulton Commission; Job Hedges of New York, and Justices Keogh and Tompkins of the Supreme Court.

The last three days of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration will be centred in the northern section of the Hudson Valley. The flotilla will be received by the residents of Hudson early to-morrow morning. Later in the day a historical parade will be held in Hudson. Yonkers will hear the singing societies in the evening, while earlier in the day there are to be parades at Ossining and Croton-on-the-Hudson, and, on the west side of the river, at Haverstraw and Stony Point. The celebration also opens at Albany to-day with children's exercises, aquatic sports, an automobile parade in the afternoon, and a pageant arranged by the fraternal organizations, which will be held at night.

The big day of the celebration at the capital will be Friday, when the Half Moon and the Clermont will arrive. They will be met down the river by an escort. The exercises on land will take place at Riverside Park, with Gov. Hughes as the principal speaker, preceded by Mayor Snyder. The parade of historical floats will follow later in the afternoon, and at night fireworks will be displayed from Beaver Park.

On Saturday, the last day of the celebration, the scene of action will cover the Hudson Valley from New York to Troy. In the evening Brooklyn will see the carnival parade which took place in Manhattan last Saturday night, while Troy, the head of navigation on the river, will greet the Half Moon and the Clermont.

At Yonkers the day will be celebrated with aquatic and field sports, followed in the evening by a display of fireworks. The closing of the day and with it the fortnight's celebration, will be signalized by the lighting of beacon fires, visible one from the other, from Staten Island to the hills above Troy.

RULING ON TARIFF LAW.

Treasury Department Restricts Classes of Imported Articles to be Marked.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Declaring that only such articles imported into this country as are readily susceptible of marking in one of the ways provided for should be required to be so marked, the Treasury Department in a ruling to-day holds that fragile articles like lamp shades and fixtures, small steel and enamel ware, bottle caps, and surgical instruments need not be marked to indicate the country of their origin.

The ruling was in response to a letter from William Loeb, Jr., Collector at the Port of New York, as to the construction to be placed upon the words, "Capable of being marked, &c., without injury," as used in the new Tariff act. While such articles as glass and metal products are easily susceptible of being labeled without injury, and even capable of being permanently marked without injury by separate processes of manufacture, it is pointed out out that they could be so marked only at a cost greatly disproportionate to the original cost of such articles.

It is further held that such articles as are stamped or branded, like paper, pens, and crockery, and similar articles capable of being so marked without injury, should be so stamped or branded, while articles such as are customarily labeled, like liquors in bottles, canned fruits, &c., should be so labeled.

The department's ruling also says that "if the market value of an article would be materially decreased by its being marked in a conspicuous place, regardless of the character of such marks, the same should be considered as not capable of being marked without injury."

NO LIGHT ON CRANE'S RECALL.

Denied in Washington That New York Speech Caused Sudden Summons.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Charles R. Crane, the new American Minister to China, is expected to reach Washington on Saturday in response to the summons from Secretary of State Knox, recalling him from San Francisco on the eve of his sailing for his post. At the State Department to-day ignorance of the cause of his recall at this time is still asserted, though it was denied that Mr. Crane's speech last month in New York had anything to do with it.

It was pointed out that if there were any question of Mr. Crane's definite recall from his mission, the President would have been aware of this, and Mr. Crane would have been allowed to see the President when he was in San Francisco. So far, however, both the President and Mr. Crane have denied all knowledge of Mr. Knox's idea in summoning him across the continent.

200,000 ITALIANS HONOR VERRAZZANO

25,000 MARCH DOWN TOWN

Veteran Knights of Garibaldi Arouse Great Enthusiasm All the Way to Battery Park.

About 25,000 marching Italians and some 200,000 of their cheering countrymen crowding both sides of Fifth Avenue and Broadway from Twenty-third Street to the sea wall of Battery Park celebrated their own enthusiastic Italian day of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration yesterday afternoon, and when the exercises were over a heroic, rugged bronze figure of Giovanni da Verrazzano stood looking out over the sunlit bay and the broad, traffic-strewn mouth of the river which, according to some, he discovered in 1524, almost 100 years before the man who explored it and whose name it bears.

The statue, which was presented to the city by the Italians of New York through the efforts of Chevalier Charles Barsotti, editor of Il Progresso Italo-Americano, was dedicated to voice the belief of the Italian citizens of New York that their navigator also deserves a share of the honor in these fête days of the Hudson River.

At its unveiling was the greater part of the local Italian colony, together with foreign notables from the visiting warships, diplomatic officials, representing the Italian and French Governments, and officials of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Committee and the City of New York.

The parade, which consisted of 250 Italian societies of the city, started from Madison Square Park shortly after 1 o'clock, following a squad of mounted police under Inspector Boettler, and Grand Marshal James E. Marsh of the Executive Committee. Behind him rode Chevalier Barsotti, with fifty other members of the committee.

Owing to the refusal of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company to discontinue the car service along Broadway during the parade hours, the line of march, which had at first been planned to extend straight through Broadway to the Battery, was diverted down Fifth Avenue instead, turning into Fourth Street below Washington Arch, and thereafter following the right side of Broadway to Battery Park. The trolley service continued uninterrupted.

Parade Route Thronged.

All along the line of march in Fifth Avenue and Broadway were crowded enthusiastic Italian celebrants in rows of three deep, well kept back by the 1,000 policemen detailed to the parade route. Everywhere beneath the flags and decorations that still drooped as reminders of the Hudson-Fulton jubilee week, fluttered and waved small flags and streamers of the red, white, and green of Italy, mingled with the red, white, and blue of the new homeland.

It was distinctly Italian Day. Even the children, who ordinarily speak among themselves and answer their elders in English, forgetting the Italian tongue, came proudly back to the softer speech of their parents, and chattered joyfully in it.

Following the mounted men rode wheelmen of some twenty bicycle clubs of Brooklyn, Harlem, and the Bronx, wearing intertwined in the spokes and frames of their wheels the Italian and American colors. Two of the wheelmen had converted their wheels into gayly colored floats representing the good ship Dauphine, in which, at the command of Francis I. of France, the Italians say, Giovanni da Verrazzano, in 1524, sailed along the southern Atlantic Coast and into the mouth of the Hudson.

The reproductions of his ship were not quite accurate historically—one of them had a smokestack between handle bars and seat. But, nevertheless, they were enthusiastically cheered all along the route. So were the veteran Knights of Garibaldi, who, with steps still keeping martial time, marched all the two and a half miles of the route, deeming it little after that longer march to Rome.

Behind them, even more sturdily, marched fifty small lads of the Church of Our Lady of Loretto, clad in the uniform of Zouaves and determined to be Garibaldians themselves some day for their country. They, too, were enthusiastically cheered. So were the 300 sailors from the Etna and the Etruria, and the many chapters of the Foresters of America, who made up the rest of the procession, separated each from the other by a small tribe of highly painted and wax-mustached Indians.

As the parade swung into the Battery Park at 3 o'clock it found a cheering throng of 100,000 Italians awaiting it, much to the enlivenment of Inspector Daly and the 500 policemen under him. But with all there was no serious crowding or confusion.

A Distinguished Gathering.

As the paraders filed past the reviewing stand in front of the statue, the standard bearers of the different divisions fell quietly out of line and arranged themselves in a brilliant semi-circle around the flower and flag-covered monument. The marchers were reviewed by Chevalier Barsotti, Marquis Montagliare, the Italian Chargé d'Affaires; Rear Admiral di Brochetti of the visiting Italian warships, officially representing King Emmanuel; Admiral Le Pord of the French warships, E. Lanel, the French Consul; Dr. Di Rosa, acting Italian Consul General; Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, President of the Hudson-Fulton Commission, and Patrick F. McGowan, President of the Aldermen, who accepted the statue on behalf of Mayor McClellan. Mgr. Lavelle offered the opening prayer.

Just as one of the huge gray United States battleships from the upper river rounded the Battery seawall and steamed slowly along, little seven-year-old Gertrude Grahman, granddaughter of Chevalier Barsotti, clad in white, with the Italian and American colors around her waist, stepped to the edge of the reviewing stand, and raised her hand.

Immediately the flags that covered the statue fell aside, and the rugged mail-clad figure of the Italian navigator stood forth. Beneath is a life-size figure of Truth, stern of face, and bearing in either hand a naked sword and flaming torch. At the same time there was heard throughout the hushed gathering the thin, trembling voice of the little lady at the stand:

> I am proud to unveil on this day with my little hand a monument which ought to be a cause of gratefulness for all New Yorkers, for it was Giovanni da Verrazzano who discovered these waters of the North River. All you who are present know what history says; but children like myself do not know it. I would like that all children of New York should know that it was an Italian who discovered the Island of Manhattan. I would like that all children should repeat in this moment with me:
>
> Hurrah! for Italy.
> Hurrah! for America.

Chevalier Barsotti made the presentation address and President McGowan accepted the statue on behalf of the city.

"It has been suggested to me," he said, "that we should commemorate da Verrazzano by naming after him some one of our streets or avenues. I think a park would be more suitable for such a commemoration, and I trust in the near future to see one of our parks so named."

Other speeches were made by Louis Steckler, Vice President of the committee; Admiral di Brochetti, Marquis Montagliare, and Gen. Woodford.

The monument, which stands in the centre of the park, is the work of Ettore Ximenes, Director of Fine Arts in the Ministry of Education of Italy.

FINDS SKULL IN A HALLWAY.

Janitor Gets Out Police Reserves for a Boy's Prank.

Thirteen-year-old John Scanlon and his eleven-year-old chum, William Tobias, both of whom live in an apartment house at 223 Fifty-first Street, Brooklyn, found a human skull in the cellar of the old Bedell homestead at 219 Fifty-fifth Street, which is now unoccupied, yesterday afternoon. They took it home, borrowed some of their father's clothes without their parents' knowledge, and made a manikin, on the shoulders of which they affixed the skull, covered with a derby hat, and stood the creation in the lower hall, where Janitor Thomas Cordes, putting out the lights later, fell over it.

Cordes thought he had a dead man on his hands, and got the reserves from the Fourth Avenue Police Station. Lieut. Sullivan led them to the house, and by the time they got there the whole street was in excitement. The boys were frightened at the result of their hoax. However, Sullivan let them off with a fatherly lecture and the exaction of a promise from their parents that other corrective measures would follow.

It was learned that the skull was one belonging to a physician who formerly occupied the house.

HOMOEOPATHS MAY RECEDE.

Institute's Opposition to Use of Benzoate of Soda Held Wrong.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The Board of Trustees of the American Institute of Homeopathy to-day took action looking to the recommendation that the institute at its next full meeting recede from its position taken last year in condemnation of the use of benzoate of soda. At the meeting last year in Detroit the institute, under the impression that benzoate of soda was used for palming off bad food after decomposition had set in, voted to sustain Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, Chief of the Bureau of Chemistry, by condemning utterly the use of the drug in food stuffs.

Since that time the Trustees have instituted investigations of their own with the result that they are now convinced that benzoate of soda at worst is used for embalming food still in a wholesome state, and not for disguising such deterioation as may already have occurred. The institute's Trustees to-day adopted a resolution suggesting that the case be reopened.

Among the Trustees who were in all day session to-day were Dr. H. D. Schenck of Brooklyn, Dr. T. Franklin Smith of New York, and Dr. E. H. Porter of New York.

EXPECTS DICKINSON TO STAY.

Washington Has Not Heard That War Secretary Will Resign.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Nothing is known here of Secretary Dickinson reported intention to resign his portfolio. The Secretary hurried to his home in Tennessee on Saturday to the bedside of his sick son, and his protracted ill health is given as the foundation for the report.

It is known, however, that Secretary Dickinson accepted his position in the Taft Cabinet at a financial sacrifice, giving up his connections as counsel for the Illinois Central, and it is suggested here that it is hardly likely that, soon after severing those connections for the Government service, he should throw over his present post. There is nothing new in the illness of his son, who has long been a sufferer, so that fact would probably have been considered by the Secretary when he accepted his commission.

Bronx Zoo Gets Yucatan Turkeys.

A pair of brilliantly hued turkeys from the mountains of Yucatan have arrived at the Bronx Park Zoo, and will be placed on exhibition in a few weeks. They would be shown at once, but they are ill after their long journey. A band of Indians carried the turkeys over 150 miles of mountain and jungle road to the coast of Yucatan, where they sold them to an agent for the Zoo.

Jersey Wants a New York Prisoner.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 6.—Gov. Fort to-day issued a requisition on Gov. Hughes for the extradition of Vincent Shevlin, alleged to be one of the most notorious crooks in the country, who is under arrest in Buffalo. Shevlin is wanted in Hoboken for the murder about two years ago of Harry Williams, a produce merchant.

The Coward Shoe

Support for the Sagging, Inner Ankle

Any tendency of the ankles to turn inward is a certain indication of a weakening arch. The COWARD ARCH PROP SHOE supports the tiring ankle, and by relieving the strain, helps the sagging muscles to regain their tone and elasticity. The firm support in the waist of the shoe is secured without interference with its springy heel and toe action.

COLOMBIA TO REJECT TREATY.

Compensation for Panama Not Satisfactory—Japan a New Factor.

BOGOTA, Colombia, Oct. 6.—There is reason to believe that unless Washington indicates a willingness to reopen negotiations concerning the tripartite treaties the Colombian Congress will compel the Government to submit the treaties for consideration next week. The rejection of the treaties by Congress is practically certain.

Popular feeling doubtless will prevent the acceptance of an agreement that neither provides what is considered commensurate compensation for the loss of Panama, nor recognizes the injustice of the secession. The Foreign Office and Elliott Northcott, the American Minister, have been working together to reach an understanding in this matter.

Japan's recent appointment of a Consul General at Bogota is said in some quarters to have an important bearing on the treaty negotiations. This step was taken by Japan after an alleged secret exploration of the Atrato Canal line, another route for a canal across the Isthmus. The Consul General is said to have expressed privately his intention of co-operating with Luis Arturo Undurraga, a Colombian engineer, who is endeavoring to obtain from the Colombian Congress a concession to construct the Atrato Transisthmian Canal with private capital.

Señor Undurraga recently visited London, where he tried to interest a British syndicate in his enterprise.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The Government has received no intimation that either Colombia or Panama desires to reopen negotiations in the Panama matter.

The United States consented to be a party to the tripartite treaties only with a view to a settlement of the differences then existing between the two South American republics, by the terms of which the independence of Panama was to be recognized. It has no interest in the matter further than to perform an act friendly to both countries, and it is a matter of no particular moment here whether the treaties are ratified or not.

TELLS OF SCIENTISTS' DEATH.

Missionary Describes Attack on Germans Who Were Exploring in China.

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—A dramatic narrative of the killing of Messrs. Brunhuber and Schmidtz, the leaders of a German exploring expedition in China, near the Burmese frontier, some months ago is published by The Allgemeine Wissenschaftlichen Berichte in a letter from G. Monbeig, a missionary, which has been transmitted through the British Consul at Tengyueh.

Eye witnesses told the missionary that the two scientists had pitched their tent on the bank of the river Salwin. Schmidtz was asleep and Brunhuber was writing when one of their Chinese servants ran into the tent saying that the men from the neighboring villages were advancing to attack them. Brunhuber replied that as he had done nothing wrong to the villagers there was no danger, and he gave the servants presents to distribute to the villagers. He then resumed writing. The servant wanted to take a gun, but Brunhuber replied that his mission was a peaceful one, and that a weapon was inappropriate.

While he continued to write some of the natives threw back the flap of the tent. Brunhuber rose and as he did so a lance struck him in the breast and he received several sabre cuts. He ran out of the tent, jumped into the river, swam nearly a mile down the stream, and landed in an exhausted condition on a sandbank.

Schmidtz was killed while he was sleeping. The natives found Brunhuber the following morning, stripped him of his clothing, flung him in the stream, and disappeared.

AMERICAN AERONAUT WINS BENNETT CUP

E. W. Mix Lands Near Warsaw, Easily Beating Balloonists of Other Nations.

RUSSIAN POLICE NAB HIM

Covered Nearly 700 Miles—Le Blanc Finishes Second, Messner Third, and Schaeck Fourth.

ZURICH, Switzerland, Oct. 6.—All Zurich to-night is toasting America and her champion balloonist, Edgar W. Mix, who, after a remarkable struggle against wind and rain storms, has carried off first honors in the international balloon race for the Gordon Bennett Cup, by sailing from Zurich to the heart of the forest north of Warsaw, in Russian Poland.

The official classification has not yet been announced, but it is calculated that Mix covered a distance of between 1,045 kilometers (648.94 miles) and 1,120 kilometers, (695.53 miles.) Alfred Le Blanc, the French pilot, is placed second, with a distance of 834 kilometers, (517.81 miles;) Capt. Messner, one of the Swiss pilots, third, with 800 kilometers, (496.80 miles,) and Col. Schaeck, another Swiss entry, fourth. The other thirteen starters are placed at varying distances far behind the four leaders, the last two being McLean, English, with 445 kilometers, (276.34 miles,) and Vleminex, Belgian, with 430 kilometers, (267.03 miles.)

While some disappointment is felt because of the failure of the Swiss pilots to repeat last year's victory, the general sentiment is one of satisfaction that America has taken the prize. Experts in aeronautics are filled with admiration for Mix's achievement, pointing out that the storms which drove the more experienced balloonists to earth could not conquer the American.

M. Gugelberg, Vice President of the Swiss Aero Club, said to-night that Mix showed remarkable generalship.

"Mix husbanded his ballast," said M. Gugelberg. "When ascending at Zurich he moved upward with irritating slowness, but he was only employing skillful tactics and keeping his ballast for a critical moment. That is how he won. Mix's successful fight against the driving wind, the rain, and the fog, even if it does not break any records, constitutes one of the most remarkable voyages in history."

Mix Reports Landing.

The first news of Mr. Mix's landing was conveyed in a dispatch dated Ostrolenka, as follows:

> I landed in the midst of a large pine tree in the forest of Gutova, west of Ostrolenka and north of Warsaw, at 3 o'clock Tuesday morning. I encountered a heavy rain. My ballast was exhausted, when I came down. At present I am in the hands of the police, but all is going well.
>
> I had bad weather Sunday night. It was cloudy and rain fell, and I used half my ballast before morning. The weather was so thick that it was impossible to locate my position, except for one hour south of Prague, and a star observation I took at latitude 51.45.1 and longitude 10.0.38.

It is evident from Mr. Mix's message that, in spite of the discouragement of drifting onward without knowing his location, the American aeronaut husbanded his ballast and kept his balloon afloat until the last ounce of sand was gone. He made his journey through fog and blinding rainstorms, which compelled all the other pilots to descend.

It is possible that Mix, by jockeying, was able to catch a northerly current of air, and that after he passed to the south of Prague, he continued to the point where he landed, north of Warsaw. He is the only contestant to cross the Russian frontier.

Action of Police Unwarranted.

It is impossible to explain why Mix should have been molested by the Russian police, as in anticipation of a landing in Russia each of the pilots was provided at Zurich before starting with a special Russian passport guaranteed by the Russian Minister to Switzerland to protect them against annoyance.

The American Embassy at St. Petersburg has been advised of Mix's predicament, and asked to take the matter up at once with the Russian authorities.

Capt. Messner, one of the Swiss pilots, reports that after crossing the Swiss and Austrian Alps his clothes were covered with ice to a thickness of half an inch. Messner reached an altitude of 18,000 feet.

Of the division of balloons which were carried more to the southward, Le Blanc, one of the French pilots, reached the furthest point. He descended in the foothills of the Carpathian Mountains, being forced to abandon his balloon upon landing owing to an accident.

Some of the contestants tell of perilous experiences during the race. Emile Dubonnet, representing France, says that he had a remarkable escape at the time of his descent. His guide rope caught in the chimney of a house on a mountain slope and was torn away from the balloon, which shot up about 7,000 yards. His ballast was exhausted, and the balloon descended again with frightful rapidity, but he managed to avoid serious mishap.

Mr. Mix was the only American contestant. He used the balloon America II., built in Paris last year for J. C. McCoy and sailed by Mr. McCoy in the Berlin race. It has a gas capacity of 80,000 cubic feet, the maximum allowed for the race.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 6.—When the news that the American balloonist, Edgar W. Mix, had been arrested at Ostrolenka, north of Warsaw, was communicated to Premier Stolypin at his country estate this afternoon, the Premier promised to expedite his release.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—The Aero Club of France will probably give a banquet in honor of Edgar W. Mix. He came to Paris shortly after he was graduated from Ohio State University in 1888. He made a reputattion as an electrical engineer and became interested in ballooning as a sport. He was a judge at the Rheims races.

A cablegram congratulating him on his victory was sent to E. W. Mix in care of President Cortlandt Field Bishop, who is now in Paris, by the Aero Club of America yesterday. This is the second capture of the balloon trophy by a member of the Aero Club of America. In 1906, when the first race was held from Paris, Lieut. Frank P. Lahm was the winner, covering 402 miles.

In 1907 the race was held at St. Louis, and was won by Oscar S. Erbsloh of Germany, with a distance of 871 miles, ending at Bradley Beach, near Asbury Park. It was in this race that Mr. Mix acted as aid to Alfred Leblanc in the French balloon, Isle de France. They finished second, only six miles behind the winner. Last year, when the start was made at Berlin, Col. Schaeck of Switzerland captured the cup, traveling 742 miles.

Mr. Mix's victory means that the international cup race will be held in this country next year. America now holds both of the big international aeronautic trophies, the Aviation Cup having been brought here by the recent victory of Glenn H. Curtiss at Rheims.

NEW BALLOON TO FLY HERE.

Dr. Riggs's Dirigible Ready to be Inflated at Morris Park.

Plans for a dirigible balloon trip around New York are being quietly made at Morris Park. The new dirigible recently built by Leo Stevens for Dr. John Riggs of Little Rock, Ark., has just been fitted to its steel frame, and the pumping of hydrogen gas into the envelope will begin to-morrow.

The balloon is 100 feet long, the largest of its kind ever built in this country, and it will hold 35,400 cubic feet of gas. The steel frame, 85 feet long, has been constructed to embody several original ideas of the owner. A forty-horse-power Curtiss motor will furnish the propelling force.

Dr. Riggs arrived in the city a few days ago to superintend the work, and he expects to be a passenger in the initial flight. It is not expected that the balloon will be ready for ascension until next week, as three or four days will be necessary for inflation. The frame has been arranged to carry three persons.

PLANS FOR POLAR AIR TRIP.

Advance Party to Make Preparations at Spitzbergen Next Year.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Oct. 6.—Prince Henry of Prussia presided to-day over the meeting of the Board of Directors of the Zeppelin Airship Arctic Expedition, to be undertaken under the auspices of the German Society for the Exploration of the Polar Regions. It was decided to send an advance party during the Summer of 1910 to Spitzbergen with all the requisite equipment to prepare for the successful operation of an airship in the polar regions.

The members of the board emphasize the necessity for the further development of the Zeppelin type of airship for long voyages, especially over the sea. An improved type is to be constructed, and will be ready for its trial flights in January, 1911. The tests will be carried out between the various German ports.

Prince Henry, after the meeting, made a trip in the Zeppelin III.

WRIGHT TEACHING OFFICERS.

Gives Army Lieutenants Lesson in Reassembling Aeroplane.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—With the removal of the Wright aeroplane owned by the Government from Fort Myer to the new aerodrome at College Park, Md., to-day the work of teaching the Signal Corps officers of the army was begun in earnest. Wilbur Wright is the instructor. To-day's lesson consisted of packing and reassembling the aeroplane. To-morrow the more advanced lesson of soaring in the air may be attempted.

By 8:30 this morning the aeroplane had been loaded on a wogan at Fort Myer, and the journey to College Park was begun. The machine was only partially dismantled. Mr. Wright and Lieuts. Lahm and Humphreys were waiting for the machine when the wagon arrived at College Park this afternoon. The work of assembling began at once, with Mr. Wright superintending the job.

Lieut. Lahm said the machine would not be completely reassembled until after several hours of work to-morrow. The probability of a flight early in the morning was out of the question, he thought, although one might be attempted later in the day.

THE WRIGHTS REACHING OUT.

Forming Aeroplane Companies to Control the Trade Here and Abroad.

Plans have recently been perfected for the manufacture and sale on a large scale of the Wright aeroplanes in Europe. Charles R. Flint, who has been closely associated with the Wright brothers for the last two or three years in obtaining their patent rights has been in Europe concluding these negotiations. F. R. Cordley, a member of Flint & Co., said last night that separate companies for the manufacture of the Wright machines have been organized in Paris and Berlin, and within a few weeks similar companies will be established in Russia and Italy.

The Wright brothers besides holding stock in all of the foreign companies have received cash payments for the rights to manufacture their machines, and will also receive royalties on the number of machines turned out.

"We have no interest in the Wright flying machine business in the United States or Great Britain," said Mr. Cordley. "The Wright brothers, I understand, control the rights themselves in these countries."

The organization of these foreign companies is taken as an indication that the Wrights are determined to take energetic action against all infringements of their patent rights. Suits have not yet been instituted abroad, but it will not be long before preliminary injunctions will be asked for to restrain aeroplanes of other makes from competing in public contests or appearing in exhibitions. Such a suit has already been brought against the Herring-Curtiss Company in this country.

Bleriot Flier on View.

The first Blériot monoplane to be seen in this country, a duplicate of that with which Blériot flew over the English Channel last July, was placed on exhibition yesterday at Broadway and Forty-ninth Street. It was imported by M. Ralph Saulnier, a brother of Raymond Saulnier, Blériot's chief engineer. With the machine came Paul Miltgen, one of Blériot's pupils. The machine, with its tail, is thirty feet long. Within a few days it is intended to give some trial flights near New York.

Newporter Builds Biplane.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, Oct. 6.—Hugh L. Willoughby of Newport and Philadelphia is here after a season's absence spent in completing his biplane, which will soon be ready for tests. It is named the Warhawk and was built at Ventnor, N. J. It is two feet bigger than the Wright machine and deeper.

HOPES TO MEET ROOSEVELT.

Duchess of Aosta Leaves for Africa to Spend the Winter.

NAPLES, Oct. 6.—The Duchess of Aosta is about to leave Naples for the Congo, and will spend the Winter in Africa for the benefit of her health. She has expressed the hope that she will meet Theodore Roosevelt on his return from his hunting trip, as she is desirous of hearing him tell of his adventures in Africa.

The Duchess received Mr. Roosevelt at Capo di Monte last April, when he passed through Naples on his way to British East Africa.

TO TRY ICE TRUST BY A SPECIAL JURY

PLEADS RIGHT TO BUY RIVALS

Lawyers Say That an Adverse Decision Would Put the Company Out of Business in This State.

One line of defense with which the American Ice Company lawyers will meet the legal attack by the Attorney General's Department on the so-called Ice Trust was apparently revealed yesterday shortly before it was decided that a special jury of business men shall try the corporation for alleged violations of the Donnelly Anti-Monopoly act. In meeting the issues raised in the present case the ice company lawyers will rely in a general way upon the right of any person or corporation to buy out the business and good-will of a competitor.

That the life of the American Ice Company is at stake in the present action was admitted yesterday during the argument for a special jury before Supreme Court Justice Wheeler in the Criminal Courts Building. John B. Stanchfield, one of the company's lawyers, said that the American Ice Company would be prohibited from doing business in this State in the event of conviction.

The Ice Trust lawyers based their request for a special jury of business men on the ground that fair-minded jurors could not be obtained from the ordinary panel. Julien T. Davies, one of the large staff of ice company attorneys, produced a stack of newspaper clippings and cartoons purporting to show that the public mind had been inflamed against the corporation.

"The newspapers of this town, as your Honor knows, have accused the officers and Directors of this corporation of every crime on the calendar," said Mr. Davies. "They have even gone so far as to abuse the District Attorney of the county because he could not find that the statements printed in some of the newspapers had any truth in them. It has been a daily practice, since 1905, of certain newspapers to present their readers with their breakfast roll an attack on the Ice Trust."

Mr. Davies read some of the newspaper attacks and showed some of the cartoons to the Justice, who looked them over and smiled.

"It is accumulative evidence ad nauseam," commented Mr. Davies. "The attacks have stirred up and kept alive a feeling against the American Ice Company—one which makes it almost impossible to obtain an unprejudiced jury in any part of the State of New York in any case in which the American Ice Company is a party, even in the trial of an accident suit."

James W. Osborne, the Deputy Attorney General, who, with Deputy Attorney General Roger P. Clark, was appointed to prosecute the ice case, objected to Mr. Davies's remarks.

"This is simply a scheme for delay—a time-killing device," he said. "No special panel is required. It is not an intricate case, but it seems to me from the tactics of the defense that it will be a long-drawn-out one. We will prove our side by documentary evidence."

Mr. Stanchfield jumped into the discussion. He took exception to Mr. Osborne's statements about "time-killing," then went on to explain the legal ground on which he and his legal associates would stand.

"The law of the case simply narrows itself down to this," he said. "A has a drug store at the southeast corner of Fourteenth Street and Fifth Avenue and B has one on the opposite corner. Would it be a crime for A to buy out B for $1,000,000? The stock in trade might not be worth that much, but A might be willing to pay that for the good-will."

Mr. Stanchfield then spoke of the life of the ice company depending on the outcome, and said:

"Barring the Thaw case, no case in New York has attracted so much publicity as this. What we want is a jury of business men—men of trade."

Justice Wheeler granted the motion for a special jury and adjourned the case until Monday, Oct. 18. A panel of 100 business men will be drawn in the meantime.

TO CUT COTTON OUTPUT.

Spinners' Conference Declares for the Extension of Existing Restrictions.

FRANKFORT, Germany, Oct. 6.—The international conference of cotton spinners adopted the following resolution to-day:

> Whereas, All the European spinners have expressed the opinion that the large visible and invisible supplies of cotton, together with the prospective favorable East Indian and Egyptian crops, will suffice to cover requirements, even notwithstanding the unfavorable American outlook;
>
> Therefore it is urgently recommended, in view of the unusually high price of cotton and the unremunerative selling prices of goods, that the existing restrictions must be maintained and extended as far as possible.

Talks on Teeth

By G. GORDON MARTIN
(Incorporated)

The Partial Plate

When a man loses most of his teeth he begins to cast about for a substitute, and his dentist will be most apt to suggest either a "bridge" or a "partial plate."

In some of our previous "Talks on Teeth" we have considered the "bridge" and shown why it is at best a makeshift. Now let us consider that other makeshift—the "partial plate."

There have been cases where such a plate, having anywhere from two to a dozen teeth on it, would stick up in the roof of the mouth or would lie on the lower jaw, depending on which plate it was (upper or lower), with fairly good success—when new. But not for long.

The constant shrinking of the gums changes the shape of the mouth and soon a little air is admitted under the plate, spoiling the suction, and down it comes, and the constant wobble up and down brings canker sores on the roof of the mouth and gums, so the man takes to wearing his partial plate in his pocket most of the time.

If you have ever worn one you will agree that these statements are true. The partial plate is a delusion and a snare, and no man or woman would wear one for a moment if he or she knew of a better way of supplying the vacancy in the mouth caused by the missing teeth.

THE MARTINOLAR METHOD

(Teeth without plates) is the better way.

If you have two or more teeth left in either jaw, tight or loose ones, we will supply WITHOUT USING A PLATE.

We not only supply the teeth that have been lost, but we cure the cause of the loose teeth which are left and make them strong, tight and healthy. Then with the Martinolar Method we put a full set of teeth in your mouth that are beautiful to look at, that you can use with the same enjoyment you would get from nature's teeth and that will last as long as you last.

In comparison with the Martinolar Method of supplying teeth, the partial plate bears the same relation that a tallow dip bears to an arc light.

WE CAN REFER TO AN ARMY OF PEOPLE WHO HAVE HAD OUR WORK DONE, AND THAT IS THE BEST SORT OF PROOF.

We have risen to a point where we no longer need to ask you to take this work on faith. We show the actual results.

Are you a partial plate victim? Don't you want to throw the plate away? Come to our offices for a free diagnosis and examination. If that is not possible right now, send for our book, "Martinolar Dentistry," which will tell you all about this work. The reading of that book will bring you, if you need teeth, no matter where you live. IT IS SENT FREE.

WOMEN'S GOLF TITLE MAY GO TO ENGLAND

Miss Campbell and Miss Teacher Pressing Americans for Honors.

MAY MEET IN SEMI-FINALS

Mrs. Stout Plays British Champion To-day—Western Title Holder Put Out by British Player.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—Developments to-day in the women's annual golf championship had a distinctly British cast, and many observers at the links of the Merion Cricket Club are beginning to think that the title will be carried abroad.

Two of the four British women who qualified Monday for the title were put out to-day in the second round of match play, but the most skillful and prominent of the visiting delegation, Miss Dorothy Campbell and Miss Frances Teacher, remain. As both are in the top half of the draw, should both win to-morrow, they must meet in the semi-finals, so the spectacle will be spared of two foreign players contending against each other in the final for the championship of the United States.

Mrs. Charles T. Stout of New York, ex-National and metropolitan champion, held herself in reserve to-day in beating Miss Frances Griscom of Philadelphia, another former title holder, feeling in advance that she must meet the British champion to-morrow. Miss Campbell had a much harder task to defeat Mrs. E. H. Fitler of Philadelphia, who never played so well before.

Miss Teacher showed the best quality of the "invaders" to date by handily beating Miss Vida Llewellyn, Western champion, although luck was rather on the Chicagoan's side. Mrs. Caleb Fox of Philadelphia won on the home hole from Miss Mary Adams of Boston, Eastern champion, after an amusing round in which both took practically three puts at every hole. Miss Margery Phelps of Boston had to play out the home hole to win from Miss Temple of England, but managed to keep her nerve at the crucial point. The only extra hole match was that in which Miss Isabella Smith of Chicago beat Miss Elizabeth Porter of Boston on the nineteenth with high scoring.

Miss Jane Spence of England pushed Mrs. Ronald Barlow, former Philadelphia district champion, the full round for a decision, an unexpected development, as this is Mrs. Barlow's home course. Miss Noblit of Wilmington had the easiest match of the day. This afternoon was devoted to the driving and approaching and putting contests, both of which went to the Britishers. Miss Dorothy Campbell, Scotland, title holder of Great Britain, led in driving, her total being 541 yards 2 feet at three tries, divided as follows: 175 yards, 190 yards, 176 yards 2 feet. Miss Isabella Smith, Chicago, was second with 512 yards 11 inches, divided as follows: 194 yards, 172 yards, 146 yards 11 inches. Third came Miss Frances Griscom, Philadelphia, at 501 yards 1 foot, divided thus: 159 yards 1 foot, 160 yards 2 feet, 181 yards 1 foot. Miss Temple of England was best in the approaching and putting at 9 points, making 2, 3, and 4, respectively. Miss Florence McNeely, Philadelphia, second at 10 points, consisting of 4, 3, and 3. Miss Mary Adams, Boston, third at 11 points, made up of 3, 3, and 5. Miss Louisa Wells, Boston, fourth at 12 points, consisting of 3, 4, and 5.

The summary of to-day's play follows:

Mrs. C. T. Stout, New York, beat Miss Frances Griscom, Philadelphia, 2 up and 1 to go; Miss Dorothy Campbell, Scotland, beat Mrs. E. H. Fitler, Philadelphia, 2 up and 1 to go; Miss Frances Teacher, Scotland, beat Miss Vida Llewellyn, Chicago, 3 up and 1 to go; Mrs. Caleb Fox, Philadelphia, beat Miss Mary Adams, Boston, 1 up; Miss Margery Phelps, Boston, beat Miss S. Temple, England, 1 up; Miss Noblit, Wilmington, beat Mrs. C. H. Vanderbeck, Philadelphia, 3 up and 2 to go; Miss Isabella Smith, Chicago, beat Miss Elizabeth Porter, Boston, 1 up, (19 holes;) Mrs. R. H. Barlow, Philadelphia, beat Miss Jane Spencer, England, 2 up.

GUGGENHEIM MAKES REPLY.

Says His Former Wife Brought Divorce Suit to Obtain Money.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—An answer was filed in the Circuit Court here to-day by William Guggenheim to a suit brought to dissolve the decree of divorce granted his former wife, Grace B. Guggenheim, in 1901. The suit was begun last June after ex-Mayor Edward F. Dunne, former Judge of the Circuit Court, who entered the decree, had protested that the court had been imposed upon inasmuch as neither party to the suit was a resident of Illinois when the case was heard by him.

In the document filed to-day the charge is made that the suit to dissolve the decree of divorce was brought by the former Mrs. Guggenheim in the hope of extorting a large sum of money from Guggenheim. The answer also sets forth that the court has no power to modify or annul the decree after the expiration of five years from the date of the entry of the final order.

VANDERBILT WINS TROPHY.

Reginald's Horse, Lord Brooke, Earns Final Leg on Baker Cup.

BROCKTON, Mass., Oct. 6.—All but one of the six harness racing events on the Brockton Fair programme to-day were finished, but darkness made it necessary to put the 2:27 stake trot for a $1,000 purse over until to-morrow morning after two heats had been trotted, both of which Remsen Robinson won. The most interesting event of the day was the 2:17 stake pace for a purse of $1,000. This required seven heats, the last three, and the race going to Prince Hamlin.

The only accident of the day occurred in the scoring for the first heat of the 2:21 trot, when Dennis Nellan, driver of Bingen Light collided with some one in turning back for the wire and was thrown. Nellan suffered a slight brain concussion, but is expected to recover.

The horse show opened to-day with a larger number of entries than any previous exhibition here. The most interesting feature of the judging to-day was the award of the Baker Challenge Cup permanently to Reginald Vanderbilt, he having won the cup twice. His successful entry to-day was Lord Brooke, while he also took the trophy in 1906 with his horse Bravo. A. C. Burrage, E. D. Jordan, W. H. Moore, and C. W. Watson have each held the cup one year. The trophy was presented by Charles F. Baker of Boston for the best horse suitable for a gig and driven by its bona fide owner.

Richardson and Dawson Win for Navy

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 6.—In their opening game to-day the Naval Academy football team won from St. John's by 16 to 6. Richardson and Dalton were the only reliable ground gainers for the Midshipmen, and their powerful line breaking is what the Navy must thank for to-day's victory. Most of the brilliant playing was done by the collegians, who have two fast and clever backs in Grove and Ruhl, each of whom reeled off from ten to twenty-five yards. Quarter Back Bosley worked the forward pass with great success, and St. John's score was accomplished on a series of plays, including two forward plays, the whole worked without signals and with great quickness. In the touchdown play Johnson received the pass and ran twenty yards for the touchdown. Line-up:

Navy.	Position.	St. John's.
Anderson, Loftin	Left tackle	Wilson
Niles, Grafton, King	Left guard	Hutson
Brand	Centre	Blades
Reinicke, Zenor	Right guard	White
Richardson, Merring	Right tackle	Hauver
Reifsnider, Carey, Dickens, Miller	Right end	Mellon, Brown
Byrd, Wilson	Quarter back	Bosley
Howell, Dalton, Austin	Left half back	Grove
Clay	Right half back	Ruhl
Rodes, Richardson	Full back	Melville

Tigers Had to Fight to Win.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 6.—In a stubbornly fought game Princeton to-day won from Villanova by the score of 12 to 5, a fifty-yard run by McCrohan for a touchdown in the first half, and two goals from the field by Cunningham being the only features. Constant wrangling, rough, and ragged playing generally marred the contest. Read and Hart were star ground gainers for Princeton. Princeton was twice within ten yards of scoring in the second half, but the substitute back field blundered and lost ground. The line-up:

Princeton.	Position.	Villanova.
Welch, King	Right end	Walsh, Barry, Slavin
McCrohan, Norman	Right tackle	Neuser, Trawler
Woehr	Right guard	Dougherty
Bamman	Centre	McCormick
Dawson, Christie	Quarter back	Thompson
Read, Sparks, Sawyer	Right half back	Barr
McCormick, Cunningham	Left half back	Duffy
Hart	Full back	Kelly

New York Players to Barnstorm.

Frank C. Bancroft, who is to act as business manager for a baseball team that will play exhibition games with the Philadelphia Americans on a tour extending from New York to San Francisco, announced yesterday the make-up of his combination, which will be known as the All-Nationals. Its pitchers are Johnson of Washington, Marquard of the New York Nationals, Curtis of the Boston Nationals, and Moore of the Philadelphia Nationals; catchers, Myers of the New York Nationals and Bliss of the St. Louis Nationals; infielders, Konetchy, of the St. Louis Nationals, Doyle of the New York Nationals, Lennox of Brooklyn, and Egan of Cincinnati; outfielders, Bescher of Cincinnati, Hummel of Brooklyn, and Ellis of the St. Louis Nationals. Snodgrass of the New York Nationals will make the trip as a substitute catcher and infielder. The first game will be played in Chicago on Oct. 19. The schedule calls for four weeks of play in San Francisco.

Jury Convicts Carr in Baseball Case.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 6.—The jury in the case of Charles Carr, manager of the Indianapolis Baseball Club, charged with having played professional baseball on Sunday, returned a verdict of guilty to-night. The proceedings were brought to test the constitutionality of the law permitting Sunday baseball.

HOBBS AND JOY STARS IN FOOTBALL AT YALE

Eli's Left Tackle Plays Splendidly and Helps Down Holy Cross Eleven.

JOY STOPS YALE RUNNERS

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 6.—The lost art of fumbling was revived for a continuous vaudeville performance during the Yale-Holy Cross game this afternoon. Five fumbles were made on the path down the field to the first touchdown, four by Holy Cross, one by Yale, and the teams repeated their jugglery in the second half, when Holy Cross passed the ball on a slip to Yale at the visitors' ten-yard line and Yale fumbled it back only two yards from goal. Yale scored two touchdowns during the game, and the two goals kicked made the total score 12 points. Messinger, who received a trial for Yale, fumbled the ball as he was going over the line for a touchdown in the first half, and Field of Yale did the same in the second half.

Capt. Joy's tackling cut down many Yale runners and his punting held down the Eli score during this half. Just as the second half began he pulled down a forward pass and leaped into what seemed a clear field. He shot clear of the field and had only Howe, quarter back, to pass. Howe dived for him and as he was shaking himself loose from Howe to make the touchdown Hobbs plunged into him from behind.

Hobbs exhibited the finest football seen at Yale this year. He was through on the Holy Cross backs before they started, carried the ball for frequent gains for the blue, captained the eleven after Logan retired in the second half, and to close a series of spectacular plays he broke through and blocked one of Capt. Joy's punts late in the first half, leaped up and seized the ball as it fell, and plowed over the line for the second touchdown.

Yale's first touchdown was made because Holy Cross men did not grasp the playing rules. With the ball on the Holy Cross thirty-yard line, Philbin reeled off a thirty-yard run. The umpire's horn sounded for an offside penalty against Holy Cross, and the players made no attempt to tackle Philbin, who shot for a touchdown. Yale refused the penalty for offside play and scored the touchdown. Capt. Joy dislocated his ankle and will be out of the game some time. Line-up:

Yale.	Position.	Holy Cross.
Kilpatrick, Vaughn	Left end	Joy, Daly, Hammill
Cooney, Brown	Left guard	Tobin, Maloney
Francis	Centre	Monahan
Goebel	Right guard	Sweeney
Lilley	Right tackle	Haggerty
Logan, Savage	Right end	Lawlor
Howe	Quarter back	Mahoney
Philbin, Field	Left half back	Jones, Kraft
Messinger, Deming	Right half back	Dunn, Daly
Field, Kestler, Holt, Murphy	Full back	Shields

Touchdowns—Philbin and Hobbs. Goals from touchdowns—Hobbs, 2. Referee—Mr. Thompson, Georgetown. Umpire—Mr. Hatch, Williams. Field Judge—Mr. Thorpe, Columbia. Time of halves—Twenty and seventeen minutes.

Fordham Bucks High School Line.

The football team of the High School of Commerce took a try at Fordham yesterday, and gave the maroon players a lively seance during the short scrimmage. Several new Fordham men had a chance to show 'Varsity calibre, and in Walsh, who did the kicking, the coaches believe they have the find of the season. He sent the leather away for distances averaging from forty-five to fifty yards, and as a half back was strong in the requirements of the position. In yesterday's scrimmage he smashed through the high school line in convincing fashion, and it is likely he will be in the line-up when Fordham plays Princeton on Saturday. Another player has gone on the sick list with Geary, Kelleher being out of the game through stomach trouble. It is thought he will be back in the line-up in a short time, however.

Cornell Linemen in Scrimmage.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 6.—The Cornell football practice this afternoon was featured by a scrimmage for the 'Varsity and scrub linemen only, O'Conner, Donan, Monk, and Weeks getting a good grilling from the scrubs. For nearly an hour the two lines fought it out, with a scrub backfield testing the 'Varsity's defensive powers to the limit of endurance, but while in the first part the big fellows yielded occasionally toward the end, they presented a stonewall defense. "Sandy" Hunt, Captain of the 1904 team, joined the coaches, and took an active part in drilling the line. Hunt expects to stay here a month. Tip Watson, 'Varsity end for three years, came back to the university after a year's absence. While he can play one year, it is doubtful if he will come out for football.

Princeton Freshmen Victors.

Special to The New York Times.

LAWRENCEVILLE, N. J., Oct. 6.—Lawrenceville was defeated by the Princeton freshmen here to-day in a very loosely played game by the score of 6 to 0. The touchdown was made on a fluke when the ball was punted over the line and fallen on by Paterson of the Tiger eleven. Lawrenceville showed very good work in the latter part of the game, carrying the ball from Princeton's twenty-five-yard line to her own four-yard line, when time was called.

Brown Scores Easily on Bates.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 6.—Brown easily defeated Bates to-day, 17 to 0. The visitors made some gains on trick plays. Two of Brown's touchdowns came on plunges through the line, in which High, the new full back, carried the ball. The summary: Touchdowns—High, (2,) Ayler. Goals from touchdowns—Regnier, 2. Umpire—Mr. Murleigh of Exeter. Referee—Mr. Marshall of Harvard. Field Judge—Mr. French. Time of halves—Twenty minutes.

Navy May Row at Poughkeepsie.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 6.—There is an excellent prospect that the Naval Academy will be represented by an eight at the Poughkeepsie regatta next year, and the matter is now being considered by Capt. J. M. Bowyer, Superintendent of the Naval Academy. It is believed that he is much more favorably disposed toward the proposition than was his predecessor, Capt. Charles Badger. The midshipmen rowed at Poughkeepsie in 1907, and were beaten only by Cornell and Columbia.

THEORY AND PRACTICE.

In the course of his first speech in California on Monday President TAFT made the following remarks:

> Of course we want prosperity, but we wish prosperity in such a way that there shall be an equality of opportunity among the individuals so that everybody will get his share, and that it shall not be confined to a few who monopolize the means of production or the means of transportation, and thus prevent that equality of distribution which we all like to see.

We should like very much to have Mr. TAFT sit down in leisurely earnest and examine the new tariff as it came from the hands of his friend Senator ALDRICH in the light of the principle here announced. At the time he spoke he was probably in receipt of the urgent request from the carded wool manufacturers that he would aid in giving them redress for certain serious wrongs done to them in the tariff, certain provisions by which their materials of manufacture are made to cost very much more than they otherwise should. He has also undoubtedly received information of the plight in which manufacturers of woolen clothing generally find themselves, which it is asserted will result in an addition of at least a hundred millions to the cost of such clothing next year, the greater part of which burden will fall on the poorer people of the country.

We venture to think that these are grave infringements on the right of equal opportunity which he proclaims and undertakes to enforce. They are very definite and practical examples of such infringement. The law which imposes them upon large numbers of the relatively helpless people of the United States is one which Mr. TAFT was led—we should say, was misled—into signing. Would it not be sensible, and, to use a word Mr. TAFT is fond of borrowing from his predecessor in office, would it not be decent, to revise this law before undertaking new legislation?

At Beverly the next day Mr. TAFT gave this entirely satisfactory statement of a part—an essential part—of the foundation of the theory of popular government:

> Popular government is justified and vindicated on the theory that every class, and by that I mean those who in respect to a community are similarly situated and affected by the same circumstances, is better able in the long run to know what its interests are, and to look after those interests, than the members of any other class, however altruistic that other class may be.

Here again is an admirable opportunity for a searching of conscience. The President has in previous speeches practically acknowledged that in the protective tariff we violate this underlying principle of popular government. We do this even when the tariff is made to conform to the modest plan of the original protectionists. How much more and more outrageously do we violate it in the measure just passed! By that it is no "altruistic class" to which are given in charge the interests of other classes, but an intensely selfish, greedy, and unscrupulous class, as represented by the lobby in the rooms of the Aldrich committee. It is really a pity that Mr. TAFT cannot give utterance to his sound ideas of democratic principles without running up against recent and obvious infractions of these principles for which he is himself largely responsible.

THE COOLING OF FRUITS.

To Mr. A. FAGOT of New Orleans is due the invention whereby California fruits will henceforth be "pre-cooled" in preparation for their journey across the continent. At Roseville, a few miles out of Sacramento, are the great depots of the Southern Pacific Railroad, whence the bulk of the fruits for the Eastern markets is shipped during the Summer months. Here the first "pre-cooler" is being completed at a cost of $250,000. Into this construction cars of sun-heated fruit will be run and subjected to the action of compressed air at low temperatures. The fruit, thoroughly cooled before its continental trip, will thus be guarded against decay in transit. It may be picked at a riper stage, it will need less ice in packing, and will arrive in the Eastern markets in better condition than by the old method of refrigeration. At Colton, sixty miles east of Los Angeles, another big "pre-cooler" is being erected. Each plant will chill the contents of twenty cars at a time, and is expected to pay, and more than pay, for its cost and maintenance by the consequent saving in ice and its freightage, now amounting to about $70 a car.

This development in the fruit industry, fully described by Mr. WILLIAM E. CURTIS in The Washington Star of Tuesday, is one of significance to consumers. The chief complaint against fruits that were not "home grown" has been that they were picked in an unripe condition so as to prevent decay in transit. The "pre-cooling" method, now made commercially possible, will enable fruits fully ripened to be brought thousands of miles to the tables of the people. It is as notable a step in advance as the first introduction of refrigerator cars.

SUFFRAGETTE ARGUMENTS.

Poor Mr. ASQUITH had a particularly hard time at Birmingham, whither he went to make a defense of the Government against the telling assaults of Lord ROSEBERY and the milder attack of Mr. BALFOUR. He was met by a delegation of armed Suffragettes, who presented their case in their usual animated and determined fashion, so that ten of them were subsequently brought before the Magistrates of the city and sentenced to various penalties.

All but one of them were strangers, from London, Liverpool, Bradford, and Clement's Inn, showing that the movement to convince Mr. ASQUITH that he ought to let the bill for votes for women come to a vote in the Commons is a concerted one, embracing widely separated parts of the country. The Birmingham lady, MARY EDWARDS—the police reporter does not state whether the defendants were or were not married—was, however, the most aggressive of them all. She said defiantly:

> I had the opportunity, had I chosen to take it, of seriously injuring Mr. ASQUITH. I am now sorry I did not do it. As he will not listen to words I think it is time that blows should be struck. In spite of the fact that the police surrounded him, I was two yards from him. I had axe and penknife, and I did not use them on his motor car.

Though she declined to get at Mr. ASQUITH with her penknife and axe, she assaulted the police and a citizen, and when she was arrested smashed all the glass she could reach in her cell. She was sentenced to six weeks' imprisonment. The ladies from Bradford and Clement's Inn resorted to a more elaborate form of argument. It is thus described in the report:

> The evidence showed that MARSH and LEE got on to a roof and, armed with axes, removed slates and bricks, which they threw at the crowd below and also at Mr. ASQUITH's motor car. Water was turned upon them from a fire hose, but they could not be dislodged, and the police had to go on to the roof after them. Several officers were struck by slates. It was admitted that when the missiles were thrown the defendants shouted "Look out!"

They were condemned to three and four months' confinement with hard labor, with fines to which the alternative was an extra month of labor. Others received lighter sentences. It hardly seems to an outsider as if demonstrations of this sort were calculated to convince the present electors of the desirability of giving the suffrage to the demonstrators, but it is to be said that they do not differ materially from the tactics by which considerable classes of males now possessing the ballot secured it.

A CAMPAIGN KEYNOTE.

Dr. PARKHURST has changed his mind. He is not so much in favor of Mr. GAYNOR for Mayor as he thought, and upon consideration prefers Mr. BANNARD. This lends point to one of the earliest utterances of the Fusion candidate. Said Mr. BANNARD:

> We want every man who now believes he would like to vote for Justice GAYNOR to register, because we firmly believe that before the end of the campaign many men who now think they are going to vote for GAYNOR will vote for the Fusion ticket.

That is the strongest hope of the Fusion campaign, and this is the only way to realize the hope. Mr. BANNARD does well to pass word along the line that Tammany is on the defensive, both for itself and for its candidate. On behalf of Tammany it will be an explanatory, exculpatory campaign. A campaign which has no other strength than that is lost in advance, but Tammany has other resources. One of them is its own culpability, and the attacks upon it. Nothing could more solidify Tammany's cohorts than such a thorough exposure of their misdeeds that the fear of defeat is forced upon their hearts.

The Bureau of Municipal Research and the Commission of Accounts has done this work of denunciation in advance. Perhaps Mr. BANNARD has more ammunition, or can find new ways of restating facts so familiar that they have become somewhat wearisome. The cry of "Turn the rascals out" is very well, but we would like to see a campaign modeled more along the lines of the quotation above. We would like to see some affirmative reasons why the opposition should be put in. The Fusion campaign will turn upon the independent vote, that is upon voters who care little whether Tammany or the opposition holds the offices. They demand some reason which concerns them why one side should be favored rather than the other.

It would be an inspiriting thing if Mr. BANNARD could strike some note all his own. This ought he to do, and also he would do well if he outlined in principle if not in detail his remedy for the evils in the City Government. The problem of the campaign is to get a mandate to use efficiently and constructively the money now wasted upon tax eaters. It is a magnificent opportunity for Mr. BANNARD. It is a greater opportunity for the taxpayers. We rejoice to see from the spirit indicated by the above quotation that Mr. BANNARD has taken the nettle with a hand so firm that it needs no glove. But the voters have their duty as well as he. Their first duty is to register.

THE SMOKE NUISANCE.

From the tower of the Times Building in every direction, and at most hours of the day, may be observed flagrant violations of the Sanitary Code with respect to the emission of smoke. In the harbor, on the Hudson, along and upon the East River, and over the Island of Manhattan the chimneys vomit forth black volumes that fill the air with contamination. This city has been justly famed for its sparkling skies. Negligence and wastefulness pollute them, while the Board of Health permits its regulations to be flouted.

Is not this a proper time to proceed against the smoke nuisance? With the oncoming of cold weather janitors have begun to fire their furnaces. Perhaps they will not do this fast enough to meet the wishes of chilly tenants, but the manner of their doing it is an offense in the nostrils of every one. Let the crusaders take heart. Their efforts to clear the atmosphere will win the gratitude of all but the guilty offenders.

CANADA'S FARTHEST NORTH.

Capt. BERNIER has returned from the Far North, whither he went commissioned to plant the British flag in token of Canada's ownership of "all islands and other parts of land in the arctic seas which hitherto had been left unclaimed." This is a pretty large order, but the Dominion is serious in its contention that it owns all it claims, and it claims all that portion of the earth. Capt. BERNIER went no higher than 84 degrees, and it might be thought that Canada's rights went no further, but the Canadian press is reviving the acts of the Dominion and Imperial Parliaments asserting that Canada owns all the land between the United States border and the north pole. That claim has not been contested since it was made in 1878, and Canada thinks it late to raise any question now.

The question has not been raised because it possessed no practical importance, but there are new considerations. AMUNDSEN actually traversed the Northwest Passage, and BERNIER undertakes to make that voyage in any season. Does Canada own the Northwest Passage? The question might seem absurd but for other contentions hardly less so. Canada regards Hudson Bay as a closed sea, and her own. Last Spring a Canadian cruiser seized an American schooner for fishing in Hecate Strait, which the United States claims to be open ocean, and which Canada claims to be within her territorial jurisdiction on reasoning exactly like that by which some Americans contended that the Bering Sea was an American salt water lake and subject to exclusive American jurisdiction.

The United States perforce abandoned its claims, and so it may be expected must Canada. But it is not premature to file a protest to her contention that she owns all that she claims clear to the "roof of the world," and a sector of that. The Canadian press justifies the contention by analogy to our argument regarding the ownership of contested Alaskan territory. We argued that unchallenged tenure and occupation gave title. Canada claims that mere unchallenged declaration of possession gives title. It would seem that the mere statement of the case indicates the distinction. Canada further claims the pole on the "hinterland" theory. There is no boundary or adverse possession anywhere on the land between her undoubted possession and the pole itself—therefore the pole is hers. If the theory is good Denmark's claim that the pole is part of Greenland is better. But Greenland is an island, and Canada's rights can run no further than the sea which washes the continent at its farthest north, beyond which the rival explorers both claim to have passed. They left the United States flag flying, and that is constructive possession as against Canada, which never hoisted her flag, and can make only a lawyer's argument. Canada does not claim to have discovered the pole, and certainly has never occupied it. How can she defend a claim to possession where she is not able to haul down a disputing flag? These are apparently idle questions now, but the history of Alaska gives ample warning that events march quickly up North, and it is hard to say when these technical questions may take on material importance unless a question is raised regarding Canada's title to all she claims. That is a new basis of title in international law.

A PROUD RECORD.

The admission rate into hospitals for the American Army is 1,250 per 1,000 each year. The British Annual notes that this enormous rate is well above that for the French, German, and Austrian armies, while the hospital lists for the British Army show a rate of but 324 a thousand. The death rate of American soldiery is 6.14 a thousand—twice that of the British and French soldiers, who stand next in the list.

We invite the members of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union to inspect these figures. Their unfortunate disproportion is largely due to excesses among the army men of the United States consequent upon the abolition of the canteen.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Justice Swift for Once. So brief were the trials of the two burglars whose invasion of the Staber house resulted in the killing of Mrs. STABER that at first thought they seem to give confirmation to the theory that there is one law for the poor and another for the rich. Certainly the proceedings in these cases were in strange contrast, as regards speed, even with a notorious trial which took place not long ago, also across the East River and before the same Judge, and they were simply vertiginous as compared with many which have been held here in recent years.

But while it is doubtless true that a somewhat longer and harder fight would have been made for these men if they had not been both friendless and penniless, it must be remembered that had their social and financial status been different, any crime they might have committed would also have been different—more complex, harder to prove, and involving at least the possibility of some plea in justification or mitigation. In this case there was not only no question as to the facts, but the men were as destitute of sentimental as legal excuse. Without even a pretense of any motive except the desire to rob, they armed themselves in preparation for just such contingencies as arose, broke into a house after midnight, and, when discovered in the very act of packing up their booty for removal, they showed an instant readiness to kill rather than be captured.

That the death of Mrs. STABER was unintended and in a way an accident; that there is a remote possibility that her wound was inflicted by a bullet fired by her own son—these things have nothing to do with the question of responsibility. The defense of the murderers was perfunctory, not because they were poor, but because there was practically nothing that could be said in their behalf, and the nothing was said in few words instead of the many which would have been said, not if they had been rich, but if they had been rich and had been guilty of one of the crimes that follow temptations unlike the one to which they yielded.

It is not that these trials were too swift, but that other trials are too slow, and our law at worst only fails to inflict justice. It cannot fairly be charged with inflicting injustice in any except the rarest instances, and then only through ordinary human fallibility.

The Cook-Peary Controversy. When Dr. COOK refuses to submit the proofs of his announced achievement to a board of American scientists, and explains the refusal by talking nonsense about "justice to the Danes," he exposes himself to the suspicion that he wants to delay the settlement of his claims as long as possible, and, of course, it is easy, though unkind, to imagine the reason for that desire. The position of Denmark and the University of Copenhagen in the matter is more mysterious.

We had supposed that at a word from Dr. COOK he would be released from any agreement or promise he may have made regarding the examination of his documents, and that the Danish scientists would be glad to escape the performance of a task which, in existing circumstances, has for them some decidedly embarrassing features. On what at the time seemed to them adequate confirmation of Dr. COOK's announcement, they hailed and fêted him as the discoverer of the pole. Their action was accepted as conclusive by the Danish royal family, and in consequence of it he received all the honors due to an unquestioned success. The situation is now changed, and in a way which makes it impossible for the Danes to act as wholly disinterested judges.

Nobody charges or thinks that they are less competent than other scientists to decide on the quality of Dr. COOK's records, or that they would declare the records convincing if they were not so; but certainly they can claim no superior competency, and the fact cannot be ignored that they have special reasons for hoping that one conclusion rather than another can be reached. Many a perfectly honest Judge has refused to hear a case with which he had closely analogous relations, not because he thought he would be swayed by his interests or his emotions, but because he deemed it right to shun the very appearance of evil, of possible bias.

Yet the dispatches of yesterday and the day before showed that the Rector of the Copenhagen University, if not exactly holding Dr. COOK to his promise, was more than intimating that no wish to release him from it existed, and that failure on his part to keep it would be considered improper and offensive. This we think a mistake, and a grave one, not less regrettable than surprising. Commander PEARY is suffering an irremediable injury from the delay in terminating the controversy which has arisen between himself and Dr. COOK, and for that delay the University of Copenhagen is making itself in part as least responsible.

Big Enough to Have Two Names. That the Hudson is the Hudson from source to mouth is true, and true also is it that the lower as well as the upper reaches of the river might as well or better be called by the right name. Still, "North River," as used, has certain attractions and does no harm, so we cannot understand the fierce antagonism to it manifested by several of our correspondents.

For one thing, "North River" is a very old name, with a lot of historic significance, and everybody whose curiosity it excites learns a useful little lesson as soon as he runs across somebody who can tell him why it was invented. And, anyhow, about the only people who nowadays employ, or for a long time have employed, the reprehended name are the river front population—a conservative class with traditions—and sign boards—dating back to the days when the Hudson was thought of, not as a river running up into the interior, but as a harbor to the north of another harbor, the Delaware.

"North River" is a dying name, and there is no necessity for hurrying its dissolution.

Metropolitan Bells Again.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Is there to be no relief? The Metropolitan Tower plays a discordant tune every fifteen minutes that produces about the same affect on the nerves as a hand-organ stationed permanently in front of one's window. Physicians report that sick persons in the neighborhood are made worse, and that well persons get nervous attacks if they cannot move away. Real estate agents say that apartments and rooms are being given up. Appeals to the Board of Health and to the police have no effect. The nuisance was bad enough when the bells rang by day only; now they ring during the night also.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Has Mrs. Stetson erred as a Christian Science reader? If not, why has she been deposed? If she has, then Christian Science is wrong, for Christian Science says that error does not exist.

MAILED LETTER IN FIREBOX.

Visitor from Jefferson County Astonished at Commotion That Follows.

Archibald Wagner, from Adams, Jefferson County, N. Y., and who with his wife has been visiting friends at 211 West Twenty-second Street during the Hudson-Fulton Celebration, started out yesterday morning with his wife to mail a letter. He went into a drug store at the corner of Seventh Avenue and Twenty-second Street and bought a stamp. Coming out he met a boy.

"Where can I mail this letter, sonny?" asked Mr. Wagner.

"Put it in that red box on the post," the urchin replied, dodging around the corner to await developments.

Mr. Wagner tinkered with the fire-alarm box while his wife waited, and finally he got it open. He followed the instructions to pull down the hook, but he couldn't see the place for the letter. While he was thinking the matter over a great clatter of hoofs sounded and two fire engines and a truck pulled up to the curb. When Chief Turpenny sized up the situation he called for a policeman. Several responded. One arrested Mr. Wagner and started toward the station house with him.

The visitor from Jefferson County realized by that time the seriousness of his situation, and his wife joined her entreaties to her husband's. Chief Turpenny said he guessed it was all a mistage after all, and as he wouldn't make a complaint the policemen let him go.

CITY DEBT LIMIT.

Says Savings Bank Depositors Should Be Interested in This Question.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial in to-day's TIMES, entitled "An Eloquent Silence," calls attention to the fact that the proposed amendment to the Constitution extending the city's limit to borrow in excess of 10 per cent. of its indebtedness has been sidetracked by the platforms of the two political conventions which have made nominations for city officers.

At the annual convention of the Savings Banks Association of this State, held on May 27 last, a resolution was unanimously adopted that the association publish its protest against the adoption of this amendment, and this was referred to its Executive Committee for further action. Is it not time for this committee to act and notify such of its depositors as reside in this State of the danger which a depreciation of the city bonds would have upon the assets of the savings banks, holding about $150,000,000 of city bonds, or nearly one-fourth of the entire issue?

The increased taxation and consequent increase of rents, resulting from increased interest upon additional city bonds is bad enough for rent payers, who are savings bank depositors, without witnessing a depreciation of the security for their deposits.

We want more subways, but let them be paid for as we go along from year to year. This subject is of far greater importance than whether this or that man is elected County Clerk, or Sheriff, or Mayor, even. It is not a party question, but one that affects the fair name and credit of the metropolis of this country.

Let the savings bank depositors at least arise and seek to present this matter to the voters in its proper light.

The Common Burden.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The following excerpt from your editorial "Between Fusion and Tammany" in THE TIMES of to-day contains instructions that Mr. Bannard should command his campaign managers to persistently and consistently follow:

> It lies with the campaign managers of Mr. Bannard to persuade these voters, who, as house owners, tenants, roomers, boarders, or in whatever manner they may live and whatever may be their business, are in a true sense taxpayers, that it is for their interest and for their advantage that the affairs of the city should be administered as the affairs of a private concern would be administered—economically, intelligently, safely, and according to sound business methods.

It is generally believed that dishonesty and extravagance in municipal government is at the expense only of those who directly pay the taxes, and this belief is strongest among Tammany supporters and is fostered by Tammany spellbinders.

Praise for Sulzer.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Congressman William Sulzer stands out conspicuously as the one Democrat from this city in Congress who refused to vote for the corrupt deal to enthrone "Cannonism" on the taxpayers of this country. All credit to him!

He has an enviable record as a public man, and his refusal to be a party to this ignominious Cannon deal should not be forgotten by the people of this city next year.

For a Cleveland Square.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why not have a square named after our late President, Grover Cleveland? A more suitable place could not be desired than the junction of St. Nicholas and Seventh Avenues, at 116th Street, to be named "Cleveland Square."

THE SPIRITED.

Once more the college town rings out
With the raucous sound of the college shout,
And the peaceful natives are on the racks
As breke, ke kex, koax, koax
Is yelled by night and is yelled by day,
And the barber poles are stolen away,
And a deafening chorus of Siss, Boom, Ah!
And the football season begins to throb,
And the college spirit gets on the job!

Once more John Harvard lays down the law,
Once more Three Cheers for Old Nassau
Are cried with vociferous vim and will,
And the town policeman they almost kill,
And the Freshman mournfully sighs for home,
Tho' there indeed, if he only knew,
The college spirit is working, too,
And that maddening burden of Rah! Rah! Rah!
Is raising the dickens with Pa and Ma!

Poor Ma, in fact, tho' she'd scarce know how To voice an articulate 'Varsity Wow,
Is tortured at night by a terrible dream
Of impending defeat for the football team,
And a vision is dangled before her eyes
Of shattered ankles and broken thighs,
While Pa, with cost that he little recks,
Is showing his spirit by writing checks,
And trusting he never may go to jail
For God, for Country, and for Yale!

Rickety, rickety, sing, zing, boom!
Let Freshmen manfully meet their doom,
And for any old college in any old place
Learn the honor and love that Time can't efface
That is voiced in the shouts at the football game
As, winning or losing, they shout just the same;
But far away from the bellowing crowd
There are other shouts that are just as loud,
And I prize much more than the yells of boys—
The college spirit that has no noise!

ARTHUR JUDD RYAN.

ATTACKS ARMY SANITATION.

Dr. Seaman Says Conditions in Civilized Armies Are Monstrous.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—General criticism of the medical organization of the army, a sharp attack on that organization by Major Louis L. Seaman of the Board of Trustees of the New York Museum of Safety and Sanitation, and a scoring of the medical corps of the National Guard occupied the chief session of the Association of Military Surgeons at the New Willard to-day.

Dr. Seaman, though a volunteer officer, has had experience in eight campaigns. He concluded his arraignment with the offer of a prize of $500 for the best essay on "what should be the status of the medical department of an army in order that sanitary and hygienic conditions may be maintained at their highest efficiency so that in the emergency of battle its units may best respond to the call of its commanders."

"A personal experience in eight campaigns with our own and foreign armies," said Major Seaman, "in various parts of the globe has demonstrated to me the utter inadequacy of the medical departments of them all. When it is remembered that this department combats the enemy that kills 80 per cent. out of every 100 that die in war, and that all the other machinery of the army kills but 20 per cent., and also that the medical department has to fight the enormous amount of invalidism that so often renders an army feeble before the enemy, one is forced to the conclusion that the situation is simply monstrous, unpatriotic, and criminal, particularly in view of the small numbers and limited authority of the men intrusted with this work.

"The units that compose our unconscripted army are entitled to and should receive the best sanitary care a Government can give. In order to do this the medical department should have power to enforce sanitation and hygienic measures and to advise on all matters of diet."

The award of the prize offered by Dr. Seaman will be made at the seventeenth annual meeting of the association, which will be held in London in 1912.

Sir Alfred Keogh also criticised medical officers, but his comment was directed against them chiefly for weakening an army's fighting strength by invaliding men home when they are perfectly able to continue on the firing line.

Col. Valry Harvard, U. S. A., medical corps, said that the medical service of the American Army in Cuba at the beginning of the war was paralyzed because its supplies were kept miles out at sea and later dumped promiscuously along the shore. Such a thing would not have happened, he said, had the medical corps had charge of its own transportation facilities, as it should have, he maintained, in time of war.

Declaring that much of the field service of the Medical Corps of the State Militia was a joke, Capt. Harold W. Jones, Medical Corps, U. S. A., arraigned the present organization of the medical departments of the National Guard. He read a paper on some impressions he had gained of the value of camps of medical instruction for medical officers of the National Guard, and called upon the medical officers to take up immediately the fight to secure at once some change in the field organization.

Capt. Jones's views were at least partially supported by Major George F. Crampton of the Pennsylvania National Guard, who said that something was needed, beyond "beautifully worked-out schemes for medical aid and the Red Cross bringing up the rear."

He emphasized the value of camps of instruction for militia medical officers.

MORE LIBERTY FOR MORSE.

New Bail Bond Extends His Time to Oct. 11, Possibly Longer.

The new bail bond for Charles W. Morse, extending his term of liberty from Oct. 9 to Oct. 11, was signed yesterday before United States Commissioner Shields by the same company of bankers, brokers, and business men who signed the original bail bond last Summer, when Morse was released from the Tombs pending the decision of his appeal from conviction and sentence of fourteen years in the Federal Prison at Atlanta. The bond is merely an extension of the existing bond, made necessary because the United States Circuit Court of Appeals does not meet until Oct. 11.

It was expected that the decision on the Morse appeal would come down when the court reconvenes, but this is not regarded as likely now, inasmuch as Judge Noyes, one of the Judges who considered it, is now in Europe, and will not be back until the 1st of December. This was indicated yesterday by the fact that the language of the bond filed yesterday says that the recognizance should be continued from time to time until the decision was announced.

Judge Lacombe, in the United States Circuit Court, yesterday, discharged William T. Cobb, Robert T. Herrick, and George C. Wing as ancillary receivers of the Consolidated Steamship Lines in this jurisdiction following their discharge as receivers by the United States courts in Maine. The receivers, who were appointed after the crash of the Morse steamship lines in the Fall of 1907, have reported that they have not now any property of the company in their possession.

Richard M. Martin, appointed by the Supreme Court as referee to report on the application of Frederick B. Case to be awarded the surplus, amounting to $78,846, arising out of the foreclosure of mortgages on property at 720-726 Fifth Avenue, formerly belonging to Charles W. Morse, and adjoining his home at 728 Fifth Avenue, reported yesterday to the court recommending that Case has the first lien on the surplus, and that because his claim is greater than the surplus amount he should receive the whole sum.

The referee said that Morse entered into an oral agreement with F. S. Mosely & Co., when they demanded additional collateral for their notes, by which he agreed to give Case a deed of all the property extending from 720 to 726 Fifth Avenue. This deed was delivered by Morse to Case, but was not recorded, and when the George Kemp Real Estate Company foreclosed the mortgages on the property after Morse's failure it still stood in his name.

The referee also found that Case had advanced $19,776 for taxes on the property, and $48,102 for interest on two prior mortgages to prevent their foreclosure. He said that on Sept. 9 Morse was still indebted to Mosely & Co. for $896,290, but that as they held securities belonging to Morse valued at $515,000, he was still in their debt $381,290.

METZ AT ESSEX MARKET.

Inspects the Court and Says There Are Worse Places.

Controller Metz visited the Essex Market Court yesterday afternoon at the instance of the committee of the Grand Jury, which has been considering the conditions in that court. The Controller said of the place when he came back:

"It is not worse than a good many others I know of. It is being improved now with a coat of paint. But there are other places in the city, police stations, police courts, and schools, which are unsanitary. They all ought to be pulled down and rebuilt, but that costs money.

"Of course, something ought to be done at Essex Market if only to make the administration of justice more impressive. Some use might be made of the spare space in Ludlow Street Jail, and the site now occupied by the frame buildings might be utilized. I don't suppose it would cost more than $150,000. But there's no reason why we should have hysteria over it."

The Controller promised Albert J. Weber of the September Grand Jury to support the issue of $150,000 revenue bonds for a new Court House. In Ludlow Street Jail he advocated the transfer of its custody from the Sheriff to the Department of Correction, so that criminal as well as civil prisoners might be confined there.

METZ AGAINST MARKET PLAN.

Objects to City Paying $8,000,000 for a New One in Bay Ridge.

Controller Metz has no intention of assisting the expenditure of $8,000,000 on the erection of buildings for the Eighth Ward Market, Bay Ridge, Brooklyn. The local board approved the idea two years ago, and the city has since been filling in the site on the water front at Thirty-eighth and Thirty-sixth Streets.

An application is to be made to the Board of Estimate for the appropriation of funds to complete the market.

"That won't go," said Mr. Metz yesterday, "as long as I am Controller. Why should the city pay out its good money for markets which are losing propositions? If the business men of the district want a market they should pay for its erection. Look at Washington Market. It's an eyesore, and the cost of its repairs is more than the rent it brings in."

ARMY MANOEUVRES WITH MILITIA STOP

Boston Campaign Convinces War Department That Plan Is Too Hard on Guardsmen.

WOULD TRAIN THE OFFICERS

Say These Could Attend School with Regulars and Save Citizen Privates Rough Campaigning.

WASHINGTIN, Oct. 6.—As a result of the recent army manoeuvres and the famous Boston campaign, similar joint manoeuvres of the regular army and the National Guard under severe service conditions are to be discontinued so long as the forces which now guide the War Department have their way. It is held by the department officials that the suffering and hardship involved in the Boston campaign was all out of proportion to any lessons learned—though some of these lessons are admitted to be valuable, if only as a demonstration of what cannot be done and should not be attempted with raw citizen soldiery in such a brief training school.

Besides, the officials are now convinced that all of real utility that was taught to the militiamen could just as well have been imparted otherwise without filling the hospital cots during the campaign and without causing the dreary lists of absentees on company roll call in the National Guard armories since then, attributable to pneumonia and dysentery extending over weeks after the return of the militiamen from the field.

It is true that the militiamen got a taste of conditions as they may exist in actual warfare. But for the most part they returned to their homes disheartened. That spirit is not calculated to further the plans of the army officers who desire to add to the numerical strength of the National Guard and to bring it up to the highest possible efficiency.

It has been decided, therefore, that hereafter the participation of the militia in an encampment with the regular soldiers every second year will limit the intermingling of these forces.

Little disposition is manifested here to shirk responsibility for what occurred, but it is recalled that the participation of the National Guard was voluntary, and that while the project for joint manoeuvres may have found its inception in the minds of the regular army officers, no compulsion was used to bring the militia into line. Militia officers are described as seizing with avidity upon the opportunity to gain experience in manoeuvres upon a scale beyond that afforded by the usual annual State encampments.

Critics of the manoeuvres now declare, however, that the brunt of the suffering fell upon the private, who, it is asserted, did not need that sort of instruction, while the officer could have got it otherwise. They contend that company, regimental, and battalion drill in any of the usual yearly encampments of the National Guard, with the addition of a little systematic cross-country marching from time to time, will sufficiently instruct the private. In the view of the War Department officers now, a fortnight in advance of the annual joint encampment of the regular army and militia should be spent by the National Guard officers in attendance upon a school conducted by regular army officers with the regular troops so that they might theoretically and by practical observation of the regular work be prepared for the handling of their own State troops when they join the encampment.

Taken as a whole last Summer's campaign is held to have taught some lessons almost worth the cost. For instance, it was shown conclusively that men of sedentary habit cannot safely be called into open field service without being gradually inured to its hardships, and that a week's encampment under wall tents in a carefully prepared camp does not sensibly fit the men for the hardships of a real field campaign. The guardsman has still to learn how to take care of his health, to pitch his own tent and cook his own meals, to find shelter in action, even at the expense of aptitude in marching movements and finesse in the manual of arms.

One of the progressive officers of the General Staff puts it this way:

"The real cure lies in the hands of the officers of the National Guard. The War Department can do little because of its limited authority over the militia. As we now see it, that little should be confined to the careful instruction of the militia officers in what we regard as the best method of training their men. We can only suggest, for we have no power to force upon them any considerable changes in present methods of armory and encampment work.

"If overambitious guard officers persist in trying to teach the private guardsman in a weekly drill and yearly fortnight's encampment all that the regular soldier learns in his 365 days in barracks and field work we cannot help them."

DU PONT ON POWDER TRUST.

Tells Some History, but Finds His Memory Poor.

Alfred I. Du Pont, Vice President of the Du Pont de Nemours Company, and head of the black powder division of the so-called Powder Trust, appeared as a witness yesterday in the Government's suit against the corporation, charging violations of the Sherman anti-trust law. For several hours he was in the witness chair before the Federal Examiner, William G. Mahaffy, in the offices of the powder company at 90 West Street, rehearsing the history of the powder business during the last hundred years, and telling of the changes that have taken place during that period.

Mr. Du Pont said that all trade agreements so far as he knew had been canceled. These trade agreements between the Du Pont de Nemours Company and other powder concerns have been made much of by the Government lawyers who are prosecuting the case. William S. Hilles, one of the powder company lawyers, questioned Mr. Du Pont about them.

"When the Government brought this suit against you on July 7, 1907, were there any trade agreements in existence?" asked Mr. Hilles. Mr. Du Pont said that the last one was canceled in 1906, so far as he knew. This was the European agreement by which certain allotments of territory were made with foreign manufacturers of powder. The witness said that this agreement was canceled at his own initiative, adding that it cost the powder company a large sum of money.

Mr. Du Pont showed a lack of memory on a few points which Mr. Scarlett, the Government's prosecutor, wished to get at. The lawyer wanted to know if there was not a verbal agreement between the Du Pont concern and European manufacturers after the abrogation of the trade agreement, by which the European manufacturers were not to invade the Du Pont field, and vice versa.

"I don't know," said Mr. Du Pont.

George L. Rood of Terre Haute, Ind., a powder manufacturer, was also a witness. He said he was associated with the Hazard Powder Company, but left it in 1897 to organize the Indiana Powder Company, which afterward blew up.

Under cross-examination Mr. Rood was asked: "Were you ever convicted of cutting prices and fined in Indiana?"

"I don't remember that I was," replied Mr. Rood, and that was the nearest approach to a direct answer the Government lawyer could extract from him.

The hearing was adjourned until Oct. 20.

MISS CLEMENS WEDS MR. GABRILOWITSCH

AVOIDS "CEREMONY DELAYS"

WEST REDDING, Conn., Oct. 6.—Miss Clara L. Clemens, daughter of Samuel L. Clemens, (Mark Twain,) was married at noon to-day to Ossip Gabrilowitsch, the Russian pianist. The wedding took place in the drawing room at Stormfield, Mr. Clemens's country home, with the Rev. Dr. Joseph H. Twitchell of Hartford, a close friend of Mr. Clemens, as officiating clergyman. The bride was attended only by her sister, Miss Jean Clemens, but her cousins, Jervis Langdon of Elmira, N. Y., and Mrs. Julia Loomis, wife of Edward Loomis, Vice President of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad, were present.

Miss Ethel Newcomb of New York City played a wedding march as the bridal party entered the drawing room. This room was prettily decorated with evergreens, Autumn leaves, and roses, and the bride and bridegroom stood beneath a bower of white roses and smilax.

While the ceremony was being performed Mr. Clemens was attired in the scarlet cap and gown which he wore when the degree of Doctor of Literature was conferred upon him by Oxford University. After the wedding he wore a white flannel suit.

Forty guests from New York City were present and attended a wedding breakfast which followed the marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Gabrilowitsch left for New York this afternoon. After remaining in that city about a week they will go to Berlin, where Mr. Gabrilowitsch has taken a house. Later Mr. Gabrilowitsch will make a tour of Germany in concerts.

Mark Twain's Interview.

Mr. Clemens prepared the following characteristic interview "to avoid any delays at the ceremony," as he expressed it. Speaking of the bride and bridegroom Mr. Clemens said: "Clara and Gabrilowitsch were pupils together under Leschetizky, in Vienna, ten years ago. We have known him intimately ever since. It's not new—the engagement. It was made and dissolved twice six years ago. Recovering from a perilous surgical operation, two or three months passed by him here in the house ended a week or ten days ago in a renewal. The wedding had to be sudden, for Gabrilowitsch's European season is ready to begin. The pair will sail a fortnight from now. The first engagements are in Germany. They have taken a house in Berlin."

"Can you say a word or two about the Redding Mark Twain Library?"

"The village did me the honor to name it so. It flourishes. The people come to it from a mile or so around. We are all engaged in propagating the building fund, in a social and inexpensive way, through picnics, afternoon teas, and other frolics in the neighborhood, with now and then a full strength concert in my house at ostentatious prices. We had one last week with a team composed of Gabilowitsch, David Bispham, and his bride, with me as introducer and police.

"We had an audience of 525. When I have a male guest I charge him a dollar for his bed and turn the money into the fund and give him an autographed receipt, which he carries away and sells for $1.10."

Doesn't Work, But Takes Exercise.

"Are you at work now?"

"No, I don't work. I have a troublesome pain in my breast which won't allow it, and won't allow me to stir out of the house. But I play billiards for exercise. Albert Bigelow Paine, my biographer and business manager, plays with me. He comes over every day for two or three hours. He has a farm half a mile from here upon which he raises hopes."

"Do you like it here at Stormfield?"

"Yes, it is the most out of the world and peaceful and tranquil and in every way satisfactory home I have had experience of in my life."

"The marriage pleases you, Mr. Clemens?"

"Yes, fully as much as any marriage could please me or perhaps any other father. There are two or three tragically solemn things in this life, and a happy marriage is one of them, for the terrors of life are all to come. A funeral is a solemn office, but I go to them with a spiritual uplift, thankful that the dead friend has been set free. That which follows is to me tragic and awful—the burial. I am glad of this marriage, and Mrs. Clemens would be glad, for she always had a warm affection for Gabrilowitsch, but all the same it is a tragedy, since it is a happy marriage with its future before it, loaded to the plimsoll line with uncertainties."

Among the guests at the wedding were Richard Watson Gilder, Mrs. Gilder and three daughters, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Wright of Boston, Mrs. E. F. Bauer and the Misses Flora and Marion Bauer of New York, Miss Lillian Burbank, Miss Marie Nichols, Mrs. John B. Stanchfield, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Sprague, Miss Foot, Miss Comstock, Miss Mary Lawton, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Gaillard, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hapgood, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bigelow Paine, and Miss Ethel Newcomb, all of New York.

MISS WILLIAMS A BRIDE.

Wedded to Charles A. Sterling at Ramblewood, Montclair.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Oct. 6.—Two hundred and fifty guests from New York, Brooklyn, Bridgeport, Conn.; the Oranges, and Montclair attended the reception following the wedding of Miss Susie Sigourney Williams and Charles Archer Sterling, both of Montclair, at the bride's home, the old Colonial mansion Ramblewood, which has stood for over 100 years on Sunset Avenue. The wedding took place at 8 o'clock this evening, the Rev. Dr. Amory H. Bradford, pastor of the First Congregational Church, officiating. Only the immediate relatives and a few intimate friends witnessed the ceremony, which took place in the west parlor of Ramblewood.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Susan Kettlewell Williams, gave her in marriage. The maid of honor was Miss Nellie Pearson, a niece of the bride, of New York City. The bridesmaids were Miss Mary Sterling, a sister of the bridegroom; Miss Mary Robinson, and Miss Agnes Force, all of Montclair. The flower girls, both nieces of the bride, were Miss Elizabeth W. Pearson of New York City and Miss Harriet K. Williams of Montclair. The best man was Frank Wilcox of New York City, and the ushers were Harold Van Kuren and George Lewis of Bridgeport, Conn., and John Armstrong of New York City. The bride wore a white lace embroidered robe over white satin. The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a diamond and pearl crescent brooch.

After the ceremony there was a wedding dinner, followed by the reception. Mr. and Mrs. Sterling left on a bridal trip, and upon their return will reside on Valley Road in Montclair.

NO BENEFIT FOR STRANDED.

Only 20 of Italian Opera Company Destitute, and Others Will Aid Them.

Although it was announced that a concert would be given on next Saturday night at the Academy of Music by the principals of the Italian Grand Opera Company for the benefit of the destitute members of that organization, it is probable that this affair will not take place. One of the leading artists of the company told a reporter for THE TIMES last night that it had been abandoned.

"There are only twenty members of the company," he said, "who are absolutely destitute. All the others have some money, and some of the singers have a great deal of money. It was found that if a benefit were given that all of the 150 members of the organization were going to demand their share of the proceeds, and as many of them are in no need of money those for whom the benefit is to be given would not profit. In fact, their share would barely cover their expenses on the cheapest boat back to Italy.

"It is probable that Mr. Piva or some other of the rich Italians in the city will assist the poorer members of the chorus to go back."

There is a movement on foot also to take the company intact on the road, but after the unpleasant experience that the Italians have had in New York they refuse to go out without a guarantee. There was a meeting yesterday of a body of men interested in the scheme to decide whether this guarantee could be raised, but nothing was finally settled upon.

Mrs. Wickes Buys Newport Estate.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 6.—The Haven estate on Narragansett Avenue, owned by the heirs of George G. Haven, has been sold to Marian Haven Wickes, wife of Forsyth Wickes of Lenox, Mass., for $30,000, the amount the estate is taxed for. The purchaser is the daughter of the late George G. Haven. The property is in the heart of the Summer colony, and contains a handsome residence. The property adjoins the Hinard cottages, and is opposite the residence of R. T. Wilson.

SWARTWOUT—ROGERS.

The wedding of Miss Ethel S. Rogers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Rogers of Bretton Hall, Broadway and Eighty-sixth Street, to Richard H. Swartwout of New York took place yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the St. Regis. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. S. Delancey Townsend, rector of All Angels' Protestant Episcopal Church.

Mrs. H. M. Wykes was matron of honor and Miss Nora Pitou, Miss Julia Culbert, and Miss Gertrude Lamb were the bridesmaids. Little Miss Eunice Baylis was the flower girl. A. M. Burnett was Mr. Swartwout's best man, and the ushers were Scott McLanahan, Andrew C. Imbrie, and F. C. Littleton.

RUSSELL—CAVANAUGH.

Miss Kathryn Amelia Cavanaugh of 7 Parkview Avenue, West Orange, N. J., was married at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the St. Cloud Presbyterian Church, West Orange, to Arthur Russell of Glen Ridge. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Robert Gardner McGregor, former pastor of the church, under whom Miss Cavanaugh spent years as a Sunday School worker. The bride has recently been a trained nurse. Miss Gertrude E. Olstead was the maid of honor and the best man was Nathan Russell, Jr., of Glen Ridge, the bridegroom's brother. Frederick W. Mercer and William F. Russell, Jr., of Summit, both cousins of the bridegroom; Millard Rouband of Glen Ridge, and Edward D. Farmer of Montclair, were the ushers.

HASTINGS—BELKNAP.

At the residence of the bride's father, in Yonkers, yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Dr. Thomas Wood Hastings, Professor of Clinical Pathology in the Cornell Medical College, was married to Miss Athenia A. Belknap, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Belknap, the Rev. William H. Boocock of Buffalo, N. Y., officiating.

TWOGOOD—MARTIN.

Mrs. Charles C. Martin of Washington, D. C., announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Louise Annella Martin, which took place on Oct. 4, to Dr. Merton Elwin Twogood. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Nelmes at the Pro-Cathedral Church, Washington, D. C.

STOCKWELL—NEIDLINGER.

At St. Ann's Church on Tuesday afternoon Emma Augusta Neidlinger, daughter of Mrs. Adam Neidlinger, was married to Levi Spear Stockwell, the Rev. Dr. James H. Hoadley officiating.

ROBINS—WRIGHT.

At the Hotel Marie Antoinette last evening at 8 o'clock Marie Louise Wright was married to Ralph Robins. The bride's sister was maid of honor and the bride's brother best man. After the wedding ceremony a reception was held in the small banquet room of the hotel, which was decorated with palms, ferns, and flowers.

Escher-Gleason Wedding Plans.

Preparations have been completed for the wedding of Miss Mildred B. Gleason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Blanchard Gleason, to Franklin Escher of New York, which takes place on the afternoon of Tuesday, Oct. 19, at the Hotel St. Regis. Mrs. W. W. Gleason, the bride's sister-in-law, will be matron of honor and only attendant. The Rev. Herbert Shipman of the Church of the Heavenly Rest is to officiate. The ushers will include the brothers of the bridegroom. Mrs. Gleason and her daughter are at 210 Fifth Avenue, where Mrs. Gleason will remain for the Winter.

SCHMIEG—TURNBRIDGE.

Mr. and Mrs. John Schmieg of 313 West Eighty-eighth Street announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Florence Bell Schmieg, to Stanley S. Turnbridge of Brooklyn.

WANAMAKER—SEWARD.

The engagement has been announced of Miss Lulu May Wanamaker to Robert Bacon Seward of the firm of Brown & Seward, patent attorneys of Manhattan. The wedding will take place during the Winter.

LOWENSTERN—WALLACE.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Lowenstern announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Doretta Lowenstern, to Arthur Wallace of Boston, Mass.

Social Notes.

The Duchess de Chaulnes, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore P. Shonts, and Miss Marguerite Shonts, who are at Hot Springs, Va., will leave for Chicago the latter part of next week.

Miss Morgan has returned to New York after visiting her sister, Mrs. Charles H. Baldwin, in Newport.

Mrs. Pembroke Jones and her daughter, Miss Sadie Jones, have arrived at Hot Springs from Newport.

Mrs. Ledyard Stevens, who spent the Summer at Bar Harbor, has been in town for a fortnight, and is now at the New Weston for the Winter. The marriage of her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Winthrop Stevens, to John de Koven Bowen will not take place until June, when Mr. Bowen graduates from Yale.

Mrs. Le Roy King has arrived in town from Newport and opened her residence, 20 East Eighty-fourth Street.

Dr. Albert S. Newcomb and Mrs. Newcomb have gone to Schenectady, N. Y., where they will remain until Jan. 1.

'THE FOURTH ESTATE' SEEN AT WALLACK'S

Play in Which a Case of Specific Corruption Is Supposed to Argue a General Fact.

MELODRAMA WELL ACTED

Scene Showing the Composing Room of Daily Before Going to Press Is Like the Real Thing.

THE FOURTH ESTATE, a play in four acts, by Joseph Medill Patterson and Harriet Ford. Wallack's.

Wheeler Brand	Charles Waldron
Donald Bartelmy	Charles A. Stevenson
Edward Dupuy	Howell Hansel
Michael Nolan	Thomas Findlay
Sylvester Nolan	Tom Hadaway

Mrs. Michael Nolan	Alice Fischer
Phyllis Nolan	Mary Marshall

"The Fourth Estate," produced at Wallacks last night, is the sort of play which is almost always certain of a reasonable amount of popularity. It argues from a specific example of corrupt newspaper practice to the general, which is a method always sensational in effect and likely to appeal to those who know no better. As an exposure, therefore, it need not be taken seriously, but it contains several scenes that are popularly effective.

In the particular case the playwrights exploit a corrupt Judge, who has succeeded in silencing all other critics of his actions, finds himself blocked when it comes to the young managing editor of The Advance. The proprietor of the paper backs up his employe in his fight against corruption, even going so far as to allow him to make a pretended "deal" with the Judge, and to accept a bribe for suppressing an important piece of news. The Judge is photographed by flashlight in the act of paying the bribe, and the story gets into the forms. There it is stopped by the order of the owner of the paper, who insists that it is a time to be merciful. There is no hint that he has been "reached" financially, but has been influenced by his wife and daughter, who have been courting social favor at the hands of the Judge's family. Previously, the young managing editor has been implored by the Judge's daughter, whom he loves and had hoped to marry, to prevent the publication. Failing to move him it appears, of course, that their love story must end then and there. This disappointment, coupled with the weakness of the man, his discovery of whom he had trusted, is too much for the managing editor, who, after having arranged to have the story appear in spite of orders, blows out his brains.

If such practices as are shown in this play do exist at all, they are not sufficiently common to cause any occasion for uneasiness in the public mind. Newspaper proprietors, though they share with other men the common virtue of loving their families, also share with them the prerogative of running their business enterprises to suit themselves, and not in response to the social ambitions of their wives and daughters. It might be interesting, however, to know in just what sort of a newspaper environment Joseph Medill Patterson got his ideas; wherever it may have been, it was a limited experience, and must not be taken too seriously.

In other respects the play, which he and Harriet Ford have written, fulfills the purpose for which it is doubtless intended. It contains several effective melodramatic scenes, and the interest in the issue is fairly sustained throughout. The weakest spot comes in the second act, in a scene in which the climbers of the newspaper proprietor's family give a reception to which nobody comes; the strongest is that in which the managing editor conveys to the Judge the information that he has caught him in the act of betraying the people whom he has promised to serve faithfully.

The acting throughout is exceptionally competent for this type of play, Mr. Charles A. Stevenson giving a capital picture of the sleek political Judge, and Mr. Charles Waldron playing the young managing editor hero with fine fervor and sincerity. Miss Pauline Frederick acts naturally and charmingly in her lighter scenes and with good emotional effect in the more exacting episodes. For one-half of the house, however, her face was overshadowed by her hats, which, while very beautiful, were not wisely chosen for the stage. Miss Frederick's face is not one that need be covered. Alice Fisher as a conventional nouveau riche person, and Thomas Thorne as a budding poet added amusing figures, while Robert McWade, Jr., Howell Hansell, and Thomas Findlay played the other important rôles with excellent effect.

Temporary "St. Elmo" Injunction.

AUBURN, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Judge Ray, in the United States Court here to-day, granted a temporary injunction, which restrains Mortimer Snow, William H. O'Neill, Warren F. Hill, William H. Clifford, and Frederick E. Graham from producing the play "St. Elmo," a dramatization of the novel by Augusta J. Evans. The novel was written in 1866, was copyrighted and published by G. W. Dillingham Company of New York. After it was dramatized by Willard Holcomb the rights were purchased by Vaughan Glaser for $1,500. It was first produced on June 28, 1909, at Richmond, Va., and four companies are now on the road. The temporary injunction holds until the December term of the United States Court at Utica, where the argument will be made.

ROSTAND AT REHEARSALS.

Dramatist Is Directing the Production of His Play, "Chantecler."

PARIS, Oct. 6.—Edmond Rostand, the dramatic author, has arrived here to conduct personally the rehearsals of his new play, "Chantecler," which are now proceeding. It is expected that the piece will be presented to the public for the first time early in November. The coming performance is creating intense interest, and fabulous prices are being offered for seats at the first night's performance.

The late Benoit Constant Coquelin was originally selected to play the principal rôle in "Chantecler," but died while he was studying the part.

All the characters in the play are supposed to be occupants of a barnyard, and take the names of domestic birds and animals.

ORGANIST DUDLEY BUCK DEAD.

Played at Holy Trinity Church for 25 Years—Noted Composer.

Dudley Buck, composer and organist, author of many textbooks on music, and well known throughout the country as an authority on musical subjects, died yesterday at the home of his son, Dudley Buck, Jr., at 65 Northfield Road, West Orange, N. J. Mr. Buck was for many years organist at Holy Trinity Church, this city, but retired in 1902 from all except theoretical work and composition.

As composer of the cantata sung by 800 voices at the opening of the Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia, in 1876, Mr. Buck achieved recognition among musical people throughout the United States. Mr. Buck was born in Hartford, Conn., on March 10, 1839. He studied at Trinity College, and later at Leipsic Conservatory of Music under Hauptmann, Richeter, Reitz, Moschelles, and Plaidy. He also associated with A. Sullivan, then studied under Schneider at Dresden. In 1861 Mr. Buck went to Paris, where he studied until the following year, perfecting himself in the composition of music and in its technique.

For several years after returning from his studies abroad Mr. Buck was organist of the Music Hall in Boston, and in 1875 became assistant director of the Garden concerts in this city by invitation of Theodore Thomas. The singing of Mr. Buck's cantata during the Philadelphia Centennial was under the direction of Mr. Thomas.

Mr. Buck was organist of the Church of the Holy Trinity and director of the Apollo Club for twenty-five years. After his retirement as an organist in 1902 Mr. Buck published a large number of compositions for the organ. For several of these he received prizes. Some of his prize winners were the "Te Deum" and "Marmion," composed in 1880. He composed "The Golden Legend" for the Cincinnati May Festival, and received a prize of $1,000. Mr. Buck also composed the music for Edmund C. Stedman's poems. He wrote the "Dictionary of Musical Terms and Influence of the Organ in History" in 1882.

About two years ago Mr. Buck went to live abroad. He returned recently and went to live with his son in West Orange. He is survived by his widow, two sons—Dr. Edward T. Buck of Indianapolis and Dudley Buck, Jr.; also a daughter, Mrs. Francis Blossom of Orange.

Lewis E. Payson.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Lewis E. Payson, who represented the Ninth Illinois District in the Forty-seventh to the Fifty-first Congress, is dead at his home here, aged 68 years. Lewis E. Payson was born at Providence, R. I., on Sept. 17, 1840. He moved to Illinois in 1852, where he received a common school education and later spent two years at Lombard University at Galesburg, Ill. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1862. After practicing his profession at Pontiac for three years he became County Judge in 1869, and served in that office until 1873. He was then elected to the Forty-seventh Congress and served consecutively until the Fifty-first. Mr. Payson was an expert in land law and figured prominently in several important cases before the United States Court. He also represented John D. Rockefeller, Mrs. Hetty Green, the interests of the late Edward H. Harriman, and the Newport News Shipbuilding Company in their cases before the same body.

GALA PERFORMANCE OF FAUST

French Fleet Officers See Marguerite Sylva at Manhattan.

Marguerite Sylva was sufficiently recovered from her recent illness to appear last evening in "Faust" at the Manhattan Opera House. The occasion was a gala performance in honor of the French fleet. The boxes were draped with the flags of America and France, and in the centre box on one side sat the officers of the Justice, Capt. Heyrault and Capt. Berthet, while in the centre box on the other side sat the officers of the Verité, Capt. Guyon, Commander Masse, and Chief Mechanician Dumas. Other officers and the crews of the ships sat in other parts of the house.

Between the first and second acts the orchestra played the "Marseillaise," and everybody rose and cheered. "The Star-Spangled Banner" followed, and everybody rose and cheered again.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Maxine Elliott will give a dress rehearsal of her new Japanese play, "Sayonara," at her own theatre this afternoon. The audience will consist of her personal friends and many members of the Shubert companies now in town.

Lulu Glaser in "The Girl from the States" will open in Albany Saturday night.

Christie MacDonald has been called from London by Lew Fields to play the leading woman role in "The Prince of Bohemia," in which Andrew Mack is to star. She will sail for New York Saturday.

Frank Daniels's season in "The Belle of Brittany" will begin in Washington next Monday night.

Harper Brothers are preparing to issue a new edition of "The Awakening of Helena Richie," to be known as the Margaret Anglin edition. The frontispiece will be a reproduction in colors of a portrait of Miss Anglin, by S. Ivanowski.

Kyrle Bellew, the actor, who ruptured a blood vessel in his nose in Buffalo on Sunday night, has recovered, and will resume his engagement at the Star Theatre, Buffalo, to-night.

Hedwig Reicher has signed a contract with Henry B. Harris to be starred under his management for five years.

Slower than the selling-plater on which a grass widow has parleyed the rent money was a double-header between the Giants and Brooklyns in Washington Park yesterday. The second game in particular was about as tedious as 3,000 bored spectators could stand. It was pitched by a pair of youngsters who took many seconds to wind up, and did little worth while when they unwound—Drucke and Fletcher. The New York twirler, Drucke, reminded one forcibly of Walter Clarkson, though he lacked the occasional brilliance of the former Hilltop boxman. Brooklyn's pitcher was simply bad and nothing more. He was hit heavily and he had little control. Moreover, he plainly had no idea what to do in emergencies. The pitching in the first game, by Klawitter for New York and Scanlon for Brooklyn, was somewhat more interesting, though in no way phenomenal.

The Brooklynites won the first game by a score of 4 to 1. McGraw's men captured the second at odds of 8 to 4. The first game's feature was Jordan's homer over the right field fence. That of the second was the hitting of Downey, who made three singles and a double in five times up.

The locals got busy early in the opening encounter, scoring three times in the first inning. Wheat doubled to right with one down and Jordan drew a pass, a passed ball putting Wheat on third. Wheat came home on Downey's hit to right, Tim making third. Jordan and Downey recorded, after Hummel's trudge filled the bases, because McElveen singled to right centre. Then McMillan raised to McCormick and Hummel was caught trying for third. Each side got a run in the eighth—New York on successive singles by Fletcher, Merkle, and Wilson, Brooklyn on Jordan's four-furlong drive out of the grounds.

In the second game New York got a running start. Devore walked with one out, and he scored when Murray doubled with two down. Red registered on Fletcher's one-bagger to right, the batter taking second on the throw to the plate. Bridwell was out to Jordan, but the Giants had two runs. The visitors got four more in the fifth. Drucke and Doyle singled and Devore sacrificed. McCormick went to first on four wide ones, filling the bases. Drucke and Doyle crossed the plate on Murray's hit to left. Fletcher's infield tap filled the corners again. McCormick shot under the wire on Bridwell's sacrifice fly, Murray going to third. Red registered on Merkle's one-timer, following which Schlei flied to Wheat.

New York's seventh run was made in the sixth inning on Devore's two-bagger with one down and a wild pitch, which Dunn fumbled wretchedly in an effort to retrieve it. Brooklyn's count in that round resulted from Downey's single, bases on balls to Lennox and McMillan after Hummel fanned, and Dunn's force of Mac at the midway, Pitcher Fletcher flying to Doyle. The Giants got their eighth run in the ninth chapter through McCormick's bunt with one out, Fletcher's bunt with two gone, Bridwell's bunt, and Jordan's wild throw.

Brooklyn gleaned three runs in the final. Clement, batting for Fletcher, got away with an infield safety. Burch flied to Murray. Clement stole second and went to third on Wheat's single. Wheat stole second and Jordan walked, filling the nooks. Downey doubled to left, scoring Clement and Wheat. Jordan came in from third on Hummel's out at first. Lennox flied to Devore, ending the game.

In the first game a fine jumping catch by Wheat robbed Devore of a triple in the fourth inning, and in the sixth round a snappy double play by McMillan to Hummel on Devlin's liner headed off a batting rally. The scores:

Do your arches ache?

It must have been a real architect that designed our "Pedwell" shoe for aching arches.

For it's a daisy.

The specially shaped heel extending well out under the arch, and the curved steel support hidden in the sole do the trick.

The "Pedwell" shoe means comfort for men whose arches are broken down, and protection for men whose weight makes arch trouble imminent.

Of course any quantity of the woolen mixtures used in our winter suits are ornamented with threads of colored silk run through the fabric.

These suits cost from $30 to $40.

Nothing monotonous about our Derby business.

Our own fine Derbies $3, $4 and $6.

Victor Jay London Derbies $5.

As our Warren St. store is being fitted with cabinets, the clothing tables there are for sale, cheap. Apply to the Manager.

BENEFIT TO SAM CRANE.

American League Champions Defeat Yankees by Score of 8 to 4.

When 6,000 persons can be drawn together for a charitable purpose the conclusion is that the beneficiary is deserving of the attention bestowed upon him. Such was the result of the meeting at American League Park yesterday between the Detroits, champions of the American League, and the Yankees for the benefit of Sam Crane, the veteran second baseman, who gained much renown in that position as a member of the Detroit Club of the National League in 1885 and 1886, and a few years later became a writer on the National game.

Illness induced the New York order of Elks, of which Crane is a member, to give the veteran a benefit, and the indications are that through private subscriptions and the receipts of the game yesterday he will go West with a snug sum in an effort to recuperate his health.

Among the 6,000 persons at the game yesterday were many old-timers identified with the National sport. They were not treated to a contest of championship proportions, as the playing was ragged throughout and the Western men had no trouble in winning by a score of 8 to 4. There were several interesting incidents connected with the encounter that kept the spectators in good humor and caused them to forget the weak line of the American League champions, who are on the eve of facing the Pittsburgs for the championship of the world.

When the game had proceeded as far as the eighth inning the playing was stopped to allow the auctioning off of a bat and ball, the bat having been used by Ty Cobb this year, who unofficially has been declared the leading batsman of the American League, while the ball was used in one of his victories this year. There was quite a competition for the ball, and Auctioneer Joe Humphreys finally knocked it down to ex-Chief of Police Devery for $275, amid much enthusiasm all over the field. Fred Knowles, Secretary of the Giants, was the principal rival of the ex-Chief, but the baseball official stopped after a bid of $250. Devery appeared on the field and was accorded a hearty reception. In response to a speech he simply said: "All I've got to say is Mr. Knowles did not get this ball." There were only two bidders for the bat. It was started at $25, and was finally knocked down at $50.

With Dan Brouthers of the "Big Four" and Counselor John M. Ward, the famous old short stop and pitcher, as umpires, the game started with Detroit at the bat. Mathewson was in the box for New York and "Duke" Farrell was at the receiving end. Matty officiated for three innings, during which he was hit for a double, a triple, and a single, and gave one man a base on balls, the only one of the game. All of this resulted in two runs. Lake succeeded him, and in the fifth inning he was touched up to the tune of three singles and a double, which, with the aid of a dropped fly by Demmitt, placed four runs to the credit of Detroit. The champions added two more runs in the ninth, chiefly due to a fumble by Gardner.

Joe McGinnity, the old Giant and present part owner of the Newark Club, was in the box for the Detroits throughout the game. He struck out nine men, and, barring the third inning, kept the hits scattered. Doubles by Farrell and Cree and McIntyre's muff of Mathewson's fly gave the New Yorks two runs in the third inning, and Demmitt's long stroke to centre in the sixth enabled the runner to make a circuit of the bases. The Highlanders' last run came in the ninth, when Cree's double after two men were out and a dropped fly by Bush placed the fourth run to the local team's credit. The score:

National League Contracts.

President John A. Heydler of the National League of Professional Baseball Clubs yesterday announced the following contracts: With Boston, William Cooney, Charles Evans; with Chicago, Paul Brown, Leonard L. Cole, W. S. Davidson, Walter S. Hart, Fred Luderus, John Mitchell; with Cincinnati, W. R. Johnston, Mike Konnick, Arthur McCabe, Patrick Maloney.

Army and Navy in Dual Meets.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 6.—A formal challenge is to be sent from the Naval Academy to the Military Academy for the latter institution to meet the midshipmen in rifle shooting, fencing, basket ball, and gymnastics. It is proposed that dual meets in each sport be held each year, alternating between the two places. For some time an effort has been made to secure rifle matches, and officers of both services believe it particularly advisable. Of late years the intercollegiate fencing tournament has almost always been won by West Point or Annapolis, and if the dual meet is arranged these academies would probably withdraw from the association. The two schools have never met in basket ball or gymnastics, and such matches would be the features of the Winter athletic season.

Waldo First in Billiard Tourney.

The Class A three-cushion-carrom billiard tournament, which has been in progress at Daly's billiard parlor for some time, ended last night with Waldo defeating Praham by 30 to 22.

In Class B Jones defeated Frayer by 25 to 18, and Smith defeated Oblott by 25 to 19.

In last night's game of the three-cushion handicap tournament now in progress at Doyle's Academy, Broadway and Forty-second Street, Bud Fisher defeated William Kirk by a score of 25 to 24 in fifty-five innings. The highest run, 4, was made by Fisher. To-night at 8 o'clock Al Sanders will meet H. Turner.

Tennis Victory for Kingsley School.

The Kingsley School tennis team defeated the representatives of East Orange High School at the Kingsley School courts yesterday afternoon by a score of 4 to 1.

Columbia Oarsmen on River.

In spite of the class football practice forty-five men reported at the Columbia barge yesterday afternoon for the first regular rowing practice of the season. Owing to a late start, only one 'Varsity eight and two freshman barges were sent out. Coach Rice accompanied the first freshman boat in his single shell.

FAUNTLEROY FIRST FOR THE NURSERY

FIVE FAVORITES DEFEATED

Sir John Johnson, with 140 Pounds Up, the Only Successful Choice at Belmont Park.

With fair fields engaged, bright weather, and a fast track the racing at Belmont Park yesterday drew the best attendance of the week, and it was just a happening of the sport that the public favorites were beaten in five of the six events.

The Westchester Racing Association opened the gates of the course to all sailors of the visiting war fleets for the day, and the officers of all the warships were invited to attend the races as the guests of the club, but that part of the programme went askew, for omission to notify the naval guests of the train schedule to the races, or to provide special service for them, left about all the officers in Long Island City with no means of getting to the track, and the only evidence of naval day at the races was in a modest number of bluejackets, whose uniforms passed them through the gates.

The racing was entirely worthy of the special occasion, however, and though only one public favorite was successful in the course of the day, that winner was one that had the rare distinction of being a New York bred and owned horse, Sir John Johnson, which, this season, has raced himself into the distinction of being one of the best, if not the best, horses in training. It was Sir John Johnson's first trial under such high weight as 140 pounds, the handicapper seeming to put Sir John Johnson in the class of Roseben and Jack Atkin when he fixed the weights, but Sir John Johnson, bred at the Sanford Hurricana Stud, Amsterdam, N. Y., and unfortunately weeded out of their stable, carried it successfully for the Beverwyck Stable, and in front from the first jump to the last, won in gallant style, shoulders in front of Huck.

For the most valuable race of the card, the Nursery Handicap, six furlongs for two-year-olds, J. R. Keene's Grasmere, with 122 pounds up, started as the favorite in a field of eleven horses, the Montpelier Stable scratching out both Candleberry and Radium Star and substituting as a starter Brush Broom. Grasmere, at odds-on at post time, led away from the post and raced in front with his field lined out in close order for half a mile, and then began to halt, while Fauntleroy, close up at the start and second into the last quarter, slipped to the front and, holding his place there for the remainder of the distance, won easily by two lengths, Cherryola, coming on at the end, being second, a similar distance in front of Grasmere third. Fauntleroy, owned by James McLaughlin, is the first of the product of Little Saint, a horse imported by Richard Croker, to race with any distinction, and though Fauntleroy has been fighting out behind the good colts in earlier stakes, the Nursery Handicap was his first important victory.

The summaries:

SMITH AND DOUGLAS VICTORS.

Erratic Golf Marks Exhibition Match at Hackensack Club.

Brilliant, indifferent, and at times even bad golf marked the exhibition match yesterday between Alec Smith of Wykagyl and Finlay Douglas, paired on the one side, and "Tom" Vardon of England and Walter Travis competing as the other couplet, the contest being over the links of the Hackensack Golf Club. Smith and Douglas were the victors after leading from the first hole of the thirty-six-hole event, Vardon and Travis being four down and two to play when the sixteenth hole of the afternoon round was completed.

The match brought together four of the best professionals and amateurs in the country, and it was expected that the result would be the highest calibre of golf. In this respect the morning round was a complete disappointment, the scores turned in showing nothing remarkable. Travis took an 82 for the round, Vardon 76, Douglas 77, and Smith made a 73. The afternoon play showed much better, all of the players with the exception of Vardon getting better results than in the morning. Vardon hung up a total of 77, which was one stroke worse than his first round, Travis made 75, Smith 71, and Douglas 76.

Smith was the best of the four, his work being consistent from start to finish, and Douglas proved a fortunate ally, coming in with a clever stroke when it was needed to stave off a win by the opposing pair. This was noticeable on the sixteenth green in the afternoon round, the accurate work of Douglas making the win possible at this hole. Vardon and Smith had each taken 5, and Travis could not do better than a 6, having driven his first ball out of bounds from the tee. Douglas lay off to the corner of the green a distance of about thirty feet from the cup. Smith had already made the half so that Douglas was free to try for a win. The ball went true and just dropped over the rim of the cup. Several times before Douglas had made bold tries for a win, but the ball hung on the edge of the hole. His streak of bad luck, however, changed at an opportune time.

Smith and Douglas showed their winning streak on the first hole played, and at one time during the morning round had their opponents four down, the first eighteen holes ending with Smith and Douglas three up. The afternoon round went on in much the same manner, Douglas and Smith being five up at one stage, and ending the match four up and two to play.

The best ball score for the morning round gave Smith and Douglas a 71 as against 74 for Vardon and Travis, and the afternoon part of the programme gave Smith and Douglas 68 and their opponents 71. The total Smith and Douglas score was 139, with Travis and Vardon at 145.

The card of the best ball score was:

NATIVE BELLE'S RECORD.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 6.—In winning the Futurity, for two-year-olds, which was the feature of the second day of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association Fall meeting, the bay filly, Native Belle, driven by Thomas W. Murphy, trotted the second mile in 2:07¾ and established a new world's record for horses of her age and gait. The time is likewise equal to the world's two-year-old pacing record, which was made by Directly in 1894. Her time in the first heat was 2:12¾, and by quarters in the second heat it was: 33, 1:04, 1:35, 2:07¾. Murphy received an ovation by the 6,000 people who saw the performance.

The other races were all won in straight heats, Flying Jim taking the sixth and seventh heats of the unfinished 2:09 pace, in which five heats had been decided yesterday. The 2:15 pace was easily won by Iris. She was never in trouble in any of the three heats. Lady Stately, in the 2:16 pace, won as she pleased, leading all the way in each of the three heats.

The 2:06 trot was a two-in-three-heat affair, with only Sonoma Girl, Wilkes Heart, and Margaret O. as starters. The track was fast.

Matinee Season Closes.

The light harness matinee meeting of the New York Driving Club closed yesterday at the Empire City track, near Yonkers. Ten meetings have been held this year for cups donated by the club, and the competitions have been unusually keen.

The winners of the cups were not decided until the last heat of the day had been raced. The race between Christopher Hackett's Who Knows and S. B. Wolf's Mimic Alberts was the feature of the card. The pair have met with varying success during the season, and yesterday's meeting decided the ownership of the pacing cup. Who Knows won in straight heats, although the black gelding was pushed to his best to win; the margin in each heat at the finish was a small one. Hackett scored his second victory in the 2:10 trot with Princess Pique, which defeated Ismalian, driven by T. G. Hinds. Joseph F. Gibbons drove Pat Kennedy's Earl B. in the 2:12 trot and won handily from Composer and Mona Wilkes. Dandy C. O. won the 2:16 pace, after losing the first heat to Lillie Wilkes.

The annual luncheon followed the races, at which the cups were awarded. Earl B., owned by P. Kennedy, won the first trotting trophy, with fourteen heats and 34 points. Christopher Hackett's Princess Pique was second, with fourteen heats and 29 points. In the pacing division Christopher Hackett's Who Knows was first, with thirteen heats and 32 points, and S. B. Wolf's Mimic Alberts was awarded the second pacing cup.

It was announced that a special series of four matinees will be held on the Speedway beginning Wednesday.

Whitney Horses Win Two Races.

LEICESTER, England, Oct. 6.—A Maiden Two-year-old Plate of 200 sovereigns, distance five furlongs, was run here to-day and won by H. P. Whitney's Yorkville Belle colt. Gog was second and Chitana third. Ten horses ran.

The Midland Nursery Handicap of 300 sovereigns, for two-year-olds, distance five furlongs, was won by H. P. Whitney's Oversight. The Wise Saw filly was second, and the Scotch Brose filly third. Fifteen horses ran.

OLDFIELD ON WAR-PATH AGAINST A. A. A.

Racing Driver Declares That He Has Been Discriminated Against.

HIS FAST BENZ CAR BARRED

Refused in Fairmount Park Race and Sanction Was Withheld for Race Meet at Providence.

Barney Oldfield, one of the greatest automobile racing drivers in the country, is on the warpath against the American Automobile Association because his big Benz car has been barred from the Fairmount Park race in Philadelphia next Saturday, and a sanction was refused by the American Automobile Association for the race meet scheduled to take place in Providence, R. I., last Friday and Saturday.

Oldfield declares that he has been discriminated against by the American Automobile Association Club in Providence and the American Automobile Association Club in Philadelphia. He says that the sanction for the Providence meet was refused at the last minute because the promoter would not pay the American Automobile Association Club in that city $500 for the privilege of racing, in addition to the $200 fee which had been sent to Chairman Hower of the American Automobile Association Contest Board for sanction at the regular rate.

In regard to the Fairmount Park case Oldfield declares that the officials in charge of the event accepted and cashed the check which accompanied his entrance blank, but after the entries had closed, Oldfield says, he was notified that his Benz car was not a stock car model, and therefore would not be allowed in the race. The entrance fee was returned to him. Jesse Frohlich of the Benz Import Company has backed Oldfield up in his fight with the Philadelphia automobile officials, and he offered to present affidavits or any other proof necessary to show that the Benz was a stock model.

"They have certainly got my dander up, and I am on the warpath," said Barney Oldfield last night. "I practically started automobile track racing in this country, and have made my living out of it for seven years. In fact, after my fence-smashing experiences and my many battles with promoters, A. A. A. officials and others, it might be truthfully said that I have fought and bled in the cause. The only thing I have overlooked is dying for the game, but even at that I have given fate more than enough chances.

"I consider the Providence deal a rank hold-up, and if the A. A. A. stands for such methods and fails to punish the guilty ones I am very likely to split with the A. A. A. I have paid thousands of dollars into the A. A. A. treasury, have jumped through, walked lame, and played dead at the command of the Racing Board so long that I am getting tired of hearing the crack of the ringmaster's whip.

"In the Philadelphia case they have never examined my car to find whether it is stock or not, and they ignored the affidavits which accompanied my entry blank. They were flattering enough to state that if I was allowed in the race with my big Benz it would be a procession and not a race.

"I am in the racing game to stay, and I will always keep faith with the public and give them a good run for their money, but the A. A. A. crowd will have to play fair with me or there will be some one going on the mat."

To Consider Grand Prize Race.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—The Sporting Commission of the Automobile Club of France met to-day to consider the advisability of offering the grand prize for a race in 1910. The secretary was empowered to canvass the situation among constructors, and it was decided that if the race is held it will be without conditions regarding construction.

LUNGHI DID NOT RUN.

Harry Gissing Wins Half-Mile Race at Italian Games.

The closing feature of the Columbus Day and Verrazzano Monument Celebration was the athletic games at Madison Square Garden last night, which were well attended by the sons and daughters of Italy. The guests of the evening were the officers of the Italian battleships participating in the Hudson-Fulton Celebration. There were ten of them, and they occupied profusely decorated boxes on the Twenty-seventh Street side of the building.

The absence of Emilio Lunghi, the Italian champion, robbed the feature event of much of its interest. The only contestants to start were Harry Gissing, New York A. C., and Frank N. Riley, Irish-American A. C. It was announced that Lunghi hurt his leg during the indoor championships Monday, and was unable to compete.

Big Schoolboy Athletic Meet.

One of the largest schoolboy meets this year will be held on Saturday at American League Park, it being estimated that 1,500 youthful athletes representing 100 schools will compete. The programme calls for thirty-four events, which are open to those boys who competed in the various school field days which were held last Spring.

ATCHISON COMMON AGAIN AT 6 PER CENT.

EARNINGS STILL INCREASING

Wall Street Generally Expected the Action—T. De Witt Cuyler Elected a Director of the Road.

The Directors of the Atchison declared yesterday a semi-annual dividend of 3 per cent. on the road's common stock, increasing the rate from 5 to 6 per cent. a year. The increase had been generally anticipated, as the earnings of the company, large as they were last year, have been still larger since the new fiscal year began. Even in paying 6 per cent. the road is distributing less than half of what it has been earning on its common stock.

Besides declaring this increased dividend the Directors elected T. De Witt Cuyler a Director of the road and a member of its Executive Committee to fill the vacancy caused by the death of H. H. Rogers. Mr. Cuyler is a Director of the Pennsylvania, and there was some disposition shown to attach significance to this fact, as the Pennsylvania Railroad has many times been credited with seeking an interest in the Atchison. Mr. Cuyler, it was stated, however, in no wise represents the Pennsylvania on the Atchison board. He was suggested by individual Directors of the Atchison, and represents no specific holdings of Atchison, it was said, barring his own, he having for many years been a substantial holder of Atchison as an investment.

By the increase in the dividend to 6 per cent. the rate on the common stock is restored to the figure to which it was advanced in 1907, before the panic, only to be reduced in 1908 to 5 per cent. The fact that the Directors have so soon restored the dividend to the highest rate ever paid on this issue is regarded as indicating complete confidence on their part that the company will be able to maintain the rate. Announcement was made yesterday of the decision of the Directors hereafter to declare quarterly dividends instead of semi-annual dividends, for the benefit of the many small holders of Atchison who may find it more convenient to receive their income four times instead of twice a year.

RECORD PIG IRON OUTPUT.

2,385,206 Tons in September—Steel Corporation's Big Business.

The prediction of a record-breaking pig iron output for September is more than fulfilled in the statistics of the output of last month, as compiled by The Iron Age. The actual figures are 2,385,206 gross tons for the thirty-day month, which compares with 2,248,930 tons in the thirty-one days of August, and is 50,000 tons in excess of the previous high record established in October, 1907. Notwithstanding this showing, The Iron Age in to-day's issue says:

> Astounding as is the rush of pig iron production into new records in the last few months, it is the promise of still greater outputs in the near future which is fairly staggering. We entered the month of October with active plants having a weekly capacity of 564,885 tons, or at the rate of over 29,750,000 tons, which contrasts with a record production of 25,781,361 tons in 1907. In other words, we are now making pig iron at a rate of 4,000,000 tons larger than the best year the country has ever known.
>
> The steel companies made in September 1,660,839 tons, which includes 1,155,496 tons of the make of the Steel Corporation, whose total September output of all grades of pig iron, including foundry, reached the record of 1,184,370 tons. We may add that the Steel Corporation attained a record also in steel production in September, the total being 1,302,074 tons of ingots.
>
> The international steel rail trade is getting into more satisfactory conditions. At home, the St. Paul Road has added 20,000 tons to its former orders, carrying the total up to 100,000 tons. A leading system has just placed in the Chicago market an order for 70,000 tons, of which 15,000 tons is Bessemer and 55,000 tons is open hearth. The Tennessee Company has booked an additional 15,000 tons for the Atlantic Coast Line for delivery next year.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT.—Prices continued upward yesterday, with reports of good buying at Chicago by interests identified with the big bull movement about this time last year. There was a good cash demand in the Northwest, and reports of a large flour business. Liverpool was ¼@⅜d higher. Berlin closed ⅝c and Budapest ⅝c higher. About five loads were reported for export, but cash traders intimated that a larger business was being done. At all primary points 1,604,000 bushels were received, against 1,821,000 bushels last week, and 1,783,000 bushels a year ago. According to the Ohio State report, the yield was 21,000,000 bushels, or 12,000,000 bushels less than the previous year. Cash wheat in Western markets was firm, and in New York closed, No. 2 red, $1.29½ asked, in elevator, domestic; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, $1.11, and No. 2 hard, Winter, $1.18, free on board, afloat, both nominal. The late curb was ⅛c lower than the regular close.

CORN.—Part of the buying yesterday was on smaller receipts at Chicago than expected, an advance of ¼d at Liverpool, and reports of lighter country offerings in the Southwest. Bear influences were continued good weather through the belt, and a pressure of old corn. Total primary receipts were 705,000 bushels, compared with 277,000 bushels last year. No. 2 corn in New York closed 69½c, elevator, and 70c delivered; No. 2 corn, 70c, spot, and 69½c, middle October, free on board, afloat, basis; No. 2 yellow, 70c, nominal.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—The 109,948 shares of Boston & Maine stock which J. L. Billard of Meriden, Conn., purchased last year, and to hold which the Billard Company was incorporated, were delivered to-day to the Massachusetts controlled Boston Holding Company. The stock has been purchased at the agreed price of $140 per share, payable $125 in Boston Holding Company bonds and $15 in Boston Holding Company stock.

In the exchange, therefore, the Boston Holding Company will give to the New Haven-Billard interests $1,649,200 of its stock and $13,743,500 of its 4 per cent. fifty-year bonds.

The Boston News Bureau says that Billard stock has been used for a year or more as collateral for a loan with the National City Bank of New York. This loan does not mature until April next. In order to get the stock for delivery to the Boston Holding Company the New Haven interests were obliged to pay a slight premium for the release of the collateral and discharge of the loan.

The general impression has been that the New Haven would sell at an early date the $13,743,500 Boston Holding Company bonds given in part payment for the Billard stock. These bonds will be guaranteed, principal and interest, by the New Haven. As a matter of fact, the News Bureau says, no present disposition will be made of the bonds and no definite plans exist regarding their sale. Possibly one reason for this is that the present state of the bond market, with New Haven debenture 4s selling around 95, does not offer an attractive basis for the disposal of so large a block of bonds.

L. & N. EARNINGS GROW.

Substantial decreases in transportation expenses and maintenance charges reduced the total operating expenses to $29,627,499 against $33,594,291 in the previous year, leaving net earnings at $7,721,388, which is an increase of $4,896,931 over the previous year.

The traffic statistics show a decrease in the number of passengers carried amounting to over 500,000, and a drop of .057 cent in the rate per passenger mile, but freight tonnage increased from 23,256,502 to 24,403,952 and the average train load from 233.60 to 262.90 tons, thus offsetting a decrease in the rate per mile from .779 cent to .763 cent.

"In June, 1909, this company bought the entire capital stock and all the bonds of the Louisville & Atlantic Railroad Company. The line of road extends from Versailles, Ky., to Beattyville Junction, a distance of 101.1 miles. Also a branch line about three miles long south of the Kentucky River to Ida May, Ky., together with a bridge over the river at Heidelberg."

The retiring Directors were re-elected.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 6.—Reports of rich strikes in Mexican and good ore in Ophir gave strong impetus to all Comstock stocks, Mexican advancing from $1.50 to $2.22½ and closing at $2.05 bid. Ophir advanced 20 cents; Consolidated Virginia, 8 cents; Union, 13 cents, and others from 5 to 15 cents. There was a large crowd at the afternoon session, and 10,400 shares of Mexican were sold.

Weather in Cotton and Grain States.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The following is the forecast for Thursday and Friday, as issued for the cotton and grain States by the United States Weather Bureau:

North and South Carolina and Georgia—Partly cloudy Thursday and Friday, with probably showers near the coast; moderate northeasterly winds.

Western Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, and Eastern Texas—Fair Thursday and Friday; not much change in temperature; light, variable winds.

Western Texas—Generally fair Thursday and Friday; cooler in northern portion Thursday.

Utah—Partly cloudy Thursday and Friday; cooler Thursday.

Oklahoma, Arkansas, Tennessee, and Kentucky—Fair Thursday and Friday; not much change in temperature.

Lower Michigan—Fair Thursday and probably Friday; increasing southerly winds.

Iowa and Missouri—Fair Thursday. Friday partly cloudy.

LEATHER MERGER FIGHT OFF.

Dissenting Stockholders, Except 4,000 Shares, Accept Terms of Exchange.

The dissenting preferred stockholders of the United States Leather Company, to whom was given the chance to get from the Central Leather Company the same terms of exchange for their stock as were given to James B. Colgate & Co., and the 30,000 shares of the former stock which joined in the litigation against the merger of the two concerns, have accepted the offer to the number of 10,000 additional shares.

There still remain outstanding holders of 4,000 odd shares who will now either have to accept the terms offered by the Central Leather Company before the compromise with the litigants—50 per cent. in Central Leather bonds, 50 per cent. in preferred stock, 23½ per cent. in common stock, and $10 in cash—or take up the fight independently with the Central Leather Company.

The terms received by the Colgate clients gave them $25 in cash in lieu of the common stock. In order to make the terms identical the common stock of the Central Leather Company would have to reach a market value of 64.

SUPERIOR CORPORATION HEAD

T. J. Drummond Becomes President of Concern in Succession to C. D. Warren

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Oct. 6.—T. J. Drummond of Montreal, Can., was elected President of the Lake Superior Corporation by the Board of Directors, following the annual meeting of stockholders held to-day in Camden. Charles D. Warren, who has held the position of President since the reorganization of the corporation more than five years ago, refused to accept a renomination, stating that he desired to devote more of his time to his private investments, which he had been obliged to neglect.

"The corporation and its subsidiary companies are now in excellent condition," he said. "During the past year the Government guaranteed loan has been entirely paid off, and the borrowings of the corporation now amount to only $50,000, as against $2,300,000 in the earlier days of the reorganization."

The other officers elected were: J. Tatnall Lea, First Vice President; W. K. Whigham, London, Second Vice President; J. Frater Taylor, Third Vice President; Thomas Gibson, Toronto, Secretary and Treasurer. The old Board of Directors was re-elected.

NEW LAKE SUPERIOR HEAD.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—London capitalists, who relieved American financiers of the task of attempting to put the Lake Superior Corporation, which operates in Canada, on its feet, reached all the way to Camden, N. J., the scene of the corporation's annual meeting to-day, and practically changed the management.

Charles D. Warren of Toronto, President of the corporation, handed in his resignation this evening after a protracted session, and T. J. Drummond of Montreal was elected in his stead.

Thomas Gibson of Toronto was chosen Secretary and Treasurer in place of Walter P. Faust of this city. Faust will retain office until Oct. 15, but Mr. Warren's resignation goes into effect at once.

Mr. Warren, in a statement made before the Directors' meeting, predicted that he would be re-elected. The few American stockholders at the meeting admitted that they were all at sea.

The other officers elected besides Mr. Drummond were J. Tatnall Lea, Philadelphia, First Vice President; Walter K. Whigham, London, Second Vice President; J. Frater Taylor, Third Vice President.

These Directors were re-elected: T. J. Drummond, J. Tatnall Lea, W. K. Whigham, J. Frater Taylor, R. L. Austin, Herbert Coppell, J. S. Dale, J. Terry, Jr., L. N. Lovell, F. M. Cowen, H. N. Price, and Charles D. Warren.

Mr. Warren gave out a statement tonight that he had asked to be relieved of the office, which he had held for five years, so that he could devote himself to his private affairs.

ATTACK ON AQUEDUCT BOARD.

Supreme Court Justice Bischoff reserved decision yesterday on the argument of counsel for James H. Killough, suing as a taxpayer, for an injunction restraining Aqueduct Commissioners John F. Cowan, William H. Ten Eyck, John P. Windolph, and John J. Ryan, from taking further proceedings in the construction of the Patterson Reservoir in the upper part of Croton River Valley.

J. Hampton Dougherty, counsel for Mr. Killough, argued that the proposed reservoir was an attempt of the Commissioners to prolong their official life. This was denied by the Commissioners' attorney, Morgan J. O'Brien.

Allied with Mr. Killough were nearly a score of local civic societies that by resolution have condemned the proposed reservoir as a useless expenditure of $3,500,000 of the city's money.

Mr. O'Brien asserted that his clients had acted in good faith in advising the construction of the reservoir. He asked the court not to substitute itself for the Aqueduct Commissioners, "upon whom rests the obligation of developing the Croton system to its capacity in order to avert the danger of a water famine from the city."

INSTRUCTION.

NEW YORK—Manhattan.

"My Son Having Failed Completely in his preliminary examinations for college, entered your school, and in one year he covered two regular school years of work as is done at most schools, and not only passed his examinations easily for college, but also with credit to himself and his school."

This extract of a letter from the mother of a recent student is one of a hundred or more, valued by Mr. Groff, showing the high grade of success he has had for twelve years.

THE GROFF SCHOOL
228 West 72d St., New York,

is ideal and exceptional as a boarding and day school.

If a boy is bright and wishes to make rapid progress he is not held back by reason of any other boy, or by the old "grade system." If he is timid or nervous, he is encouraged; if he is careless, interest in his studies is secured; if he does not know how to apply himself, he is taught. To this individual method of teaching is due the Groff School's wonderful success, and "success is what talks."

All work prepared at the school under the direction and assistance of expert teachers, unless home work is preferred. Reopens Sept. 29th. Call on or address the Principal (now at the school),

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Active and Heavy—Call Money Rates, 4@5¼ Per Cent.

RALLY AFTER EARLY DECLINE

Early dealings on the Stock Exchange yesterday were obviously influenced by a renewal rate of 5¼ per cent. for call money. Liquidation similar to that which provoked Tuesday's sharp declines in a number of shares was resumed, and before it had run its course lower prices than those touched on Tuesday had been scored by the group of stocks in which speculative activity has centred for several weeks past. United States Steel was notably weak, selling down to 87½, making at this price a loss of above 7 points since the opening of the week. Transactions in this issue were upon an enormous scale, and it was one of the few stocks signally failing to recover early declines in the market recovery of the afternoon. This recovery, while due directly to short covering, was based doubtless upon the easier tendency of call money, which steadily declined from the 5¼ per cent. renewal rate to a final quotation of 4 per cent. Whatever else the last three days of weakness in the market has accomplished, the bankers have certainly been enabled to materially better their cash position. How distinctly a Stock Exchange affair the market movement has been in this period could be no better illustrated than by the numerous dividend increases by miscellaneous corporations announced yesterday. Atchison raised its payment from 5 per cent. per annum to 6 per cent.; the United States Realty Company advanced its rate from 4 per cent. yearly to 5 per cent., and an outside concern, the United Cigar Stores Company, declared an extra payment of 50 cents a share in connection with its quarterly distribution. At the same time the leading iron and steel trade journal published figures on the pig iron production for September constituting an absolute record, the total of 2,385,000 tons exceeding the previous high level, of October, 1907, by no less than 50,000 tons.

In the foreign exchange market there was further response to the hardening rates for money here. Demand sterling dropped 25 points under the pressure of finance and cotton bills. It is clear that if the flurry continues gold will be imported in considerable quantity, although at considerable cost, since it is hardly possible that the great foreign banks will maintain present discount rates in the face of a heavy demand for gold.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

At the Metal Exchange yesterday weakness was shown in the leading commodities, with business dull. Copper was off ¼ in the bid for spot and October deliveries; November and December were down a fraction. Tin was off ⅛. Lead and spelter were unchanged.

Pig tin ended steady, with spot and future deliveries down 15s, to £139 5s and £140 7s 6d respectively. Spanish pig lead was steady at a gain of 2s 6d, to £13 5s. Spelter continued steady and unchanged at £23 5s. Cleveland warrants were quoted at 52s 1½d.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 6.—The local market has held its own very well to-day. Traders were the principal sellers, and at times there was a little commission house selling, but it was not what could be called pressure. Specialties were strong. Shoe Machinery advanced 1¼, to 69½. In the afternoon the copper shares developed strength and made some good gains, closing strong.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—United States Steel still occupied the centre of the speculative stage in this city. The volume of dealings in these shares was again unusually heavy and the movements erratic, as this stock showed acute weakness and seemed to be not only subjected to bear pressure but also to considerable forced liquidation. Margin calls sent out overnight were said not to have been met with such ready response as on previous occasions and, as a consequence, there was quite a little commission selling. Nearly 30,000 shares changed hands.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

The Huge Pig Iron Output.

While United States Steel was betraying further weakness yesterday, there came out over the news tickers the usual monthly compilations of pig iron production figures which The Iron Age brings together, showing a total output for September of 50,000 tons in excess of the previous record outturn, made in October, 1907. September's total was 2,385,206 tons. Commenting on this, The Iron Age added that ironmakers were entering the month of October with production under way at the rate of 29,750,000 tons for the year, or 4,000,000 tons above the record of 25,781,000 tons, established in 1907.

Record Trading in Steel.

The transactions in United States Steel common amounted to 633,800 shares out of the day's total in all stocks of 1,503,914 shares. This was the largest day's trading in Steel since the organization of the corporation, in 1901. Only twice in the history of the Stock Exchange has any stock been traded in on a single day to a greater extent. The stocks which hold this distinction are: Reading, with a record of 957,955 shares traded in on Feb. 20, 1893, and Southern Railway common, with a record of 889,400 shares on April 15, 1902. On the Reading day, the total trading in all stocks was 1,473,953 shares, and on the Southern Railway day the total for all stocks was 1,773,883 shares. The total trading on Feb. 20, 1893, was the largest day's total on record up to that time, but it has been many times exceeded since, trading having exceeded twice this total on one or two days in 1901. Despite the great activity in Steel common yesterday, the total in all stocks was not unusually large. It was nothing more than an average "big day" so far as the entire list went, but the Steel post was a stock exchange in itself. The range of the stock was three points, from 90½ to 87½, with the close at 89⅛, showing a net loss of 1 point.

Break in Foreign Exchange.

The effect of the hardening of interest rates was seen yesterday in the foreign exchange market, where rates broke sharply from the level which prevailed at the opening of the week. Demand sterling at the close of the day showed a recession of about 25 points, having gone down from 4.8590 on Tuesday to 4.8565 yesterday. Some surprise had been expressed that exchange rates had not responded earlier to the higher money rates recently established in New York and the decline yesterday, so far from causing any surprise, was regarded as the logical outcome of recent developments in our money market. A recession in exchange rates in the Fall to a figure enabling our bankers to obtain gold abroad to help finance the demands upon this money market was long looked upon as one of the financial events regularly to be counted on. There has been less regularity in the gold movements during the last few years, however, and gold imports in the late Fall and Winter are no longer regarded as a certainty. This year the short cotton crop and the righ price of cereals affect our chances of getting gold from abroad.

More Dividend Increases.

Fruits of the rapid return of prosperity in the shape of larger returns to stockholders in two widely divergent fields of business contributed to yesterday's favorable news. The United States Realty and Improvement Company declared a quarterly dividend of 1¼ per cent., which is an increase of 1 per cent. annually, bringing the dividend back to within 1 per cent. of the rate in force during 1907 and up to the second quarter of 1908. In announcing the increase, President Black said that the business of the last five months, which shows a surplus of $647,320, warranted the higher rate and meant a distribution to stockholders of only about half of the net earnings. The other two concerns, neither on 'Change, which declared increased dividends were the United Cigar Stores Company, with an extra one-half of 1 per cent. in addition to the quarterly 1½ per cent. on the common stock, and the American Light and Traction Company, with an extra stock dividend of 2½ per cent. on the common.

Telephone and Telegraph Prospects.

One of the reasons for the selling by San Francisco of the newly listed shares of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company on the sharp rise which has run the price up from 48 to more than 61 in the few days it has been traded in, appeared in an interview yesterday with President Scott, who has just arrived from the Coast. He was quoted as saying that there was no reason to expect a dividend on the common for several years, and knew nothing in the situation that would explain the advance.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

American Securities Close Steady on the London Exchange.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Money was in good supply and demand on the market to-day. Discounts were firmer, but the market does not expect a rise in the Bank of England's rate of discount for a fortnight.

Trading on the Stock Exchange presented a ragged appearance in the forenoon owing to the shake-out of Americans and Paris selling of its favorites in the mining section, but renewed support in the afternoon caused a steadier tone at the close, foreigners and copper shares sharing in the betterment. Home rails eased on poor traffic returns.

American securities opened from ¼ to 1½ points lower. Later the active issues showed some improvement, but prices again eased off, and at noon the market was irregular, with Erie ⅝ higher and the rest of the list ¼ to ⅞ lower than yesterday's New York closing. Erie led in the recovery, which progressed further in the afternoon, New York paying attention to the Pacific stocks, United States Steel, and Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé. The market closed steady.

Money, ¾@1 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 2 per cent.; for three months' bills, 2¼@2⅜ per cent.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—Prices on the Bourse to-day opened strong and closed firm.

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—Prices on the Boerse to-day were weak on reports from foreign markets.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The Daily Trade and Consular Reports for to-morrow note the following trade opportunities. Further information regarding these can be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of the item referred to:

3,938. TENDERS FOR THE SUPPLY OF HOSPITAL EQUIPMENT—Vice Consul General Frederic W. Cauldwell of Cairo has forwarded copies in French and English of tenders for the supply of articles of hospital clothing and equipment of various kinds for the Department of Public Health, Cairo, for the year 1910. Bids for these supplies will be received until Nov. 1, 1909.

3,939. FURNITURE, CROCKERY, CHINAWARE, AND IRON BEDSTEADS—A business man in Australia writes that he would like to secure the names of American manufacturing firms in the following lines: Wood chairs, crockery, chinaware, and iron bedsteads. He is anxious to secure catalogues, price lists, and quotations, free on board, New York; also freight per ton (cubic) New York to Brisbane or Sydney by Government subsidized line of ships. He prefers to deal direct with manufacturers and not wholesale merchants.

3,940. REPRESENTATION IN NEW ZEALAND—An American business man writes that he will shortly leave for New Zealand to open an office for the purpose of promoting the sale of American goods in that region. He desires to hear from American firms desiring representation there.

3,491. MACHINERY FOR COMPRESSING YEAST CAKES—An American Consul in South Africa has forwarded a copy of a letter received from a local business house that desires information regarding machinery for molding or compressing yeast cakes, the size of the cakes being 1 9-16 inches in diameter by 7-16 inch deep. The firm does not require a large plant, but is anxious to obtain the most up-to-date machinery for that purpose.

3,942. TELEPHONE INSTALLATION—An American Consular officer in the Levant furnishes the name of a concern that is acting for the local post and telegraph office in the matter of the installation of a telephone system in a city in his district. He suggests that American firms forward at once catalogues and price lists of telephone apparatus, price of wire, &c.; also the cost of a central exchange for 1,000 subscribers. The firm in question states that it can probably induce the authorized officials of the Government to give it the preference, and thus secure the contract to American firms.

3,943. FRUIT CANNING PLANTS—An American Consular officer in South Africa reports that a firm in his district desires quotations, specifications, catalogues, &c., on a complete fruit-canning plant.

3,944. COTTON SEED OIL PRODUCTS—A commercial organization in Germany writes that a Berlin dealer in raw products would like to handle cotton seed oil products, and desires to be put in communication with American firms wishing to enter the German market.

3,945. HARDWARE, GLASSWARE, WIRE, AND PROVISIONS—A report has been received from an American Consul in Australia, in which he states that a local business firm well introduced in all the Australian cities, and having a wide experience in all lines, is anxious to obtain agencies for the Australian market of the following lines of American manufacture: Chinaware and glassware articles for table and ornamental use, pressed glassware, tumblers, &c.; household hardware and utensils, currycombs, enamel ware, nail wire, fencing wire, wire for mattresses, provisions, canned goods, &c.

3,946. SHOES FOR GERMANY—An American Consul in Germany furnishes the name of a merchant in his district who has had thirty-five years' experience in the shoe business, twenty of which were spent in traveling, at present representing German shoe manufacturers, but who is willing to enter into negotiations with American shoe manufacturers with a view to representing them in a certain city of that country.

3,947. APPLES AND CANNED, DRIED, AND EVAPORATED FRUITS—An American Consulate in Western Europe requests firms in the United States to send prices of apples in barrels as well as quotations on dried, canned, and evaporated fruits.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Chicago Subway sold down to a new low price to-day, reaching 6¼ before midday, after which the selling was checked. Subway closed at 6⅛. Brick was easier, as was Can preferred and Booth preferred. Booth closed ½ point below yesterday, and Brick a full point lower. Sears held up to the 121⅞ mark to the end, and the preferred closed at 118, compared with 117 yesterday. Title and Trust closed 2½ points higher, at 148½, on good buying.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Weakness of Curb Stocks Continues with Fractional Losses at the Close.

NEVADA CONSOLIDATED OFF

Under Light Trading This Issue Declines 1 Point from Opening, but Recovers from Lowest Level.

Curb stocks continued weak yesterday, and in the mining list a number of fractional losses were recorded at the close though trading on the decline was light. Greene-Cananea was an exception to the general course of the market, and after opening strong, ⅛ above Tuesday's close, rose to 10¾. The close after transactions of 6,000 shares was at 10 9-16. Small losses were made in British Columbia, Cumberland-Ely, Miami, Ray Central, and Ray Consolidated. Nevada Consolidated at one time was 1 point below the opening and was one of the weakest shares on the list. The close at 23⅝ was ⅝ below the opening, but ⅛ above the lowest of the day.

The principal transactions reported yesterday in the outside market, with opening, high, low, and last prices, were as follows:

THE COFFEE MARKET.

Coffee showed an opening gain yesterday of 5 to 15 points, then a drop of about 5 points, and then a rally which closed it 5 to 15 points higher. Total sales, 16,750 bags. Europe seemed to be the principal buyer at first. Comparatively light receipts at primary points helped the gain. Tips from Havre advised buying in that market and selling in New York. Havre at one time was ¼ to ½ net higher, but closed net unchanged to ¼ higher, with sales of 27,000 bags. Hamburg opened ¼ lower, with sales of 83,000 bags, but closed with a net gain of ¼@½. Rio gained vy reis and Santos was lifted 50 reis. Fine weather was reported at all points in the belt of Sao Paulo.

Spot coffee was firmer; 7 5-16c for Rio No. 7, invoice lines.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

H. M. Price of Toronto succeeded Walter Dow as a Director of the Lake Superior Corporation at the annual meeting in Camden, N. J., yesterday. The other members of the board were re-elected. About 250,000 of the 400,000 capital stock of the company voted.

The Yokohama Specie Bank, Limited, of 55 Wall Street, will post about Nov. 1 a list of the Japanese Government exchequer bonds, (internal loan,) Series C, issue of 1904, which were drawn for redemption in Japan on Oct. 1, and are redeemable after Oct. 30 in Japan. The total drawn is 20,000,000 yen. The bank announces that it will purchase such of these bonds as are presented on and after Nov. 1 at the current buying rate of exchange on Japan.

$15,000,000 LIGHT CO. MERGER

General Electric Co. Consolidating Pittsburg and Western Concerns.

Interests identified with the General Electric Company, which have managed investments in light and power companies through the Electric Bond and Share Company, have organized a consolidation of a number of electric and gas companies in the West, and are planning to organize the American Power and Light Company under the laws of Delaware, which will have a capital of $15,000,000—$5,000,000 to be cumulative 6 per cent. preferred stock and $10,000,000 common stock.

These properties have been acquired: The Home, Light, Heat and Power Company of Pittsburg, the United Gas Company and the Edison Light and Power Company of Wichita, Kan., and the Astoria Electric Company of Astoria, Ore. Other properties are under negotiation.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Wednesday.

The market on the Consolidated Exchange was under heavy selling pressure during the greater part of the day, and prices declined sharply, uncovering many stop loss orders, which added to the general weakness. Of the day's total of 164,730 shares, which embraced dealings in sixty-six issues, 99,020 shares represented the trading in Union Pacific and United States Steel common. The first-named sold as high as 206, and in the closing dealings compared with a high price on the New York Stock Exchange of 205¾. On the morning decline, which carried Steel common down to 89 on the other Exchange, it did not sell under 89¼ on the Consolidated.

OLD IMPORTERS IN TROUBLE.

T. J. Keveney & Co. Unable to Meet Their Maturing Obligations.

T. J. Keveney & Co., importers of linoleum and commission merchants in carpets and rugs at 907 Broadway, who have been in business twenty-eight years, have put their affairs before their creditors, as they could not meet maturing obligations, but it is said nothing definite has been decided upon as to the plan of settlement.

Their liabilities are reported to be about $180,000, of which $30,000 are secured. The nominal assets are $48,000, among which are outstanding accounts of $22,000 and cash in bank, $18,000. Of the cash in bank it is said $13,000 is on deposit in a bank which holds $30,000 notes of the firm.

The firm formerly did a very large business, and had branches in Philadelphia, Pittsburg, Chicago, Kansas City, and Oklahoma, but since the panic of October, 1907, business has fallen off greatly. A few years ago they were reputed to be worth over $300,000, mostly in real estate and securities. The firm was composed of Thomas and Hugh Keveney.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Sharp Advance Follows Early Crash—Closes 6 Points Up to 2 Down.

Cotton showed very little net change yesterday, although fluctuations were extensive. The market opened barely steady at a decline of 9 to 12 points, and continued to weaken. Receipts throughout the South continued very heavy, and Liverpool broke 10 to 13 points. Belgian and German cables stated that spinners were arranging to go on short time in expectation of lower raw cotton in America, reports had it that spot cotton was pressed for sale at prominent points in the South, while from New England came statements that mill owners were unable to make a profit at prevailing prices for spot cotton and the finished goods. In the afternoon there was a decided reversal of sentiment and a rapid rise in prices on telegrams from the South that farmers were refusing to follow the declines, that spinners were calling March deliveries to the extent of 100,000 bales, and that foreign spinners really had very little cotton, and had resorted to short time talk to break prices. Receipts at all ports were heavy and clearances for export considerably exceeded the movement from the interior. The close was firm, 2 points lower to 6 points higher net.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Deal for Another Corner Near New Subway Station at Fort George—Dwellings To Replace Apartment House on Park Avenue.

W. D. Morgan has sold for W. T. Wardwell to Stephen J. Egan the northeast corner of St. Nicholas Avenue and 190th Street, a plot fronting 90.3 feet on Broadway and 180 feet on the street and measuring 97.6 feet along the rear line. This property is within a few feet of the entrance to the new Subway station at Fort George, work on which is now progressing rapidly. The northwest corner of St. Nicholas Avenue and 190th Street was also reported sold about two weeks ago to the Dakota Realty Company.

The Graff estate has sold the plot 50 by 99.11 on the south side of 158th Street, seventy-five feet east of Broadway. David Stewart is reported to have been the broker in the deal.

The Alliance Realty Company has sold the lot 27 by 96 at the northeast corner of Park Avenue and Seventy-third Street, part of the site now occupied by the Brandon apartment house. The new owner intends to build a private dwelling on the lot. This is taken to mean that the Alliance Realty Company will devote the remainder of its holdings at that point to similar improvement, so that the operation may have an important bearing upon the further rebuilding of that part of Park Avenue with fine residences.

Bradhurst Avenue Corner Sold.

The Brown Realty Company has bought the southeast corner of Bradhurst Avenue and 147th Street, a six-story apartment house, 49.11 by 100.

Isaac Hattenbach has sold for Mark Aaron 215 West 115th Street, a five-story single flat, 20 by 100.

New $1,500,000 Apartment House.

Architects George and Edward Blum have filed plans for a new $1,500,000 twelve-story apartment house to be built by George F. Johnson at the northwest corner of Broadway and 113th Street, on plot 100 by 165.11. It is to contain accommodations for sixty-nine families.

The Lloyd Construction Company has secured a building loan of $200,000 from the Lawyers' Title Insurance and Trust Company on the property at the southwest corner of Amsterdam Avenue and 109th Street, 100 by 100.

New Store on 27th Street Leased.

M. & L. Hess have leased for the Realty Holding Company to G. Gaudig & Blum the 100-foot store and basement in the building now in the course of construction at 119 to 133 West Twenty-seventh Street, for a term of ten years; also, about 60,000 square feet of loft space in the same building to various tenants.

Louis Schrag has leased for the Wilbur Realty Company the southerly store in 461 Sixth Avenue to M. V. Adamo, for a term of years; also, for Joseph W. Cushman & Co., the store and basement in 244 and 246 West Twenty-third Street, to the National Cloak and Suit Company.

The H. M. Weill Company has leased the building 131 West Forty-fifth Street to Mrs. Anna Mackey for a term of years; also, to A. Le Blanc, for fifteen years, the dwelling 131 West Sixty-ninth Street.

Tenants for Downtown Stores.

The Charles F. Noyes Company has leased, for a term of years, for Samuel Wasserman, the store and basement at 121 East Twenty-third Street to Ernest W. Johnson; the store and basement at 89 Maiden Lane to George Jaquins; the second loft at 59 Ann Street to K. Yoshimo & Co., and the second floor at 60 Beekman Street to Golding & Nova.

Herbert Gulick and Louis J. Halle have incorporated the Gulick-Halle Company and opened offices in the Devonshire, 2,872 Broadway, at 111th Street, for the transaction of a general real estate brokerage business. Mr. Gulick has been handling real estate in Manhattan, Long Island, and Brooklyn for the last eight years, and was for some time manager of the Long Island department for the McVickar-Gaillard Realty Company. Mr. Halle is a newcomer in the active brokerage field, although he has had a wide experience in real estate investments. He is a Director of the new Audubon National Bank, to be opened soon at Broadway and 143d Street.

West Side Dwellings Leased.

Slawson & Hobbs have leased the following private houses: The northwest corner of Seventy-fifth Street and West End Avenue, for Frank Bradley; 306 West Seventy-fifth Street, for Emma W. Harris; 209 West Seventy-sixth Street, for Mary A. Goodsell; 356 West 120th Street, for George Holmes; 301 West Seventy-seventh Street, for Edward B. Whitney; 253 West Seventy-second Street, for W. E. D. Stokes; 66 West Sixty-eighth Street, for Dr. Philip A. Morrow; 321 West Seventy-eighth Street, for W. E. D. Stokes, and 301 West Eighty-fourth Street, for D. J. Carroll.

The property given by James G. Johnson in part payment for 306 West 107th Street was 21 West Ninety-sixth Street—not Sixty-sixth Street, as was reported yesterday. McKee, Hayward & Co. were the brokers in the deal.

Deal at Bailey and Sedgwick Aves.

B. H. Weisker, Jr., of James L. Libbey's office, negotiated the sale of thirteen lots on the west side of Walton Avenue, 70 feet north of 184th Street, for the Fleischmann Realty and Construction Company to a builder.

Joseph P. Day has sold for the Independent Improvement Company to a builder the plot, 50 by 114, on the south side of 219th Street, 401 feet east of White Plains Road.

To Discuss Jerome Avenue Elevated.

The West Bronx Property Owners' Association will meet to-night at the Fordham Club at Morris Avenue and Fordham Road. Public Service Commissioner Eustis, who is an ex-President of the association, will address the meeting on the subject of the proposed extension of the Sixth and Ninth Avenue Elevated Roads across Macomb's Dam Bridge and up Jerome Avenue to Kingsbridge Road.

Buyer for Brooklyn Dwelling.

John M. Royall has sold for Mrs. Blanche H. Boomer 431 Herkimer Street, Brooklyn, a two-story house on lot 20 by 100.

Rockaway Plots Change Hands.

The Frederick W. Avery Company has sold in conjunction with the H. Richter Company a plot 80 by 100 on the east side of West End Avenue, 280 feet north of Newport Avenue, Rockaway, for George V. Hemmert to Wilhelmina L. Appell. The seller bought these lots in August, 1908.

The H. Richter Company has sold at Rockaway for a Mrs. O'Connor a plot 30 by 100 on the west side of Tenth Avenue, 260 feet south of Washington Avenue; also for William Williams, at the northeast corner of Washington and Seventh Avenues, a plot 80 by 100; also for Zimmermann & Forshay five lots on the west side of Sixth Avenue, 140 feet north of Triton Avenue, and a plot 60 by 100 on the east side of Columbus Avenue, 100 feet north of Washington Avenue.

Clarence Martin has sold to a Mrs. Marsh two lots on the north side of Grand Avenue, forty-eight feet west of Second Avenue, Long Island City.

New Rochelle House Sold.

G. Brettell & Son, in conjunction with C. M. Williamson of New Rochelle, have sold for Albert Wellnity of Norwalk, to Bessie and Carrie McNicholl of Brooklyn, a two-and-a-half-story dwelling on Harold Court, Van Gilden Terrace, New Rochelle.

Jury Awarded Full Commission.

In a suit tried on Tuesday in the Supreme Court before Justice Brady and a jury, Isaac Goldstein, a real estate broker, testified that he had been employed by Maas & Myers to sell the property 14-16 East 118th Street; that he submitted the property to Elias Kullman, and that he went back and forth between these parties submitting various offers. After a four-weeks' illness, preventing his giving any attention to the matter, he found that Kullman had bought the property for $61,000. Kullman refused to pay the commission to Goldstein, who assigned his claim to his wife, who brought suit.

The defendants denied the broker's testimony, claiming that the sale had been made through another broker, and produced as witnesses the buyer, a friend of his named Adler, and the other broker, to whom the defendants said they paid $363.50 commission.

Mrs. Goldstein's attorney, Jacob Friedman, claimed that there was collusion between these witnesses to deprive Goldstein of the commission, and in cross-examination elicited evidence tending to support this contention. The jury rendered a verdict for the plaintiff for the full amount, $610, and $87.20 interest.

SUMMONSES.

To the above-named defendant:

You are hereby summoned to answer the complaint in this action and to serve a copy of your answer on the plaintiff's attorney within twenty days after the service of this summons, exclusive of the day of service; and in case of your failure to appear or answer judgment will be taken against you by default for the relief demanded in the complaint.

Witness, the Hon. George B. Adams, Hon. George C. Holt, Charles M. Hough, and Learned Hand, Judges of the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, at the City of New York, this 18th day of September, in the year one thousand nine hundred and nine.

THOS. ALEXANDER, Clerk.
HENRY A. WISE, U. S. Atty.,
Plaintiff's Attorney.

Office and Post Office Address, Room No. 50 Post Office Bldg., Borough of Manhattan, New York City.

To George A. Luria:

The foregoing summons is served upon you by publication pursuant to an order of the Hon. Charles M. Hough, a Judge of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, dated the 18th day of September, 1909, and filed on September 20th with the complaint in the office of the Clerk of the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York.

Dated New York, September 20th, 1909.

HENRY A. WISE,

LEGAL NOTICES.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, PURSUANT to an order of the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York, that a suit has been commenced by the United States of America for and on behalf of FAIRBANKS, MORSE & COMPANY, Plaintiff, against CHARLES E. LYDECKER, as Receiver of Church Construction Company, as principal, and Empire State Surety Company, as surety, to recover the purchase price of certain materials furnished by said Church Construction Company, for the construction of a power house at West Point, New York, in accordance with the provisions of a certain contract, dated the 2d day of April, 1906, between Brigadier General A. L. Mills, United States Army, and Superintendent of the United States Military Academy, for and in behalf of the United States of America, and said Church Construction Company, and all other creditors of said Church Construction Company who furnished labor or materials for the construction of said public work are hereby notified of the commencement of said suit, pursuant to the provisions of the Amendatory Statute of the United States, known as the Act of February 24th, 1905, being Chapter 778 thereof, and further notified that they may intervene and become parties thereto within the time limited therefor by said statute.

Dated, New York, October 1st, 1909.

CRIES THIEF TO GIRL IN A RESTAURANT

Woman Tells of a $1,000 Jewel Robbery and Says She Has Found the Perpetrator.

SOUGHT FOR HER TWO YEARS

Scene in "Jack's" Ends in the Haling of the Accused to Headquarters—She's Locked Up.

"There is the woman that stole my brooch!"

This cry from a woman who suddenly rose from a table in "Jack's" restaurant in Sixth Avenue, near Forty-third Street, last night, and pointed at a younger woman seated at a table near her with three young men in evening clothes, threw the restaurant into an uproar.

The younger woman sprang up, but before she could speak the elder woman had repeated her charge, and the girl collapsed at her table, in tears. At every table men and women were rising to see what had occasioned the excitement, and a corps of waiters and floor managers, with whom came the house detective, rushed about trying to restore order.

Mrs. John C. Laird of 242 West Fifty-first Street, as the elder woman gave her name, insisted that a policeman be called, and despite the protests of the younger woman's escorts, Detectives Barker and Haggerty were summoned from the Sixth Avenue Branch Detective Bureau.

Meanwhile the girl who said she was May Montez of 439 Sixteenth Street, Brooklyn, continued to sob, crying out hysterically now and then that she was innocent and that the whole thing was a mistake. When the detectives arrived it was decided to take all concerned to Police Headquarters. When this decision was made known to Miss Montez and the men with her they insisted on hiring an automobile in which to make the trip downtown. Two of the men with Miss Montez and the detectives entered a car, and Mrs. Laird and the friends who were with her took another automobile and followed the first one on its way down Broadway.

As the cars sped along Mrs. Laird, who was very much excited, shouted frequently at the top of her voice:

Miss Montez, whose friends had been unable to console her, pleaded with the detectives to let her go, declaring that she knew nothing about the missing brooch and certainly never stole it. At Police Headquarters she was arraigned, frightened, and disheveled before the Lieutenant, and Mrs. Laird formally charged her with having stolen from her a diamond brooch containing sixty-three stones and valued at $1,000.

Mrs. Laird declared that the theft occurred on the night of Nov. 14, 1907, and said that she had been trying to locate Miss Montez ever since that night, although with no success until she encountered her by chance in the restaurant last night. Mrs. Laird said that in 1907 Miss Montez had had a room in her apartment and that she had frequently admired the brooch, remarking more than once:

"I'd like to steal that brooch, and some time I will, too."

On Nov. 14, said Mrs. Laird, she came home in the evening feeling ill and Miss Montez assisted her to retire. At that time, she said, the brooch was suspended around her neck beneath her outer clothing. When she awoke in the morning, continued Mrs. Laird, both Miss Montez and the brooch were missing.

Miss Montez persisted in her declaration that she had not taken the brooch, and broke down again, weeping and pleading, when Mrs. Laird declined to withdraw the charge, and she was informed that she would be locked up. The trip to the Mercer Street Police Station, where all women prisoners are sent from Police Headquarters, was made in the automobile in which the party had come down from the restaurant, and then the two young men hurried away in it, saying that they would arrange to bail out Miss Montez.

Mrs. Laird and her party went off in their automobile, Mrs. Laird saying that she would be in the Tombs Court to-morrow morning to appear against Miss Montez.

C. H. ROLLINS ARRESTED.

Surrenders and Furnishes Bond in Connection with Larceny Charge.

BOSTON, Oct. 5.—Charles H. Rollins of the firm of Freeman, Rollins & Co., bankers, a former member of the Governor's council, who while he resigned only recently surrendered to the police to-day and was arrested on an indictment in connection with the bankruptcy of Sederquist, Barry & Co. Like the indictments upon which Arthur B. Sederquist and John E. Barry, members of the late firm, were arrested last Monday, that against Rollins charges the larceny of $116,530 in 120 counts. Rollins entered "no plea," and furnished $20,000 bond pending further proceedings.

In connection with Sederquist, Barry & Co.'s troubles, also Harry F. Curtis of Brookline, a broker, surrendered himself to-day. He entered "no plea" and furnished $20,000 bonds. Curtis was the organizer of both Sederquist, Barry & Co. and Freeman, Rollins & Co., but after a short period dropped out of both. Creditors of Sederquist, Barry & Co. requested the authorities to investigate certain transactions between Curtis and the bankrupt firm.

DISMISS BANK INJUNCTIONS.

Suits Against Oklahoma Commissioner Dropped on Plaintiff's Motion.

LAWTON, Okla., Oct. 6.—On motion of attorneys representing the National Life Insurance of Chicago, and S. W. Smith of Missouri, the injunction suits against State Bank Commissioner A. M. Young, and the State Banking Board, brought to prevent the preferential payment of depositors in the matter of the Columbia Bank and Trust Company of Oklahoma City, and demanding the appointment of a receiver for the institution, were to-day dismissed here by Federal Judge J. H. Cotteral.

By request also of the plaintiff the information asking that the State Banking Board be cited to appear for contempt of the temporary restraining order issued last Saturday was withdrawn.

ENID, Okla., Oct. 6.—Interviews with local bank officials to-day indicate that Enid's five State banks will resist the effort to collect an assessment of three-fourths of 1 per cent. on average deposits to replenish the guarantee fund now being used to re-establish the Columbia Bank and Trust Company of Oklahoma City.

Notice of assessment was received to-day.

Place for ex-Director North.

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 6.—The election of S. N. D. North, ex-Director of the Census, as Vice President of the Rumford Press of this city, and of W. S. Rossiter, who was Chief Clerk under Director North, as Treasurer and general manager of the same concern, was announced to-night. William E. Chandler, ex-United States Senator, has been chosen President of the corporation, which is a reorganization of the Rumford Printing Company. Mr. North will have charge of the company's office in New York.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Fashion Plates in the Form of Paintings May Be Imported Free of Duty.

Harper & Brothers and other importers were defeated yesterday in the attempt to secure the benefits of the reduction in duty made on paintings in the reciprocity treaty between this country and France. The importers being dissatisfied with the Collector's classification of the paintings as at the rate of 20 per cent. under the terms of the Dingley law appealed to the Board of United States General Appraisers.

The articles in controversy are so-called fashion-plate paintings done for the most part by American students residing temporarily abroad. In view of the fact that the work was done by Americans a claim was made several months ago for free entry, but the contention was overruled both by the Board of Appraisers and also by the United States Circuit Court. The claim now put forward by the publishers is that the paintings are entitled to enter at 15 per cent. in view of the trade convention with France.

In denying the claim of the importers Judge Waite in his decision for the board states that in order to secure the benefits of the treaty paintings must not only be imported into this country directly from France but also must have been produced in that country. In the present case the Judge says the paintings were imported from England, and, therefore, are excluded from the reduction in duty provided for in the French agreement with this country.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

ABRAHAM BARSKY.—Abraham Barsky, merchant tailor, 1,407 Fifth Avenue, has made an assignment to Nathan S. Jerome.

BARNETT SILVERSTEIN.—Barnett Silverstein, dealer in dress goods, &c., at 1,448 First Avenue, has made an assignment to A. Albert Finkelstein. He has been in business four years, and from May 1, 1908, to July 31, 1909, had a store at 44 Moore Street, Brooklyn.

JOHN VAN ZUILEN, Jr.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against John Van Zuilen, Jr., doing business as John Van Zuilen, Jr., & Co., manufacturers of umbrellas and parasols at 45 Lispenard Street, by these creditors: Frederick G. Hallett, $495, and Joseph P. Schmitt, $389. It was alleged that he was insolvent, and made preferential payments of $2,500. Judge Hough appointed Charles L. Cohn receiver. The assets are estimated at $3,500, consisting of stock and fixtures, $2,000, and accounts, $1,500.

GINGOLD & EINFELD.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against William Gingold and Richard N. Einfeld, who compose the firm of Gingold & Einfeld, retail clothing dealers at 47 Canal Street, by these creditors: H. B. Claflin Company, $430; S. Stein & Co., $727, and the H. Rebhan Company, $432. It was alleged that they were insolvent, made preferential payments of $2,500, and transferred merchandise and accounts of $2,500. Judge Holt appointed Frederick J. Moses receiver, with a bond of $2,500, and authorized him to continue business ten days. The liabilities are $10,000, and the assets $5,000.

SAMUEL R. GREEN.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Samuel R. Green, stock broker of 77 Broad Street, by these creditors: Barnett A. Sachs, $200; Abe Friedland, $100, and Max Helman, $300. It was alleged that he was insolvent and made preferential payments. Judge Holt appointed Alexis P. Bartlett receiver. It was stated that the liabilities are $10,000, and the assets $1,800, consisting of some stocks and cash in bank, and that in the last week he has disposed of a large part of his property and used the money to pay certain creditors. He was a broker on the Curb, and has been in business about a year.

BIGGS, YOUNG, SHONE & CO., INC.—Biggs, Young, Shone & Co., Inc., advertising agents, 30 West Thirty-third Street, has made an assignment to William Holmes. The officers were Harold A. Biggs, President; George G. Young, Vice President; Harry J. Prudden, Secretary, and Edwin F. Carswell, Jr., Treasurer. The company is capitalized at $100,000 and was incorporated on Feb. 17, 1902, as the Ben B. Hampton Company, afterward the Hampton Advertising Company, and the name was changed to the present style last February, when a statement of the company's financial condition showed assets of $257,783 and liabilities of $150,248. About three weeks ago it was stated that the company was going into liquidation and that arrangement had been made with Frank Seaman, Inc., whereby all advertising contracts taken by Biggs, Young, Shone & Co. would be placed by Frank Seaman, Inc., which agreement was to last for a year.

REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW York, CHARLES WYNNE, Plaintiff, against IGNAZIO LUPO and others, Defendants.

In pursuance of a Judgment of Foreclosure and Sale, duly made and entered in the above-entitled action and bearing date the 23rd day of September, 1909, I, the undersigned, the Referee in said judgment named, will sell at Public Auction, at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14 and 16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 26th day of October, 1909, at 12 o'clock noon, on that day, by Herbert A. Sherman, Auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All that lot of land in the City and County of New York, with the buildings thereon, being known and designated as part of lot Number A. 31 on a certain map entitled "Map of Wilton, Port Morris and East Morrisania, in the Town of Morrisania and County of Westchester, New York," dated New York, July 12th, 1857, surveyed by I. C. Buckhout, and filed in the office of the Register of the County of Westchester, September 29th, 1857, as Map Number Thirty-one, said part of said lot being more particularly bounded and described as follows:

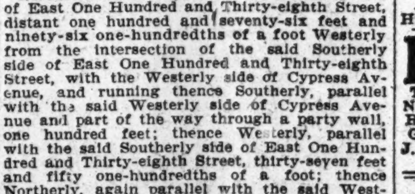
BEGINNING at a point in the Southerly side of East One Hundred and Thirty-eighth Street, distant one hundred and seventy-six feet and ninety-six one-hundredths of a foot Westerly from the intersection of the said Southerly side of East One Hundred and Thirty-eighth Street, with the Westerly side of Cypress Avenue, and running thence Southerly, parallel with the said Westerly side of Cypress Avenue and part of the way through a party wall, one hundred feet; thence Westerly, parallel with the said Southerly side of East One Hundred and Thirty-eighth Street, thirty-seven feet and fifty one-hundredths of a foot; thence Northerly, again parallel with the said Westerly side of Cypress Avenue and part of the way through another party wall, one hundred feet to the said Southerly side of East One Hundred and Thirty-eighth Street, and thence Easterly, along the said Southerly side of East One Hundred and Thirty-eighth Street, thirty-seven feet and fifty one-hundredths of a foot to the point of beginning.

Dated New York, September 30, 1909.

JAMES OLIVER, Referee.

ALLEN & SABINE,
Attorneys for Plaintiff, No. 135 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold, its street number is No. 630 East 138th Street, in the Borough of the Bronx, City of New York.



The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above-described property is to be sold, is Nine Thousand One Hundred and eighty-seven Dollars and Fifty-four Cents, ($9,187.54), with interest thereon from the 17th day of September, 1909, together with costs and allowance amounting to Four Hundred and eighty-three Dollars and Twenty-nine Cents, with interest from September 24, 1909, together with the expenses of the sale. The approximate amount of the taxes, assessments, and water rates, or other liens, which are to be allowed to the purchaser out of the purchase money, or paid by the Referee, is $1,625.00 and interest.

Dated New York, September 30, 1909.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The disturbance in the West is slowly developing, causing light precipitation in the Rocky Mountain region. Showers have again occurred along the South Atlantic Coast. Fair weather with stationary temperature has prevailed elsewhere and will continue. A tropical disturbance has been noted south of Santo Domingo, but its intensity is not yet apparent.

Winds along the New England Coast will be light west; Middle Atlantic Coast, light variable; South Atlantic Coast, moderate northeast.

Steamships departing Thursday for European ports will have light to moderate westerly winds, with fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND FRIDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair Thursday and Friday; not much change in temperature; light variable winds.

New England—Fair Thursday and Friday; not much change in temperature; moderate west winds, becoming variable.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

BANKRUPTCY SALES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, Southern District of New York.—In Bankruptcy.—In the matter of DUBY & SHINN MANUFACTURING CO., Inc.—Bankrupt.—No. 11,146.

Notice is hereby given that personal property belonging to the estate of the above-named bankrupt will be sold under the direction of Felix Lamond, the Trustee, at public auction by Arthur C. Morris, Auctioneer, at the factory of the bankrupt on Edwards Avenue between Joline and Atlantic Avenues, at Long Branch, Monmouth Co., N. J., on October 7, 1909, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

A general description of said property is as follows:

Contents of manufactory and machine shop consisting of power presses, drill presses, milling machines, lathes, five horse power motor and switch board, dynamo, and shafting, belting jigs, and the usual appurtenances to the above described; anvils, blacksmith's forge, with anvil, tongs, etc., complete; lacquering outfit; interest in United States Letters Patent for an invention in carpenter's tools (a Universal Square) No. 700,023, dated May 13th, 1902; office furniture and fixtures and unmanufactured iron and steel; more particularly described in the appraisal of said estate filed in the office of the undersigned Referee.

Full particulars as to the same may be obtained from Messrs. Edwards & Bryan, attorneys for the Trustee, 31 Nassau St., New York City.

The Trustee reserves the right to withdraw any of said property from sale, unless it shall bring at least 75 per centum of the appraised value.

The said property will also be sold subject to the approval of the Referee, free and clear of all encumbrances, pursuant to order filed herein September 14, 1909.

The proceeds of sale will be deposited in a designated depository of this Court, and subject to its further order.

DRUG HABIT CURABLE, SAYS DR. LAMBERT

DONE IN ONLY A FEW DAYS

The announcement made by Dr. Alexander Lambert of 36 East Thirty-first Street, visiting physician at Bellevue Hospital and Professor of Clinical Medicine at the Cornell Medical College, that he has at last discovered a speedy cure for the drug habit and alcoholism has aroused much public interest. Men of his profession are particularly interested.

The fact that Dr. Lambert is a physician of high repute and a recognized authority in the matter of specifics lends credence to his contention that the most confirmed drug fiends are not beyond cure.

"The obliteration of the craving for narcotics is not a matter of months or weeks," says Dr. Lambert, "but is accomplished in less than five days. The result is often so dramatic that one hesitates to believe it possible."

The physician says he obtained the specific about five years ago from Charles B. Towns of 119 West Eighty-first Street, who spent some years in China studying opium cases among the hospitals there. Since that time he has been experimenting with it extensively in his practice at Bellevue. Here is the specific:

> Fifteen per cent. tincture of belladonna, the fluid extract of xanthoxylum, (prickly ash,) and the fluid extract of hyoscyamus, mixed in the certain proportions.

The cure, according to Dr. Lambert, can be effected with a minimum of suffering, and no matter how long the patient has been addicted to the habit, or in what quantities he has been accustomed to take drugs, he will be placed in the same attitude toward them as before he fell into the habit. His health will be in no way impaired by the treatment or the deprivation of the drug; on the contrary, a physiological change comes about whereby, all desire being eliminated, self-confidence is restored to the patient, and his system adjusted to do without it.

Dr. Lambert says, however, that he has no intention to call the specific "an infallible cure." He says:

As to the method of treatment, as Dr. Lambert explains it, after employing it in Bellevue in the cases of twenty-eight patients, all of whom he cured, it begins in the usual way by getting the patient into proper physical condition. Then, in cases of cocaine or morphine, the specific is administered in certain proportions and quantities, depending largely on the individual, every hour throughout the treatment. But after every six hours the specific is increased until the quantity is doubled.

One way in which this treatment differs from all others is that while the specific is being administered, the drug of which the patient is a victim is still taken. For this reason practically all suffering is absent. Regarding this Dr. Lambert says:

"Give with the first dose of the specific from one-half to two-thirds of the usual total daily dose of the opium, morphine, or cocaine which the patient is taking at the time of his treatment. Divide the amount of the narcotic in three doses and give them at half-hour intervals by mouth or by hypodermic, as the patient is accustomed to take it."

Of alcoholism Dr. Lambert says:

"The same specific is used in the same doses, but it does not have to be continued for so long a time, although there may be exceptions. Much closer observation is necessary in treating the alcoholic in regard to the intoxication of belladonna."

Dr. Lambert's record of his drug patients in Bellevue shows that treatment and results vary little with age or with the period of addiction to the habit, or quantity of the drug taken.

One case is that of a woman 59 years old, addicted for twenty years to the morphine habit. She had brought her dose to an excessive point daily, having acquired the habit to obtain relief from pain. She was in a feeble and nervous condition when admitted to the hospital. In thirteen days, after forty-six hours of the specific treatment, she was discharged in good condition. No supplementary treatment was needed.

Dr. Lambert has been ex-President Roosevelt's private physician for many years.

EVANGELIST FALLS DEAD.

W. F. Meminger Dies After Outdoor Discourse at Missionary Alliance.

Wilbur F. Meminger, aged 50, Field Superintendent of the Christian Missionary Alliance, whose New York headquarters are at Forty-fourth Street and Eighth Avenue, died suddenly last night, as he finished a religious discourse, during an outdoor meeting of the alliance, in front of the headquarters.

Mr. Meminger arrived recently from Portland, Ore., and intended going to Northern New York in a few days. While in New York he connected himself with the local branch of his organization. He talked to a crowd of people last night and tired himself. As he was stepping from the platform upon which he was standing he staggered and fell into the arms of several of his colleagues. They took him into the headquarters and summoned Dr. Smith of Flower Hospital, who pronounced Meminger dead. The ambulance surgeon said that heart disease caused the evangelist's death.

When a man or woman finds sickness coming on, such as indigestion, weak eyes, kidney trouble, etc., it is time some attention is given to the subject of food and drink.

In practically all such cases where coffee or tea is the drink, one can obtain relief by quitting the coffee or tea and taking Postum.

He leaves off a drink that is an active producer of disease and takes in its place a powerful liquid food that contains elements for rebuilding the nerve centres which have heretofore been torn down.

206-MILE COACHING TRIP.

Twelve Prominent Whips Will Drive to Newport in Three Days.

A dozen of the leading society whips of the Coaching Club will start on a 206-mile coaching journey to-day. The start will be made at noon from the Metropolitan Club, and the finish will be at Alfred G. Vanderbilt's country estate, Oakland Farm. Relays of horses will be used and the trip will be made in three days. Arrangements were completed yesterday by the committee, consisting of Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Reginald W. Rives, and G. G. Haven, Jr.

Reginald W. Rives, President of the club, will be on the box when the coach leaves the Metropolitan Club. Each member of the club will furnish a relay of four horses at certain points along the route, and will act as coachman during the time his horses are used. In all nineteen changes of horses will be made.

The first change will be made at Fordham Road and Jerome Avenue, where G. G. Haven, Jr., will relieve Mr. Rives. Port Chester will be the next stop, when E. Victor Loew will act as coachman as far as Stamford, where W. G. Loew will occupy the box seat and drive the four as far as Darien. J. H. Alexandre, Jr., will be the whip to Westport, where the final stage of the day's journey will be taken to Maitland's, with O. G. Jennings conducting the party.

Mr. Jennings will resume driving Friday morning at 8:30 o'clock, and will hand the reins over to Austen Gray at Woodmont. Upon reaching New Haven Reginald C. Vanderbilt will mount the box, driving as far as Branford, where luncheon will await the party. From Branford William Woodford will drive to Guildford, where he will be relieved by P. G. Gerry, who in turn will be followed by G. L. Boissevain at Clinton. The next stop will be at Lyme, when H. E. Coe will drive the party to New London, where they will be entertained by Vice Commodore L. Ledyard Blair aboard the yacht Diana.

H. E. Coe will remain on the box when the coach leaves New London Saturday morning, driving as far as Mystic, where Alfred G. Vanderbilt will take the reins and drive to his farm at Portsmouth, near Newport. The entire distance will be nearly 206 miles, divided as follows: Thursday, 56 miles; Friday, 85 2-3 miles and Saturday, 64 7-20 miles.

QUEENS BRIDGE CARS CRASH.

Motorman and Five Passengers Hurt on Long Island City Plaza.

With a crash, the force of which broke all the windows in the municipal car, and tossed its twenty passengers from their seats, one of the old Third Avenue trolley cars, which are now run by the city over the Queensboro Bridge, smashed last night into the rear of one of the big steel cars of the New York & Queens County Railway Company, which is operating the cars intended for use eventually in the Belmont Tunnel, under a permit from the city pending the granting of a franchise to the company to operate regularly across the bridge.

Whether the pole of the steel car slipped from its trolley, thus bringing the car to a stop, or whether the brakes on the old Third Avenue car failed to hold could not be learned. The cars collided on the incline on to the Long Island City plaza of the bridge.

The collision caused no damage to the big steel car, and its passengers were scarcely shaken. The front platform of the old wood car was smashed in, however, and it was found that these persons were hurt sufficiently to need medical aid:

BENNETT, Miss, 88 Cumberland Street, Brooklyn.

HOFFMAN, ALFRED, 86 Cumberland Street, Brooklyn.

HOFFMAN, Mrs. ALFRED.

TRAINOR, JAMES, 1,107 First Avenue, Manhattan.

All except Trainor, who was the motorman, escaped with cuts and bruises, although Dillegigo was hurt sufficiently to be removed to St. John's Hospital in Long Island City.

Trainor was badly crushed, and the ambulance surgeon who came from the Flower Hospital in Manhattan, hurried him, saying that his left leg would have to be amputated.

HIS THUMB SAVES HIS LIFE.

Policeman Cushioned Trigger of Revolver in Hands of Insane Man.

Policeman Hopkins of the West Twentieth Street Station was on the corner of Nineteenth Street and Fifth Avenue when he was informed that there was an old man with a gun on the northwest corner acting wildly. Hopkins crossed the street and found a man about 50 years old, with a revolver in a holster strapped to his side, walking up and down and waving his hands wildly. The man saw him and reached for his revolver.

Hopkins closed on the stranger and they rolled to the sidewalk and then into the gutter. The stranger, who later said he was Herbert T. Congers, a farmer of New Mexico, and a guest at the Hotel Bartholdi, is 6 feet in height and weighs 190 pounds. The policeman weighs 150 pounds and is 5 feet 8 inches in height.

Although outmatched physically, Hopkins refused to accept aid from any of the men in the crowd. Fearing that some one would be shot, he motioned every one away who tried to help him. Both Congers and Hopkins got hold of the revolver, which was still in the holster.

Once Congers got the pistol free and turned it toward the policeman, who was on top of him. Hopkins inserted his thumb between the falling hammer and cartridge. His finger was bruised and torn, but the cartridge did not explode. Hopkins then got possession of the revolver, only to lose it again in the struggle that followed.

The struggling men rolled over against the curbstone and Policeman Hopkins again got possession of the revolver. Fearing to lose it again he threw it among the crowd on the street. Congers was then subdued and the policeman sat on him until the arrival of an ambulance. The struggle had lasted fifteen minutes. Dr. Holmes of Bellevue said the man was suffering from acute mania.

At the Hotel Bartholdi it was said the man had been living there two years.

FIRE DELAYS POLICY RAIDERS.

Break In and Find Man Burning Papers and Also the House, They Say.

A raiding party under William C. Hamilton of the Goddard Anti-Policy League appeared before a flat door at 12 Beaver Street yesterday. They said later that the league was receiving letters from women saying that their husbands were squandering their money in a policy shop there.

When the raiding party got to the dwelling yesterday all the doors were found to be locked. The raiders forced them.

Inside they found a man stuffing papers into a burning stove, they said. Some of the burning paper dropped to the carpeted floor and set the room on fire. The fire was burning briskly when the raiders got into the place. Their first step was to extinguish the fire and save what they could of the burning papers.

When the tenants learned of the fire there was a scramble to get out.

After the raiders had put out the blaze, some having burned their fingers, the man was arrested. He was inclined to resist, but he was soon subdued, as were three other men found in the rooms but who were not held at the Hamburg Avenue Station. The man held said he was Jacob Froehlich of 721 Nimrod Street, Brooklyn. Later in the day he was held for trial in $500 bail. He waived examination.

Object to Metropolitan Horn Player.

Trouble between the Metropolitan Opera House and the Musical Union seems to be imminent on account of a horn player whom the opera company has engaged contrary to the wishes of the union. Messrs. Dippel and Hertz spent some time yesterday trying to convince the union that the horn player should be allowed to play here, and it may be that their arguments will finally carry.

GIRO ALSO GUILTY OF STABER MURDER

First-Degree Verdict Against Second Burglar—Equally Blamed with Partner Who Shot.

DEATH PENALTY FOR BOTH

Up for Sentence To-morrow—Their Lawyers to Appeal—Each Jury Out Less Than an Hour.

Carlo Giro, one of the two burglars who shot and killed Mrs. Sophia Staber in her home in Flatbush on July 8, was found guilty of murder in the first degree late yesterday afternoon by a jury in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn. His partner in crime, Frederick Schliemann, had a like verdict rendered against him on Tuesday. The juries took fifty-five minutes to reach a decision in each trial.

To Giro the verdict proved a great surprise, as he had counted on escaping the death chair through the full confession which he had made. Only three days were required to try and convict the two murderous housebreakers.

The conviction of the two men ends a case which has stirred Brooklyn more than any other since the mysterious slaying of Albert Latimer in his home in Hancock Street several years ago. The outcome, it is believed, will be taken as a severe warning to desperate crooks.

To-morrow Giro and Schliemann will be sentenced to death. Their counsel plan to take an appeal from the judgment of the County Court to the Appellate Division. Lawyer Reilly, Schliemann's attorney, says he will take his client's case as high as the Court of Appeals if necessary.

Justice Crane, in his charge to the jury, declared that Giro, as Schliemann's confederate in the crime, was equally guilty. This point had been emphasized by District Attorney Clarke. In his summing up Hector M. Curran, for Giro, contended that the prosecutor had failed to establish that the fatal shot was not fired by Mrs. Staber's son in the struggle in the house.

Although the first degree verdict seemed to have been unexpected by him, Giro did not flinch when it was announced. In giving his record he admitted that he had served five years in Sing Sing for assault and six months on Blackwell's Island for petit larceny.

The crime of which Schliemann and Giro have been found guilty was committed early on the morning of July 8. The two burglars forced an entrance to the home of George Staber, a manufacturer, at 455 East Eighteenth Street, Flatbush. When the robbers entered their room Mr. Staber and his wife were awakened.

Mrs. Staber called for help and the burglars ran into the hallway. There they encountered young Edward Staber, who grappled with Giro. Schliemann, running down the stairs, turned and fired back two shots. One bullet struck Mrs. Staber, who stood in the upper hallway. The two burglars then fled.

Edward Staber had wrested Giro's pistol from him and he fired it as the men ran from the house, wounding Schliemann in the right arm and leg. Giro, who possesses great physical strength, carried his wounded pal to a clump of woods near by. A few hours later both men were captured.

Court Rejects Hammerstein Libel Suit

Supreme Court Justice Davis sustained yesterday a demurrer by John A. Hennessey, managing editor of The Press, to the complaint in the $100,000 libel suit brought by Oscar Hammerstein against Hennessey. The action was based on the letter written to the impresario by Mr. Hennessey and published in The Press following the ejectment of Press reporters from Hammerstein's Opera House. The court holds that the words in the letter complained of are not libelous.

RAINY DAISIES SHOCKED.

Girl Dancer's Artful French Song Rather Too Much for Them.

The Rainy Daisies held their first meeting of the season at the Hotel Astor yesterday afternoon and had their sense of motherliness badly strained. The Rainy Day Club is a maternal organization, and its members, the Rainy Daisies, are nothing if not motherly.

The club began its work with the promulgation of short skirts to keep working girls, who ought to know better, from getting colds with wet ankles, and it has carried on similar lines of work ever since. But yesterday, when it was urged to begin its mothering with an individual object at the very beginning of the first programme of the first meeting of the year, it received such a shock that the fact that it mothered right along in spite of everything proves the mettle it is made of.

It all had to do with a little girl who came to sing for the club. She was 16 or 18, a very pretty little girl, and an ingenue. She looked a little more like the stage variety than the real thing, for the dictionary definition of a "young girl artless, ingenuous, and innocent," does not seem to agree with a large waterfall of blond puffs and a small Niagara of blond curls.

The ingenue's song was the tale of a little French dancer, Finette. It was told in broken English, very prettily and ingenuously, to the notes of a gay tune, but it did seem that Finette knew a great deal more of the world than even the Rainy Daisy mothers themselves.

A white-ribbon Rainy Daisy received the first shock when Finette told in her pretty broken way how they said she had "taken the cake," but she liked to take champagne with her cake, and in pantomime emptied her glass. The white-ribbon mother didn't believe even in claret, and she had heard awful things of champagne.

Then all seemed to be justified as Finette went on to tell how she won curious gentlemen's hearts with high kicks, giving a gentle rise to one little foot and another to a white frock to show filmy ruffles beneath. Some of the mothers only just refrained from covering their faces with their hands while the singer went gayly on:

The Rainy Daisies, with flushed cheeks, gazed at each other, and for a minute it looked as if the strain on their principles would be too much. One of the mothers rallied:

"That child doesn't understand the meaning of a word she is saying," she cried, and they all clapped so hard that she sang another verse.

SCHIFF DEFEATS BANKRUPTS.

Court Sustains Objection to Lesser & Co.'s Discharge—Got $4,000 Falsely.

In a memorandum filed yesterday in the United States District Court Judge Holt denied a discharge in bankruptcy to Harry J. Lesser and Carrie Dreyfus of 101 West 140th Street, formerly partners in a brokerage business at 80 Wall Street, conducted under the name of H. J. Lesser & Co.

This action was taken because of objection made by Jacob H. Schiff, who charged that on Feb. 2, 1903 the bankrupts obtained a loan of $4,000 from him on a false statement regarding the value of a cargo of wood on a vessel called White Wings, then on its way from Santo Domingo.

When the bankrupts filed the petition they gave liabilities of $30,855, with assets of $42,000, consisting of unliquidated claims.

BLACK PLEADS FOR THAW.

Former Governor Appears in the Case and Attacks Laws.

ALBANY, Oct. 6.—Former Gov. Frank S. Black appeared to-day before the Court of Appeals for Harry K. Thaw and attacked the constitutionality of the act under which Thaw was committed to the Matteawan State Hospital for the Criminal Insane and the law under which Thaw is being detained in that institution. It was Mr. Black's first appearance in the Thaw case. Charles Morschauser, who has acted as Thaw's counsel in recent proceedings, also appeared. Mrs. Thaw and her daughter, the former Countess Yarmouth, were in court.

The case came up on an appeal from an order of the Appellate Division, Second Department, affirming an order of Supreme Court Justice Mills of White Plains in dismissing a writ of habeas corpus and refusing to order Thaw's release.

Mr. Black contended that Section 454 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, under which Supreme Court Justice Dowling ordered Thaw committed, was unconstitutional. He held that the commitment was ordered without due process of law, and that there was no proof that Thaw was insane at the time of his acquittal.

"When the verdict of that jury," said Mr. Black in referring to Thaw's acquittal, "was brought in Thaw stood in that court a free and innocent man."

Mr. Black attacked the State insanity law, which provides that the Superintendent of Matteawan shall be the sole judge of the condition of the inmates.

"The Legislature," he said, "has no power to vest solely in the dominion of one man the freedom, property, and rights of another."

In concluding Mr. Black held that Thaw was entitled to a jury trial to determine his mental condition.

Robert C. Taylor, Assistant District Attorney of New York argued that the power exercised by Justice Dowling had been the common law and police power of the State for years.

FATHER OBJECTS WITH PISTOL

Mr. Schwartz Threatens to Kill His Daughter's Irish Admirer.

David Schwartz, a well-to-do tailor of 163 Howard Street, was arrested on the street in Newark last night for threatening to shoot a young man in whose company he found Annie, his pretty 16-year-old daughter.

Broad Street was crowded with promenaders at the time, and more than 500 persons were attracted by the loud words which preceded a threat to shoot, and the flashing of a loaded pistol by Schwartz. Then the crowd fell back, and the policemen came.

Schwartz concealed the pistol from the policemen until he had gone a block, when he attempted to get rid of it by dropping it on the sidewalk. He was locked up on a charge of carrying concealed weapons, but Miss Schwartz declared that she and her friend, a young Irishman to whom her parents object, will appear against her father to-day. He told her a week ago, she says, that he would kill her friend if he caught her with him.

Girl Fulton Visitor Fined for Theft.

Miss Ella O'Donahue of Elmira, N. Y., came to town to see the Hudson-Fulton doings. With her came her friend, John Shannon of Binghamton. They saw all they cared to of the pageants, then went shopping. Yesterday in Special Sessions the girl was fined $25 for taking a handbag from one of the department stores. She said she merely picked it up and started out to show it to John, who was outside.
